A Glimmer Of Hope!

"Fifth Column" Purges More Top-Level Gov't Crooks

Editor's note: Just when you think you have the political situation basically figured out, new input arrives to pull the rug out from under you—or at least tie the pieces together in a new way. It really does ALL fit together! On his 1/14/96 End of The Line talk radio show, Jeff Rense recently interviewed James R. Norman, author of a most provocative article which appeared in this month's issue of Media Bypass magazine. (For a copy call 812-477-8670.) The topic is one mentioned briefly a couple of weeks ago by Commander Hatonn: the "Fifth Column" group of intelligence hackers who have forced the resignations of major movers and shakers on Capitol Hill by exposing their illicit Swiss bank accounts. Here is a transcription of the highlights of that interview (for a copy of the full taped interview see p. 15 for ordering information from End Of The Line). [Quoting:]

JR: Good evening once again, everyone. My guest tonight is one whom you will not soon forget. His name is James R. Norman and he will tell you things tonight that will leave you stunned, amazed, and astonished. But above all, his story may leave you with the hope that there just might be a future for this country's morally forlorn, ruthlessly corrupt, and remarkably inept governmental process, after all. James Norman is one of America's premier investigative journalists who puts his facts where many others place innuendo and hype.

THE TINY VICTIMS OF DESERT STORM

In November 1995, LIFE magazine published this special report on some of the children who have been born with horrific birth defects as a result of a parent's participation in Desert Storm. Written by Kenneth Miller and Jimmie Briggs, it is additional confirmation of the material we have already presented on the genocidal implications of Desert Storm. (See the January 9 issue of CONTACT, page 12, for one.) The photographs by Derek Hudson portray the youngest of those who are daily paying an unthinkable price as part of the Elite's agenda for the New World Order. [Quoting, in part:]

During the past year, LIFE has conducted its own inquiry into the plight of these children. We sought to learn whether U.S. policies put them at risk and whether the nation ought to be doing more for them and their families. We also aimed to determine whether, as some volunteer armed forces—institutions dependent on citizens' willingness to serve, and therefore on their trust—may rest on the answers to such questions. Certainly, soldiers expect to forfeit their health, if necessary, in the line of duty. But no one expects that of a soldier's kids.

Researchers have been probing Gulf War syndrome since late 1991, when returning soldiers reported a spate of mysterious maladies. Conclusions have been slow to arrive. Last June the federal Centers for Disease Control (CDC) confirmed that Gulf vets were unusually susceptible to a dozen ailments—from rashes to incontinence, hair loss to memory loss, chronic indigestion to chronic pain. But in August, a Pentagon study concluded that neither the vets nor their loved ones showed signs of any "new or unique illness". Veterans' advocates disputed that finding, as did the National Academy of Sciences' Institute of Medicine, which declared that the reports' reasoning...is not well explained." And while there is, as yet, no absolute proof that Gulf vets' babies are especially prone to congenital problems, patterns of defects have begun to emerge—patterns unlikely to result from chance alone.

CLUSTERING

Clustering is the term epidemiologists use when an ailment strikes one group of people more than others—and the phenomenon can be a key indicator that something more than chance is causing birth defects. The Association of Birth Defect Children says it has found the first cluster of defects in the offspring of U.S. Gulf veterans: 10 babies with severe Goldenhar's syndrome, a condition that usually strikes one in 26,000, according to ABDC executive director Betty Mekdeci. The ABDC, which has gathered data on 163 ailing Gulf War babies so far, is tracking four more possible clusters—victims of hypoplastic left heart syndrome, of atrial-septic heart defect, of microcephaly and of immune-system deficiencies. Significantly, not one of the parents in the ABDC survey has a family history of these types of birth defects.

The difficulty in proving conclusively whether clusters are occurring is that no one—not Mekdeci, not the Pentagon—knows how many babies have been born to Gulf vets. The Defense Department's own survey of 40,000 birth outcomes, initial results of which are due in late October, is the largest study yet, but far from complete since it relies on data only from military hospitals. Along with the ABDC and Defense Department surveys, more than 30 other studies of Gulf vets and their children are underway. One that is no longer ongoing, by the Senate Banking Committee, folded last

CEDRICK

Cedrick was born with his trachea and esophagus fused; despite surgery, his inability to hold down solid food has kept his weight to 20 pounds. His internal problems include hydrocephalus and a heart in the wrong place. Cedrick also suffers from Goldenhar's syndrome. The left half of his face is shrunken, with a missing ear and a blind eye. His father, Steve Miller, a former Army medic, thinks chemicals damaged his sperm.

KENNEDI

Kennedi was born without a thyroid. If not for the daily hormone treatments, she would die. What disfigures her features, however, is another congenital condition: himangiomas, benign tumors made of tangled blood vessels. Since she was a few weeks old, they have been popping up all over—on her eyelids and lips; in her throat and spinal canal. Laser surgery shrinks them, but they return again and again. They distort her speech, threaten her life. Her parents suspect that Kennedy's troubles have their origins in the Gulf, where Darrell served as an Army paratrooper. During operations Desert Shield and Desert Storm, he faced a mind-boggling array of environmental hazards. Like an estimated 45,000 of his comrades, he has developed symptoms—in this case, asthma and recurring pneumonia—linked to an elusive affliction known as Gulf War syndrome. And like a growing number of Gulf War veterans, some of whom remain apparently healthy, he has fathered a child with devastating birth defects.

scientists and veterans allege, the military's own investigation is deeply flawed. The future of this country's year when committee chair Don Riegle retired ["spontaneously"?]. Of the 400 sick vets who had already answered committee inquiries, a startling 65 percent reported birth defects or immune-system problems in children conceived after the war. Although Riegle is gone, there are a few others in Washington fighting for afflicted Gulf War families. One is [John D. III] Rockefeller [not too credible!], but in recent months he has lost clout. After last year's GOP's landslide, he was ousted as chairman of the Veterans Affairs Committee, which produced the 1994 report on PB and vaccine use in the Gulf. The new chair, Alan Simpson [who has since become another "spontaneous" soon-to-be-retiree!]

Then there is Hillary Rodham Clinton, the point person for an administration that, by pushing through a 1994 law mandating benefits for vets with symptoms, has cast itself as a friend of Gulf War syndrome sufferers. [Friends like these are DEFINITELY not to be counted upon for truth or help!]

Richard Arnold, who had fathered two healthy children before he went to war, was working for Lockheed in the Gulf. But he bunked in the desert with the troops—and that meant swallowing, inhaling and otherwise absorbing some very dicey stuff. According to a 1994 report by the General Accounting Office, American soldiers were exposed to 21 potential "reproductive toxicants", any one of which might have harmed them as well as their future children. They used diesel fuel to keep down sand. They marched through smoke from burning oil wells. They doused themselves with bug sprays. They handled a toxic nerve-gas decontaminant, ethylene glycol monomethyl ether. They fired shells tipped with depleted uranium.

FINDING THE CAUSE: PB PLUS PESTICIDES?

LEA'

Lea' was born with spina bifida, a split in the backbone that causes paralysis and hydrocephalus, or water on the brain. She cannot move her legs or roll over. A shunt drains fluid from her skull. Her father, Richard Arnold, went to the Gulf as a civilian helicopter mechanic with the Army's 1st Cavalry Division. Huge medical bills—and the unwillingness of insurance companies to cover preexisting conditions—force the family to live in poverty to qualify for Medicaid.

Some physicians who have treated Gulf vets believe they may be suffering from a general overload of chemical pollutants—and that their body fluids are actually toxic. Other doctors, while agreeing that chemicals or radiation may have caused birth defects, think the vets' ills came from a germ—an unknown Iraqi biological warfare agent, perhaps, or some form of leishmaniasis, a disease carried by sand flies.

Government scientists generally discount these theories. "The hard cold facts" are simply not there, says Dr. Robert Roswell, executive director of the Persian Gulf Veterans Coordinating Board. "The one argument that does deserve further study [concerns] the combination of pyridostigmine bromide with pesticides." Pyridostigmine bromide—or PB—is a drug usually prescribed to sufferers of myasthenia gravis, a degenerative nerve disease. But animal experiments have shown that pretreatment with PB may also provide some protection from the nerve gas soman. The U.S. military therefore gave the drug to most Americans in the Gulf. The Defense Department may have been taking a big chance with PB. In earlier, small-scale safety trials, Air Force pilots had reported serious side effects, including impaired breathing, vision, stamina and short-term memory. Even more alarming, PB was known to worsen the effects of some kinds of nerve gas. Nonetheless, as war threatened, the Pentagon persuaded the Food and Drug Administration to waive its prohibition on testing a drug for new purposes without the subjects' "informed consent". Mary Pendergast defends that ruling: "You can't have your troops being the ones to decide whether they'll take some step to keep themselves healthy."

If PB did cause lasting problems, the reason could be the way it interacts with bug spray. In 1993, James Moss, a scientist with the U.S. Department of Agriculture, found that when cockroaches are exposed to PB along with the common insect repellent DEET—used in the Gulf—the toxicity of both chemicals is multiplied. Moss says he pursued his experiments in spite of orders to stop. His contract wasn't renewed when it expired last year, and the researcher claims he was blackballed.

Pentagon officials deny that any PB-DEET mixture could have caused birth defects in male Gulf vets' children. Clearly, further research is needed to determine whether a PB-and-bug-spray combo can behave the same way.

INOCULATIONS?

150,000 soldiers took a vaccine against weapon-borne anthrax. A second vaccine, against botulism, was administered to 8,000 soldiers. A staff report issued last December by the Senate Committee on Veterans Affairs concluded that Persian Gulf veterans were... ordered under threat of Article 15 or court-martial, to discuss their vaccinations with no one, not even with medical professionals needing the information to treat adverse reactions from the vaccine." The Senate report noted that the particular botulinum toxoid issued "was not approved by FDA."

Whatever the White House fact finders discover, there's no guarantee that Gulf War babies will get government help. As it stands, a soldier's children receive free medical care only as long as a parent remains in the service. For parents who return to civilian life, the going can be grim. Moreover, the government's record on earlier military health grievances is hardly reassuring. Soldiers unwittingly used in radiation experiments in the 1950s, for instance, had to fight the VA for compensation until the 1980s. And Vietnam veterans claim that scientists manipulated evidence to hide the ravages of Agent Orange. [End of

quoting.]

On the surface, this article seemed sympathetic to this issue, but what did they leave out? How about the evidence that points to the DELIBERATE nature of these crimes against humanity? LIFE magazine wasn't about to tell you why "wars" like the Desert Storm are an essential item in the New World Order agenda. (For a memory refresher, see Depopulation of a Planet, Part II by Rick Martin in the December 5, 1995 issue of CONTACT, especially the Report from Iron Mountain on page 12.) Neither did they mention NWO's goals of destabilization, demoralization, and destruction of our society, all of which are "nicely" fed by a diseased and poverty-stricken populace.

With regard to the headline for this article, I am being nudged to remind you that, in Truth, there are no victims. As Sananda said in the PHOENIX OPERATOR-OWNER MANUAL (page 40), "ALL ARE RESPONSIBLE FOR ALL WHICH OCCURS WITHIN THEIR MANIFESTED ILLUSION..." Even the children in this article "chose" their challenges as learning opportunities before they entered this third-dimensional prison planet. That certainly doesn't excuse the perpe-traitors of these crimes, and who knows what challenges await them upon THEIR next trip to Earth—or wherever.

GULF WAR HYPOCHONDRIA

This article from the January 19 issue of the CHICAGO TRIBUNE suggests that Gulf War Syndrome is the result of the power of suggestion, [quoting:]

A "nocebo" is a negative placebo. That is, while a placebo pill makes you feel better though unbeknownst to you, it's only made of sugar, a nocebo makes you feel bad though physiologically speaking it shouldn't be able to. [T]he nocebo effect is a major player in some of today's biggest health scares.

When a newspaper at which I worked moved to a new building somebody told the librarian there was formaldehyde in her new library bookshelves. Formaldehyde is a suspected human carcinogen and the librarian knew this. Soon she was suffering from a headache, aching joints and labored breathing—all classic psychosomatic symptoms. But then she heard there was no formaldehyde in the shelves. Suddenly the symptoms disappeared. Apparently the final word on the shelves was that they did contain formaldehyde but the librarian remained blissfully ignorant of this and hence free of symptoms. [There are certainly a lot of flaws in HIS logic, namely: a lack of short-term, discernible symptoms does NOT guarantee that there are no disease processes developing in the librarian at the subclinical level. It also sounds like "ignorance is bliss" is the way to go—the less you know, the healthier you'll be?? No thanks.]

Now three years old, Jayce was born with hands and feet attached to twisted stumps. He also had a hole in his heart, a hemophilia-like blood condition and underdeveloped ear canals. Doctors recently amputated his legs at the knees to make it easier to fit him with prosthetics. But learning to walk on prosthetic legs is difficult without arms to use for balance. During the war, His father, Paul Hanson breathed heavy oil smoke; he stopped taking PB (pyridostigmine bromide) pills early because they made him dizzy. Now he suffers regularly from headaches, nausea, tightness in the chest.

"We think nocebo has a powerful effect," says AHF (American Health Federation) president Ernst Wynder, "particularly if the suggestion is made by your doctor and then your lawyer and then the newspaper." Examples? consider Gulf War Syndrome. Tens of thousands of Gulf War vets are now claiming

"We think nocebo has a powerful effect," says AHF (American Health Federation) president Ernst Wynder, "particularly if the suggestion is made by your doctor and then your lawyer and then the newspaper." Examples? consider Gulf War Syndrome. Tens of thousands of Gulf War vets are now claiming that something they were exposed to in the Gulf is making them ill. Their list of symptoms totals more than 75, with the most common being the classic psychosomatic symptoms such as the librarian suffered. Yet study after study [done by your damage-controlling government] showed that Gulf War vets have no more discernible illness than one would expect in a group of that size and age category. [It gets worse:] Curiously, virtually none of the sick soldiers complained for the first couple of years after the war. [This writer doesn't know much about the workings of the human body—like that it can take time for symptoms to present.] Then reservists began to say they were sick but the active-duty soldiers still had no complaints. That's when it hit the newspapers and television, with every news report stating emphatically that the syndrome was real. [Did any of you hear this validation in the mainstream media?] suddenly the active-duty soldiers were falling ill, too. [The suggestion is then made that many soldiers hope to gain lifetime disability pay and/or make lots of money in a class-action suit designed to hit the "deep pockets" of various chemical companies.]

Can the nocebo effect be cured? Sure. The media, the courts, and the general public need to take a healthy dose of skepticism. This won't be a popular remedy; it's not as emotionally gratifying as blaming bad guys (corporations, government) or as financially rewarding as suing them. But then, the best medicine seldom tastes good. It's just good for us. [I would refer the author of this article, Michael Fumento, to the previous article. Were the children's birth defects also the result of the parents' hypochondria? This is an example of a valid concept, i.e., the power of the mind to create, based on what it believes to be true—taken down the primrose path! But just in case he's right, please give this article to any vets you know suffering from Gulf War Syndrome in the hopes that, in learning that it's psychosomatic, their maladies will all disappear.]

ANTI-MALARIAL SUCCESS

More misery in Africa, from the January 20 issue of the GLOBE AND MAIL, [quoting:]

Medical researchers working in Cameroon in West Africa are reporting a 100 percent cure rate among malaria patients taking an experimental drug called pyronaridine, says the British medical journal Lancet. The patients all had falciparum malaria, the most severe form of the disease. By contrast, patients in the study who took the most widely prescribed drug, chloroquine, had a cure rate of only 44 percent. However, the result is not wholly encouraging. New antimalarial drugs are constantly needed, since the parasites that cause the disease quickly develop drug resistance. Chloroquine, the first-choice medication since the 1940s, has stopped working in parts of Africa and Asia, and resistance is also developing to some backup treatments. Malaria causes 1.5 million to 2.7 million deaths annually, mostly of young children.

MENINGITIS REPORTS NATIONWIDE

News of deadly meningitis outbreaks have come into The News Desk from Florida, Texas, and Los Angeles. This article comes from the January 25 issue of the LOS ANGELES TIMES, [quoting:]

Four people have died in Los Angeles County since January 1 from a virulent form of meningitis that is being linked to what doctors are calling the worst flu season in years. The deaths, including that of an infant, have been caused by meningococcus, a deadly form of bacteria that can be treated with antibiotics but can kill quickly if not properly diagnosed.

Although the deadly form of meningitis is not related to influenza, it occurs in heavy flu seasons when a person's immune system may have been weakened by a viral infection...[Does it make sense then, that if ones wanted to introduce a deadly disease, it could most effectively be done on the heels of a "little" cold or flu?] [End of quoting.]

From Florida, in the January 30 issue of THE ORLANDO SENTINEL, [quoting:]

Civilian and military health officials have vaccinated at least 9,000 children in an effort to halt an outbreak of meningitis that has killed one youngster in the Florida Panhandle. Many of the children in the target area [TARGET AREA?!] are dependents of military personnel at Eglin Air Force Base and adjacent Hurlburt Field. The Air Force supplied vaccine and medical personnel to assist public health nurses and emergency medical technicians in giving the inoculations Saturday and Monday. [End of quoting.]

And in Texas, from the January 27 issue of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, [quoting:]

Before 8 a.m. yesterday, grim-faced parents began lining up at Fossil Hill Middle School—some with children, some alone. Hundreds came to obtain doses of an antibiotic that protects against meningitis and meningococemia, the disease that killed eighth-grader Kristi Burbach on Monday and hospitalized a classmate [in less than 24 hours] and his young sister. Physicians and other health authorities on hand told parents that the antibiotic, rifampin, will protect against the diseases. [Experience has, hopefully, taught us to be skeptical of what we are told by our governmental agencies, as demonstrated by the letter-to-the-editor that follows:]

BALTO: NOT WHAT YOU THINK

From the January 6 issue of the LOS ANGELES TIMES, [quoting:]

The movie Balto is advertised as being based on the true story of a sled dog who brought life-saving vaccine to Alaska in the early '20s. However, in the 1949 book The Drug Story, an exposé of the pharmaceutical industry, author Morris Bealle told another version of the incident. Manufacturers of the diphtheria vaccine, needing a way to bolster sagging sales, decided to hype a supposed outbreak of the illness in Nome, Alaska. Although their drug could easily have been flown in, it was deemed more newsworthy to send it by dog sled, where the media could excitedly report each day's progress. The cutest dog was selected to lead and was given the catchy name Balto. After what was more a grim ordeal than heroic adventure, the medicine arrived in Nome. Unfortunately, Nome only had a few sniffles and sore throats common to the season. Embarrassed vaccine promoters announced they'd perform wide-scale vaccination anyway to prevent any future epidemic, an effort that ended up causing the biggest outbreak of diphtheria in Nome's history. Stace Aspey, Long Beach. [Not much has changed, has it?]

ANNOUNCING THE FORMATION OF THE INTERNATIONAL GULF WAR ILLNESS COALITION

Peter Kawaja proudly announces the formation of the "International Gulf War Illness Coalition", dedicated to finding the causes and cures of Gulf War Syndrome. We maintain a database on diseases and deaths associated with the Persian Gulf War. This includes all soldiers (worldwide) of the Gulf War "era", family members, civilians, and indigenous peoples in the former war zone. Please send any information you may have concerning deaths and illnesses you think are associated with or may be caused by the Persian Gulf War. This group is being run (operated) by Gulf War Veterans and civilian volunteers. We are soliciting the help of everyone globally, to participate. You do not have to be a veteran. Gulf War Veterans themselves will answer your phone calls and tell you in their own words, what happened to them. Help will be available in every state across the nation so that someone in your local calling area will be there to answer your questions and provide comfort and intelligent answers that mean something to you. Those suffering from AIDS and CFIDS are encouraged to call and/or participate in disseminating information. Your generous donations will go to help sick Gulf War Veterans and support this group, so that it can continue to function and help everyone who is at risk. It is time for you to understand that no one is immune, no one is secure. There are precautions you can take, but even if you live and you are the only person left alive and everyone else is dead, what have you to live for? "We" must educate the public, that is our mission. Become involved now, before we have to face something worse than the deaths of millions such as was caused by the Bubonic Plague of the First World War. PLEASE become involved now. Banking, Money & Rats Jumping Ship

2/7/96 #1 HATONN

EACH DAY

Each morning brings a new cycle of lighted hours. Within these hours most of the activities take place—but, you will find the more dastardly adventures take place in the dark hours so that “nobody sees”. God is with you night or day so what do YOUR nighttime hours hold that you hide away from your brothers? What do you continue TO TRY to hide from God Creator? Ultimately it will be the latter that holds intent upon which judgment of this journey revolves. You may, however, always KNOW that you can have assurance of HIS presence and that if you walk with HIM, and look to HIM, and expect help from HIM, HE will never fail thee or me! We always are the ones, if failure is present, who fail HIM—for he is ever the rock upon which we may find rest, security and passage.

If you consider that “it will be a cold day in Hell and/or you will do something as soon as Hell freezes over...”, consider the seriousness of your “NOW” for there are a couple of places named as villages, Hell—and this winter they have frozen solid! It is very definitely wise to consider the FACTS as they ARE and get out of La-La-Land.

BANKS AND MONEY

As we go along and write on such things as old happenings within the banking industry I lose a lot of you viewers to the old saw: “What has that to do with [choose one]: “me”, “anything”, “the New World Church Order”, “the Protocols”, “the taking of our land(s)” and you name it...!? Especially comes the “what can an article in 1957 have to do with me in 1996?” Everything! It was before the turn of the century last, that is the hub of all that is taking place NOW. And, I have a couple of things to tell you who would think you can just go in now and topple such as the Federal Reserve, the Treasury, etc. You cannot accomplish much as it is and as you are attempting to do it.

The Federal Reserve just got slapped with a FOUR TRILLION DOLLAR “lien” or challenge against them—from NEW MEXICO. Factual? I suppose so for certainly they owe you-the-people more than that! However, in researching liens and current ongoing possibilities, our staff has been checking what is happening and where complaints are filed and to where they go and what is done with them. Mr. Martin is writing on the subject so he talked to the Top Banana at the Fed only to be told with great laughter that “some nuts from New Mexico have filed a four trillion dollar something against the Fed Reserve just recently...” Mr. Martin asked what happens with such claims and charges and the answer was “nothing”. We toss them in the “Nut File”. EVERY governmental office also has a “Nut File”. You will also have to REMEMBER: MOST OF THE PEOPLE WORKING WITHIN THE SYSTEM AND IN THEIR OWN OFFICES HAVE NO IDEA OF WHAT IS OR IS NOT LEGAL, PROPER, PRIVATE, PUBLIC OR OTHERWISE.

People start doing a “search” on some claims or something and, through the maze of non-collections, etc., you can find myriads of possible “claims”—but dear ones, the statute of limitations has expired on most collections, i.e., utilities, etc. The old gold claims may not have actually “expired” but there is no gold so they are certainly treated as EXPIRED, and go into the “Nut File”. Is it not TIME to harvest the nuts? Both the kind which can serve your nation and the nit-wits who do SILLY THINGS and hurt you more than help? You or anyone can stand back and throw spit-balls at the wardens of your prison, but if you plan to change a system you have to be wiser than the target, and YOU HAVE TO KNOW WHAT YOU ARE DOING!

The Federal Reserve, as a for instance, is a PRIVATE CORPORATION and therefore you can know the only attachment to the National Government is through illusion. The Treasury head is PAID through the International Monetary Fund—NOT THE U.S.A. FUNDS. Therefore, to do anything with the Feds, who are the foreclosure office in the U.S., you have to go to the IMF World Bank to achieve ANYTHING. That in turn is going to require going through a collection through the bank doing the foreclosure receivership for the U.S. (oh, didn't they tell you—the U.S. has filed formal bankruptcy with its creditors!!!??!!) You are going to have to work through the more silent avenues for any type of collection and you will need banks big enough in countries powerful enough to make collections take place. These things are going to topple the minute the national debt is in default! Mr. Rubin DOES NOT work for you-the-people; HE IS A MASTER PRINTER FOR HIS OWN: THE INTERNATIONAL MONETARY FUND WORLD BANK AND THOSE BANKSTERS. BY THE WAY, EVERY MANIPULATION TAKING PLACE WITH BUDGETS, CURRENCY OR WHATEVER ELSE “SEEMS” TO RUN A GOVERNMENT AND NATION IS ONLY AN ILLUSION. THE U.S.A. AND ALL THE “FREE” WORLD IS DOWN FLAT ON THE MAT FOR THE FINAL “COUNT”.

Somebody called and said something would be happening on the 10th and something else on the 14th and that the BANKS WOULD BE SHUT DOWN, ZIPPED UP AND CLOSED ON FEBRUARY 22, 1996! What does that mean? It means that somebody thinks they have valid information, offers disinformation/misinformation, knows that of which they speak, and it will or won't happen. I would certainly think that, in all instances, take it seriously and check your gauges, measure your indicators, check your survival gear, check your backup resource placement, clear the decks and the market and expect whatever comes.

LITTLE RATS JUMPING SHIP

Your congressmen and congressladies are jumping ship as quickly as the little rats can do so and suddenly have a great need to relax AT HOME or FAR AWAY with their loving families. Forget it, brethren, they are getting their pink slips in brown envelopes with the announcement that the Fifth Column has control of their bribe accounts in such as Switzerland and Austria, hither and yon offshore, and has actually transferred the dirty money into a great big ESCROW account for use of THE PEOPLE as soon as determination can be made as to who are the honest “people” and who are just more dirty bounders. As these brown envelopes arrive the whole of the transactions are shown and the receivers are given options of immediate action: get out or be totally destroyed by their greed. They are not given “no accounting” as an option—only immediate reprieve from imprisonment until later when it can be done properly.

You have to understand that even your nice President and his lady, Billary, have/HAD some of these accounts all over the map. Hillary had hers UNDER THE COVER OF VINCE FOSTER who is now quite dead and that came along AFTER the funds were removed from those Swiss accounts and the paperwork laid before he and his buddies. You see, public viewers, there are a lot of things of good quality that can be done with those massive Cray computers. These things can crunch and break codes of ANYTHING ANYWHERE, and now have done so. Have YOU checked your accounts lately? Little personal computers can do the same but it is untimely. Remember a few years back A VERY LARGE CRAY WENT TO ISRAEL?! And, all those nice satellites furnished by your Shuttle program are set to feed the beast in Belgium. Other beasts are fed from the fuel line but somebody got smart and jammed some of the systems. Will you use this window of opportunity to open your nation for freedom or will the window simply slam shut without even ability to SURVIVE? How is a nation with no industry, no jobs, NO WELFARE, no Social Security and BANKRUPT to keep on “stayin' alive”?

Am I just doing more of my “fear mongering”? No, this is just the way IT IS.

ONE WORLD CHURCH ORDER

[QUOTING, PART 15:]

PANIC, INFLATION CYCLES, ABSURD CURRENCIES

[H: It has been a while since the "big one" called the depression which was another manipulation and certainly not a "market" anything. It was a perpetration against you-the-people as these things always are in actuality of happenings. And, moreover, it seems you-the-people don't even understand WHAT happens and therefore, another "lesson" on scary rollercoaster rides is perhaps in order as a reminder of things which only the elder citizens may well remember, tucked in there between the "Great Wars".]

A LESSON FROM HISTORY

From: Self-Reliant, June/July 1983.

Just how scary can a ride on the inflation roller coaster be? Let us start with the end of an inflationary cycle and work back. To see what hyperinflation looks like, let us consider the one in Germany in the early 1920s. [H: You have to realize that this is but an example for in that period you had an "inflationary" depression—THIS DEPRESSION WILL BE "DEFLATIONARY" IN ITS PRESENTATION]. As for all those who say it couldn't happen here, suspend your judgment a moment and think of the extent of the debt to be liquidated in present-day America compared with the relatively small debt and reparation payments confronting Germany after World War I.

* The quantity of paper "marks" circulating in Germany increased from 2 billion in 1914 to about 500 quintillion at the end of 1923.

* At the peak of the inflation in 1923, the value of money declined 10% an hour until it took one trillion paper marks to equal the purchasing power of one prewar German mark—about 24 cents in U.S. money.

* The cost of a postage stamp for a local letter climbed to 100 billion marks—fifty times the total currency in circulation just ten years before!

* To conserve paper and printing-press time, notes were printed only on one side. Then they appeared in billion- and finally trillion-mark denominations.

* Prices rose so rapidly in 1923 that wages and salaries were paid daily (or even twice a day). Shopping breaks were demanded from employers to facilitate quick spending of earnings.

Is there any relevance in these horror stories? Do things have to get this bad for us? [H: Keep in mind this was written in mid-year 1983, over a decade ago!] Do we have to experience hyperinflation? Couldn't inflation moderate? Some may think it already has but this is short-term window dressing designed to lure back savers. In order for inflation to moderate significantly, long-term problems would have to be solved. Business would have to be willing and able to pay a real reward for savings and banks would have to stop making dubious loans with money they don't have. Also, the politicians would have to curb spending, live within a balanced budget, and stop printing IOUs that they deceptively call money.

Inflation is able to get started and continue because there are always those who feel inflation will moderate and that prices (or at least the rate of price increase) will decline. Over the short run, this remarkable phenomenon actually happens enough times to give substance to such hopes. It is happening now. When there is recession and a lot of people are out of work, prices do temporarily stabilize a little. But we must never forget the bad guys (the politicians, the Federal Reserve, and the banks) and their proclivity to print money and create credit. Whenever these compulsive do-gooders, these happy humanitarians, look like they stopped, be wary. Consider the probability that they are just resting.

THE PANIC STAGE

Historically, the absurdities of unpayable debt, soaring demand for funds, and astronomic interest rates follow a natural progression. This progression does not stop short of a credit shortage so severe that it results in a panic stage in which money is unobtainable at any price. This finally causes enough bankruptcies to stop the bankers' mad quest for profits and end borrowers' unquenchable thirst for borrowing (at least temporarily).

The real business bankruptcies are caused not by the government's deficits themselves, but by soaring interest rates that result from such deficits. This is the way it works: Government purchases and payments (about $700 billion a year) are paid for in two ways: (1) taxes, and (2) the sale of government securities. When government borrows, the less money there is left for other borrowers. These other borrowers must bid for what is left on the available savings by offering higher interest rates. Rising interest rates increase the cost of doing business and decrease business profits. Lower profits slows business and that causes unemployment, making business conditions deteriorate further. As inflation progresses toward a panic stage, corporate liquidity deteriorates to the point that government ends up competing with business for loans that business needs just to survive.

High interest rates are always the other side of the inflationary coin. Why? Because you can't cheat savers forever. Lenders always end up demanding some after-inflation reward for the use of their money. High inflation eventually guarantees even higher interest rates until that rate exceeds what business can earn with borrowed money. At this point business collapses.

[END OF QUOTING]

There is more but I think this covers the picture pretty well for this topic under consideration. It is easily noted that these vicious circles come back on government and there is a shortfall in revenues—every time. If the government gets less taxes because of fewer employed or drops in income, you have the most vicious of all status—NO MONEY FOR ANYTHING!

I have another topic here which I will offer for consideration and that is profits from and in 3rd World loans. Why would I choose this? Because you now have long enough to SEE what has happened in the interim time between 1983 when this following article was written and NOW. You will note, please, that the last big multi-billion "save out" to Mexico worked this way: The payback which was also "borrowed" funds went DIRECTLY INTO THE BANKS FROM WHICH CAME THE ORIGINAL BAIL-OUT LOANS—WITHOUT PASSING "GO" AND WITHOUT PASSING EVEN THE FEDERAL RESERVE "TREASURY"—ALL THIS WHILE YOU SLEPT!!

[QUOTING:]

THE PROFIT IN 3RD WORLD LOANS

Apolonio Batalla, December 6, 1983, M.B.:

According to Beijing Review (issue of Nov. 14.), an official publication of the People's Republic of China, the impact of foreign borrowing on a country depends on how the country utilizes the loans.

An article in that publication cites Singapore, which uses external debt to develop its processing industries. This has strengthened the accumulation of domestic funds, raised the capability of earning foreign exchange through exports, and laid the foundation for heavy industry.

"Some other countries, however, such as Mexico, used more than 75 per cent of their foreign loans for investment in state-owned departments of energy, raw materials, communications and transportation," says the article. "With their heavy investment, long-term cycle, slow turnover of funds and low profits, these departments cannot quickly boost production capability and realize results of investment. Owing to poor management, losses have often been incurred after going into operation. In the mid-1970s Mexico encountered financial difficulty."

The article also cites Brazil, which from 1974-1982 "invested $86 billion in seven large projects with long construction periods, slow efficiency, low profits and poor repayment. And most of the investment came from short-term loans by international private banks."

The article says prior to the completion of these projects, a large amount of debt had become overdue and Brazil had landed itself in a difficult situation.

The article expresses the view that western banks will not step back in the event of a serious weakening of Third World repayment. "Western banks must continue providing loans to maintain their existing creditors' right," the article says. "It is important to remember that Western nations make loans to the Third World in order to meet their [own] long-term economic targets and to serve their [own] fundamental interests."

The article says Western nations can gain high profits by providing loans to the Third World. It notes that between 1971 and 1982, profits from interest paid by Third World countries to Western banks increased from $1,100 million a year to about $35,000 million.

From 1970 through 1976, the article says, the average annual foreign earnings of the 13 largest US banks increased 31 per cent while the domestic earnings of the same banks increased only 4 per cent.

The proportion of foreign profits of the seven largest banks, including Citibank and Chase Manhattan, has increased from 22 per cent of total earnings in 1970 to 55 per cent in 1982, the article says.

Loan capital often earns more in Third World countries than in developed countries, the article says. The article says statistics from the World Bank show that interest rates charged to Third World countries may be 2 to 3 per cent higher than those for developed nations.

The interest earned by a number of big banks from the Third World countries has become the main source of their profits, says the article.

By providing loans to the Third World, the Western nations help develop their own trade and economies, the article says. It says since the '70s Western nations have been depending more and more on the markets of developing countries.

To guarantee that they suffer no losses from existing loans or that they can pursue their economic goals, Western nations must provide further loans to the Third World, the article says. But they will be more cautious than before, the terms will be harsher, and the debt burden of the Third World countries will be heavier.

The debt problem, the article says, will increasingly worsen.

[END OF QUOTING]

I believe we can all concur that this has become so. Just realize that the squeeze is on, the meat is gone from the cow, the milk has dried up and gone and the banks are going to snatch the very food offered the cow in loans, away!

With the foregoing in mind, let us turn to the subject of money to Israel and let us look what happened back in the '80s in the Philippines. You need to realize going into this next presentation that in 1986 when this was written there were 55,000,000 people in the Philippines while Israel's population was only 4,000,000. Look at the shrewd manipulations. You will note please: Total USA [annual] Aid: Philippines: $200,000,000. To Israel: $4,500,000,000.

Philippine 1985 BUDGET: $3,300,000,000. Israel: $23,000,000,000—AND YOU HAVE COME A LONG WAY, BABY, SINCE 1985!

[QUOTING:]

BILLIONS IN ASSETS MISSING.

Chicago Tribune, Wed., March 5, 1986.

MANILA—The head of a commission charged with recovering any wealth illegally accumulated by deposed President Ferdinand E. Marcos said Tuesday that as much as $10 billion may be missing from the treasury and enterprises controlled by Marcos' associates and relatives. [H: This is B.S. but it serves the purpose for this writing.]

Jovito R. Salonga, chairman of Commission on Good Government established by new President Corazon Aquino, told a press conference that "maybe $5 billion to $10 billion" in assets was missing.

By comparison, the Philippine budget in 1985 was only about $3.3 billion. Salonga did not elaborate on what assets were missing or what was believed to have happened. [H: Can you see the misinformation all over this?]

Also, Tuesday, justices of the country's second-highest court, the Court of Appeals, submitted their resignation, and the official Philippine News Agency said at least 5 of the Supreme Court's 12 members also quit. Aquino urged the justices, all appointed by Marcos, to step down. [H: How many Judges do you think are going to resign because they are "lonely for family and rest" in the U.S.A. very soon now? Ah, and probably a lot of attorneys are going to get out of the business too, I would suspect.]

Justice Minister Neptali Gonzales said Court of Appeals Justice Ramon Gaviola met with Aquino to submit 18 resignations and assured her all of the court's 38 justices would step down. But presidential spokesman Rene Saguisag said no resignations have been received from the Supreme Court.

In setting up the Commission on Good Government, Aquino charged it with recovering "all ill-gotten wealth" accumulated by Marcos and his friends and relatives, "including the takeover or sequestration of all business enterprises and entities owned or controlled by them during his administration... by taking undue advantage of their powers."

Marcos has been reported to own real estate worth millions of dollars in New York and Britain. When he fled to Hawaii last Wednesday, he took 22 crates believed to contain cash and valuables, including more than $1.1 million worth of Philippine currency.

Attorneys for the Philippines' Central Bank said Monday they will receive an inventory of the crates' contents from the U.S. Customs Service.

The bank has filed a suit in Honolulu charging that Marcos and his entourage of about 90 Filipinos took money illegally from the country when they fled in the face of a military rebellion.

Lawyers for the Philippine government on Sunday obtained a court order in New York temporarily barring the sale or transfer of five properties allegedly owned or controlled by Marcos, including a Long Island estate.

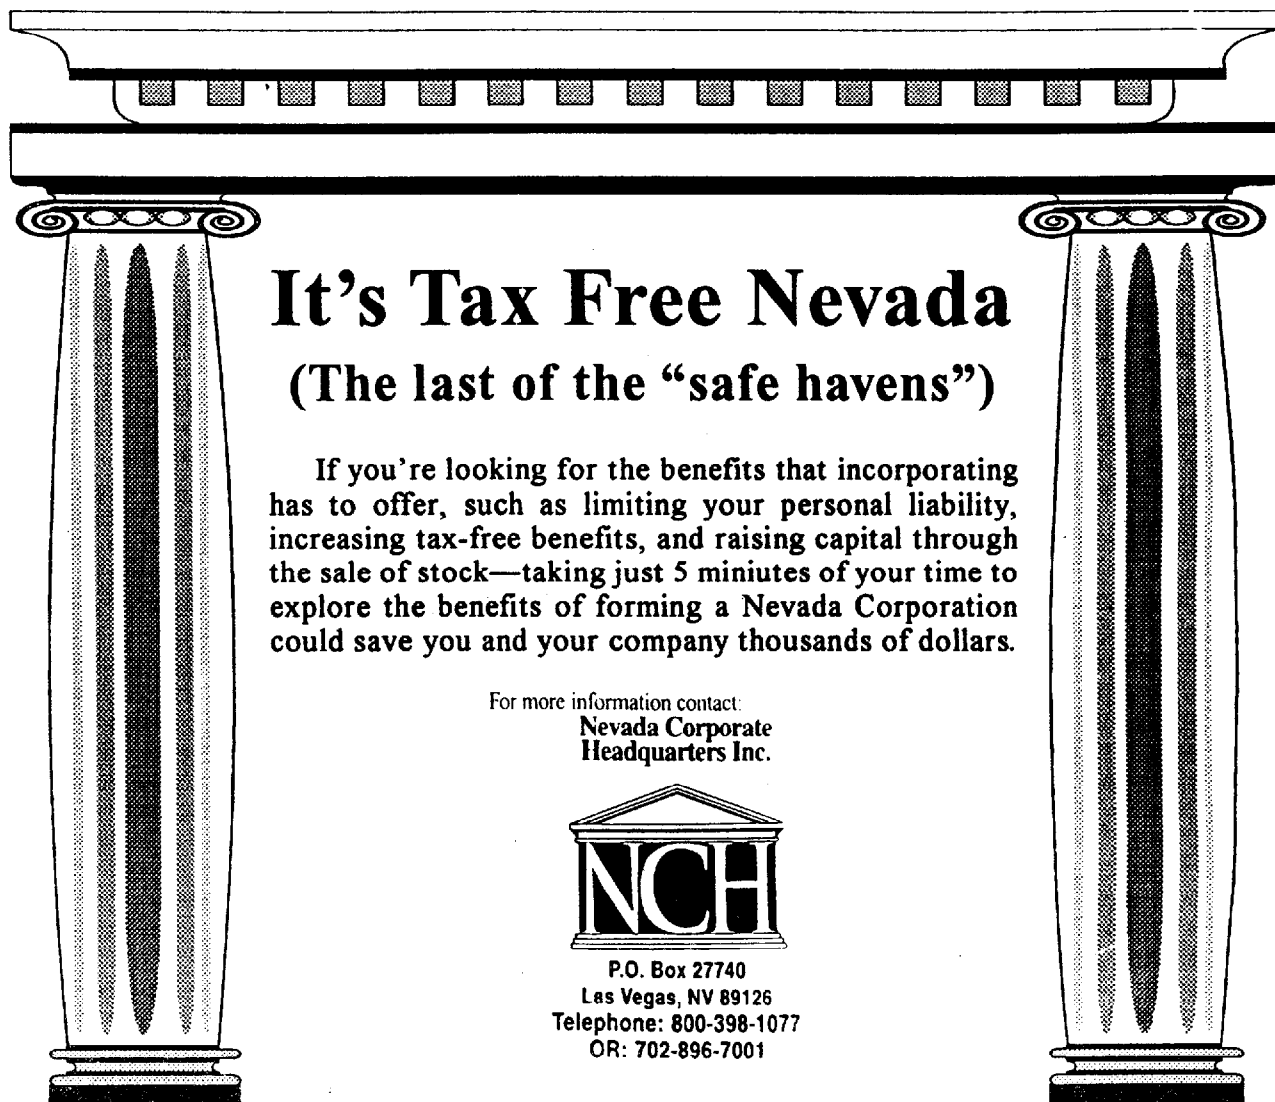

Salonga said the government would seize the Manila Electric Co., which was taken over by relatives of Marcos' wife, Imelda, by a legal pretext under martial law in 1972. He did not specify whether the company would be returned to its former owners.

As president, Marcos' annual salary was about $5,000. In denying charges of corruption, he always said whatever wealth he had came from his lucrative law practice before becoming president.

Salonga said his investigation was likely to involve legal action in the United States, Latin America, Switzerland and Britain. "We understand there are deposits in Brazilian banks," he said.

Meanwhile, hundreds of supporters of Vice Mayor Johnny Wilson of the Manila financial district of Makati demonstrated Tuesday against the Aquino government's appointment of Jejomar Binay as "officer-in-charge" after the death of Makati Mayor Nemesio Yabut.

The protest was one of several against Aquino's moves to oust Marcos supporters from both local and national government.

Aquino said in an interview with the Associated Press that some officials were being replaced because they had used terrorism to intimidate voters in the fraud-tainted Feb. 7 presidential election.

Aquilino Pimentel, the new minister of local government, said fewer than 10 mayors had been fired, but that more dismissals were forthcoming.

[END OF QUOTING]

And now, a look at Israel from an AP article of April 29, 1985:

[QUOTING:]

ISRAEL ANSWERS U.S.
ON REFORMS

TEL AVIV [AP]—Prime Minister Shimon Peres has written to Washington, responding to economic reforms that the Reagan administration wants before backing Israel's request for $1.5 billion more in emergency aid.

An Israeli official, who spoke on the condition he not be identified, said Peres' letter was sent to Secretary of State George Shultz last week. The official said the letter did not detail Israeli economic policy, but he replied to the "Document of 10 Points".

The 10 points were contained in a position paper given the Israeli government by U.S. economic professors Stanley Fischer and Herbert Stein, a former chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, in Israel recently to examine the economic situation.

They were written as general recommendations for Israeli economic reform, and they reportedly include proposals to hold inflation to a monthly target and to control the money supply. Israel's inflation rate peaked at 445 percent last year.

Peres agreed with the proposal about inflationary targets and said additional controls would be imposed if the targets were exceeded, the official said. But he said the letter did not define the target figures or what measures would be used.

Shultz, scheduled to visit next month, has said the reforms are needed because any increase in U.S. aid would be swallowed up in servicing Israel's foreign debt, which stands at more than $24 BILLION.

Israeli officials have said that present U.S. civilian economic aid, which was $1.4 billion last year, just covers debt servicing to the United States. [H: Ah, but nobody even mentions the $3 BILLION GIFT TO ISRAEL EVERY YEAR—IN CASH WHICH THEY IMMEDIATELY PLACE IN INTEREST-BEARING U.S. TREASURY DEBT (THE HIGHEST INSTRUMENTS AVAILABLE) WITH THAT CASH.]

The U.S. administration already has approved $3 billion in military and civilian aid for 1986, up from $2.6 billion this year. The House Foreign Affairs Committee has voted for $1.5 billion in emergency aid, and the full House is due to take up the bill next week.

The Israeli official said, however, that the government would use a combination of monetary, taxation and administrative measures as it saw fit.

He said that Peres' letter did not mention specific measures to control the money supply but that tighter controls were implicit in the government's intent to pass a new Bank of Israel law.

The government is expected to finance a $3 billion deficit in this year's $23 billion budget by borrowing from the Bank of Israel, a practice that the central bank itself wants abolished.

[H: People, if you don't wake up now, what hope can there be for any future at all?]

[QUOTING ANOTHER ARTICLE:]

IMF SAYS:
BOOKS OFF BY BILLIONS

Associated Press, March 31, 1987. (Chicago Times)
WASHINGTON [AP]—In the first half of the 1980s the world lost—or maybe just misplaced—more than $388 billion, according to figures collected by the International Monetary Fund. It calls this sum a "discrepancy", something like the $7.86 you can't find in checking your monthly bank statements against the canceled checks.

Adding up the figures of their 151 member countries, the fund's bookkeepers totaled $388 billion more in debits than in credits for the years 1980 through

Spelt

New Gaia Presents Bread Mixes, Flour & Kernels

Spelt is the most ancient and very best grain. Spelta (its more formal name) is a grain of its own unique being. It is the best fiber resource and has large amounts of B-17 (anti-carcinoma). The grain berry grows an exceptionally thick husk that protects it from pollutants and insects. It is stored with its husks intact, so it remains fresher. Thus, unlike other grains, it is not normally treated with pesticides or other chemicals. The strong, protective husk may also be a metaphorical signature of this grain's capacity to strengthen immunity. Spelt contains special carbohydrates (Mucopolysaccharides) which are an important factor in blood clotting and stimulating the body's immune system.

New Gaia offers Bread Mixes that use pure Spelt flour instead of wheat. The taste is uniquely nutty and enjoyable for the whole family. Also offered are combination Bread Mixes with both Spelt flour and whole wheat flour. Both are perfect for a 2 lb. loaf of bread which can be utilized in the Hitachi Bread Machine or others of its equal. The mixes are easy to use with only the simple addition of water, butter & sweetener. The packages come in 2 lb. sizes only.

BERRY, BRAN, AND MILLET STEW

- 1/2 c. whole spelt berries, soaked overnight in water to cover
- 1/2 c. barley
- 1/2 c. red lentils
- 1/2 c. millet
- 2 carrots, sliced
- 1 1/2 c. chopped rutabaga
- 2 stalks celery, sliced
- 1 large onion, chopped
- 3 cloves garlic, minced
- 1/2 c. minced parsley
- 2 tsp. salt
- 1/4 tsp. pepper
- 1 1-lb. can tomatoes, chopped and undrained

Place all ingredients in a large pot, fully covering them with water. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat, cover, and simmer for 3 hours, checking pot occasionally and adding more water as necessary (the grains will absorb a lot of liquid).

This recipe is from a CONTACT reader...please send recipes to New Gaia for possible future publication. Thank you.

Also available are whole spelt flour packages for your baking and home-made bread needs that come in 2 lb., 4 lb. and 8 lb. sizes.

You may also order the whole spelt kernels that can be milled at home into flour. These come in 4 lb. and 10 lb. bags.

1984. [H: BY THE WAY, READERS, THERE HAS NEVER BEEN AN AUDIT OF THE FEDERAL RESERVE. HOW MUCH MISSING MONEY DO YOU THINK WOULD BE FOUND?] The discrepancy began to show in the late 1970s, peaking, as an annual figure, at $113.9 billion in 1982. Though the yearly figures have gone down since, a report that the fund plans to publish in June will say that the total is still large.

The last figure available is for 1984: $98.8 BILLION.

Because the sums are so big, the fund is worried. It points out that the figures cast doubt on all its huge compilations of statistics, on the conclusions about the world's economic situation that it draws from those compilations and on its subsequent suggestions on what to do.

So three years ago, the fund appointed a "working party", headed by Pierre Esteva, a high-level official in the French ministry of finance, to look for the money, or at least to come up with some ideas about what happened to it. A summary of the group's work appeared in the "IMF Survey", a fund publication, earlier this month.

Investment income turned out to be a major problem.

"Countries receiving capital were able to identify and record income payments, while countries whose residents placed funds abroad had an incomplete record of receipts," the summary said.

The summary does not mention capital flight, the widespread practice of people in countries with shaky economies sending their money somewhere safe without telling their own governments about it.

They often choose the United States or Switzerland. That way, they lose nothing if their governments devalue their currencies. On the contrary, they make a pile if they bring their money home after the devaluation.

Capital flight is illegal in some places; in others it's just considered "portfolio diversification". Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. estimates that between 1983 and 1985, moneyed people in 10 Latin American debtor countries sent $44.2 billion abroad.

Nor does the summary mention sending money abroad that has been earned through drug sales or other illicit activity. People in those businesses avoid close contact with their countries' tax and trade officials.

Legitimate businesses also may fail to report. The General Accounting Office, which makes investigations for Congress, said earlier this month that it surveyed 1,679 businesses and found 559 of them listed smaller amounts of interest and dividends on their income tax returns than they actually received.

Another problem is posed by "offshore" financial centers—places like Liechtenstein and the Cayman Islands, where the governments make a point of knowing nothing about businesses registered under their laws. They "complicate the tracing of funds", the summary said.

So do new financial devices that shift assets from banks to "non-banks" such as pension funds and insurance companies.

"The debtor often does not know whether the creditor is a resident or nonresident," the summary complains.

[END OF QUOTING]

Now, this next may not seem so connected at first glance, but it certainly is definitely a part of the WHOLE picture if you go back in memory to the writings on the Vatican Bank and associated banking entities. For your entertainment [in case you missed it last time]:

[QUOTING:]

ROTHSCHILD'S SWISS BANK UNDER FIRE; TOP OFFICER BLOWS THE WHISTLE

"Pristine" Rothschild Bank of Zurich is suing fired top executive for divulging secrets; hires PR experts and threatens Swiss press against publicizing details.

January 10, 1993 from Wall Street Journal, Dec. 11, 1992:

Even the Rothschilds, Europe's banking dynasty, are not immune to scrutiny. In fact, they are facing an unprecedented and unlikely threat to their well-being.

Juerg Heer was a senior executive and credit manager at the private Rothschild Bank AG in Zurich from 1972 until he was arrested in late July. He often worked closely with the then-chairman, Baron Elie de Rothschild, dealing with the financial affairs of some of Europe's rich and famous. Becoming affluent himself, Juerg Heer amassed a collection of 80 vintage cars and filled his house with art by Jean Tinguely, Andy Warhol and Alberto Giacometti.

Now the bank says that some of Heer's wealth was stolen, charging that over a period of years he deceived directors, breaking the bank's rules by making improper loans to companies that have since failed. He got kickbacks for providing the loans, the bank says, which estimates damage to its business at 220 million Swiss francs ($155 million). The Rothschild Bank is suing him.

Mr. Heer has admitted receiving about $20 million in commissions for the loans in question. But he says many others at the bank knew and approved of his actions. He is so incensed at the way the bank is dealing with him that he is doing what is all but unheard of among Swiss bankers: he is talking.

Since being released from investigative custody a few weeks ago, Mr. Heer has granted a number of interviews to the Swiss, German and Italian media, as well as to the Wall Street Journal of the U.S., in which he paints a devastating picture of the Rothschilds and their Zurich bank. The bank was laxly managed; it operated for years on the fringes of legality and is entangled in some of the biggest financial scandals of recent times, from the Bank of Credit & Commerce to Banco Ambrosiano (a bank that worked closely with the Vatican), so Heer alleged. He told his story to the Sonntagszeitung, a Swiss paper that first reported on the story in November.

Heer describes the Rothschild family as overbearing, fractious and erratic. He says that the Baron Elie de Rothschild, who is now 75 years old and retired, participated personally in lucrative schemes to help rich Italian families evade taxes and, with Mr. Heer's help, concocted a series of front companies that hid the true ownership of the Italian assets behind the Rothschild name. Heer also claims that he and the Baron lied to Italian authorities about the schemes—in court on one occasion.

The Rothschild Bank chose to overlook some of its clients' connections with the criminal underworld, in violation of Swiss law, according to Heer. And he states that he personally handed over $5 million stuffed into a suitcase, which he later was told was for the killer of Roberto Calvi, the former Banco Ambrosiano chairman who was found hanging under Blackfriars Bridge in London in 1982.

Baron Rothschild described Mr. Heer's allegations as "injurious and abstruse", through his lawyer, Max Lebedkin. He declined further comment. The Rothschild Bank denies wrongdoing but will not discuss specific cases, citing banking secrecy laws and investigations.

Having some documentation, Mr. Heer relies mostly on his memory. Some former and current Rothschild officials confirm his descriptions of the sometimes chaotic inner workings of the bank. His allegations that the bank was involved with front companies are also partly corroborated by people involved.

As their top manager makes damning allegations, this poses a serious threat to the Rothschilds. Swiss private banks live on discretion.

"It takes generations to build a reputation and it doesn't take long to damage it," says the new general manager of the Rothschild Bank, Guy Wais. Indeed, some well-to-do clients have closed their accounts. Swiss banking authorities are investigating the Rothschild Bank's affairs, and other private banks are trying to woo away more clients. [H: Do you see what a 5th Column could do with these banks and those accounts of people with DIRTY money?]

"The bank won't survive," says Mr. Heer. "They don't want to close it, but I will make sure of it." He has promised to continue to divulge secrets. Even the sensationalist German tabloid Bild was told of the alleged mistresses of Baron Elie, one of whom says she bore the Baron an illegitimate child. It appears that nothing is taboo in the disclosures.

People familiar with the affairs of the Rothschilds say that the Zurich bank is a major source of the family's profits.

Sir Evelyn de Rothschild is a London-based member of the family who took over from Baron Elie as chairman last year. He contends that Mr. Heer is trying to get a large out-of-court settlement.

"What Heer is saying is blackmail. He's trying to muddy the waters to (imply) that it was all crooked," fumes Sir Evelyn, "but it wasn't."

And Rothschild bank lawyer and board member Peter Hafter complains, "You are basically defenseless," as what Mr. Heer says, "is as harmful if it's wrong as if it's true."

Working to preserve its image, the bank has abandoned its veil of secrecy, engaging a public-relations firm. Besides suing Mr. Heer for breaching bank confidentiality, the Rothschild Bank warns the newspapers of Switzerland that it will take action against them if they should disclose information about bank clients.

Judicial Scrutiny

A Look At Judges & Lawyers

Part IV: Lawyer Self-Regulation?

Part I of Rick's well-researched series on the U.S. legal system appeared in the 1/23/96 issue of CONTACT on page 8; Part II was in the 1/30/96 CONTACT on p. 5; Part III was in the 2/6/96 issue on p. 9. We continue below with this exposé.

2/5/96 RICK MARTIN

"To the people, justice is an ideal, not an instrument of Power. To the people, justice is as Justinian defined it—'the firm and continuous desire to render to everyone that which is his due.' But the legal system is not predominantly attentive to notions of equality and the rights of the individual. The legal system is concerned, instead, with law, and law is pledged to Power. As a consequence, law will most often stand against such human rights as threaten Power. The virulence of Power is not the question. By reason of Power's preoccupation with its own goals, all Power tends to function as if the system were designed to destroy the individual, for Power, by definition, can never permit itself to be subordinated to the individual. As a consequence, justice will be delivered to the people only when it is in the best interests of Power to deliver it." [Gerry Spence, With Justice For None.]

"To an imagination of any scope the most far-reaching form of power is not money, it is the command of ideas. If you want great examples, read Mr. Leslie Stephen's History of English Thought in the Eighteenth Century, and see how a hundred years after his death the abstract speculations of Descartes had become a practical force controlling the conduct of men. Read the words of the great German jurists, and see how much more the world is governed today by Kant than by Bonaparte. We cannot all be Descartes or Kant, but we all want happiness. And happiness, I am sure from having known many successful men, cannot be won simply by being counsel for great corporations and having an income of fifty-thousand dollars. An intellect great enough to win the prize needs other food besides success. The remoter and more general aspects of the law are those which give it universal interest. It is through them that you not only become a great master in your calling, but connect your subject with the universe and catch an echo of the infinite, a glimpse of its unfathomable process, a hint of the universal law." [Oliver Wendell Holmes, The Path of the Law.]

THE JUDGES

In Gerry Spence's, With Justice For None, we read [quoting portions:]

Who are these judges who wield such power over us, a power reserved for God? Who are these mere humans with the power to wrest children from their mothers and to condemn men to death or cage them like beasts in penitentiaries? Who possesses the power to strip us of our professions, our possessions, our very lives? The judges of America have more influence over the course of the nation than Congress and the president. They interpret the laws, apply them, change them to match their private vision of the world, and extend their collective nose into every manner of private or government business.

Judges decide whether the janitor was fired for just cause and whether GM is engaged in price-fixing. They review the hospital board's suspension of your doctor's surgical privileges and decide the constitutionality of the university's enrollment policies that gave a coveted slot to a minority student with lower grades and test scores than your child. They make law. They have the power to force children to be bussed into strange places, make abortion legal, and determine whether a quadriplegic who wants to die may be permitted to do so. They may take away your wife or your good name or your freedom or your fortune or your life. They are omnipotent. And the question is: To whom have we so carelessly granted that power? Are they the kind who would understand you, who from their experiences would know something of the fears and struggles you have faced? Will they care about you or about justice? The profile of the typical American judge is a white, Protestant male of about fifty years of age from an upper middle-class family, who has labored without stellar success as an attorney. He has been in politics, but there he was not a rising star, either. He is more likely to be from a large firm than a small one, and has had, during his practice, a variety of corporate clients but little experience in representing those charged with crimes, those who have been injured, and the poor.

The ascension of the judge to the bench does not, of course, alter his personal history, erase the memories of his experiences, modify his genes, change his parentage, or blot out his prejudices. Every president knows that, and achieves a sort of immortality by extending his influence over the nation through the judges he appoints. Moreover, the mating of a human being to the federal bench seems to produce an offspring that lives approximately forever.

Not long after his second term had begun, President Reagan had already appointed over half of the nation's 744 federal judges, including a new Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court. The profile of these judges is starkly homogeneous: 91.6 percent are men, 92.6 percent white, and 89.5 percent Republican. Nearly twice as many were from moderate to large firms as from small ones, nearly half have been prosecutors, 60 percent went to Ivy League or private law schools, and 64.2 percent are Protestant. Seventy percent of the appeals-court judges and nearly 60 percent of the district-court judges have a net worth of between $200,000 and $1 million, and over 20 percent of the district-court judges and nearly 18 percent of the appeals-court judges appointed by Reagan have a net worth in excess of $1 million. These judges, who as private lawyers represented numerous corporate clients, will now hear the cases of people seeking justice against corporate America; as former prosecutors, they will now sit on the cases of citizens charged by the government with crimes. William Jones once said, "There is very little difference between one man and another; but what little there is, is very important." [End quoting.]

CODE OF PROFESSIONAL RESPONSIBILITY

"A profession to be worthy of the name must inculcate in its members a strong sense of the special obligations that attach to their calling. One who undertakes the practice of a profession cannot rest content with the faithful discharge of duties assigned to him by others. His work must find its direction within a larger frame. All that he does must evidence a dedication, not merely to a specific assignment, but to the enduring ideals of his vocation." Professional Responsibility: Report of the Joint Conference, 44 A.B.A.J. 1159 (1958).

In R. Randall Kelso's book Studying Law: An Introduction, under the heading "The Professional Responsibilities of a Lawyer", we read [quoting, in part:]

The American Bar Association's [OLD] Code Of Professional Responsibility [1969]

Each state is responsible for regulating the professional conduct of lawyers who practice within its borders. The Supreme Court of the state is the agency usually responsible both for promulgating and enforcing the rules of professional conduct.

Lawyers charged with violating a state's code of professional responsibility are brought before a state or local disciplinary committee. Such a committee, typically, has the power to make findings of fact and recommendations to the state Supreme Court regarding censure, suspension, or disbarment. Of course, lawyers can also be prosecuted for criminal conduct arising from their practice, e.g., for stealing a client's money, and lawyers are liable for malpractice and for civil or criminal contempt of court.

In 1969, the American Bar Association recommended a Code of Professional Responsibility (hereafter CPR) to Supreme Courts and other state agencies having responsibilities in disciplinary proceedings. Many courts adopted the CPR. Some states, such as California, used the Code as a source of ideas for locally drafted rules of professional conduct.

Under the conditions of modern practice it is peculiarly necessary that the lawyer should understand, not merely the established standards of professional conduct, but the reasons underlying these standards. In the duties that the lawyer must now undertake, the inherited traditions of the bar often yield but indirect guidance. Principles of conduct applicable to appearance in open court do not, for example, resolve the issues confronting the lawyer who must assume the delicate task of mediating among opposing interests. Where the lawyer's work is of sufficient public concern to become newsworthy, his audience is today often vastly expanded while at the same time the issues in controversy are less readily understood than formerly. While performance under public scrutiny may at times reinforce the sense of professional obligation, it may also create grave temptations to unprofessional conduct.

For these reasons the lawyer stands today in special need of a clear understanding of his obligations and of the vital connection between these obligations and the role his profession plays in society.

The Code of Professional Responsibility is divided into three parts: nine hortatory Canons, followed in each case by Ethical Considerations (EC's) (general guides for desirable conduct), and by Disciplinary Rules (DR's) (fixed standards of conduct on which disciplinary proceedings are based). Most Code provisions accommodate two sets of opposing interests:

(1) self-interests versus the interests of a client, and

(2) duties of candor to the court and other persons, versus duties of loyalty and zeal on behalf of a client.

In dealing with conflicts between a lawyer's self-interest and the interests of a client, the Code prohibits excessive fees, condemns neglect of work, calls on lawyers to carry out contracts of employment, encourages zealous representation, and seeks to steer lawyers away from situations of conflicting interests (accepting employment in a case where professional judgment might be affected by the lawyer's own financial or personal interests). In this area of professional responsibility, the Code's requirements are not much different than the dictates of fairness and common sense (although without a reminder from DR 9-102 a lawyer might not always remember to deposit client funds in a separately identified account.)

Less self-evident is how to resolve the tension between candor and zeal. The Code's premises spring from an analysis of the role of a lawyer in relation to the institutions of our legal system. Distinctions are made in light of whether the lawyer is serving as an advocate, an advisor, an intermediate, a public servant, or a citizen. Whether the case is civil or criminal and whether the client is an adult or a juvenile can also be significant. Some scholars argue that a lawyer, acting as an advocate, can abjure personal responsibility so long as the law is not broken or the circumstances are not extreme (as where the client rushes out of the office declaring an intent to do another bodily harm). Others argue that because truth is such an important value in our system, lawyers should not be "hired guns", and in the interest of truth should be required or permitted to disclose relevant information even if that might be unfavorable to their clients' interests. In meetings of the American Bar Association, this issue has been the focal point of debates over the Model Rules of Professional Conduct, which replaced the Code of Professional Responsibility as the ABA's recommended code. [We will take a look at the new code a little later in the series.] A related debate centers on the extent to which lawyers are morally free to assist clients in taking action that is legal, but, in the opinion of the lawyer, unconscionable.

[Still in the (old) ABA Code of Professional Responsibility, we read:]

DR 4-101 Preservation of Confidences and Secrets of a Client

(A) "Confidence" refers to information protected by the attorney-client privilege under applicable law, and "secret" refers to other information gained in the professional relationship that the client has requested be held inviolate or the disclosure of which would be embarrassing or would be likely to be detrimental to the client.

(B) Except when permitted under DR 4-1-1(C), a lawyer shall not knowingly:

(1) Reveal a confidence or secret of his client.

(2) Use a confidence or secret of his client to the disadvantage of the client.

(3) Use a confidence or secret of his client for the advantage of himself or of a third person unless the client consents after full disclosure.

(C) A lawyer may reveal:

(1) Confidences or secrets with the consent of the client or clients affected, but only after full disclosure to them.

(2) Confidences or secrets when permitted under Disciplinary Rules or required by law or court order.

(3) The intention of his client to commit a crime and the information necessary to prevent the crime.

(4) Confidences or secrets necessary to establish or collect his fee or to defend himself against an accusation of wrongful conduct.

(D) A lawyer shall exercise reasonable care to prevent his employees, associates, and others whose services are utilized by him from disclosing or using confidences or secrets of a client, except that a lawyer may reveal the information allowed by DR 4-101(C), through an employee.

DR 7-102 Representing a Client Within the Bounds of the Law

(A) In his representation of a client, a lawyer shall not:

...(3) Conceal or knowingly fail to disclose that which he is required by law to reveal.

(4) Knowingly use perjured testimony or false evidence.

(5) Knowingly make a false statement of law or fact.

(6) Participate in the creation or preservation of evidence when he knows or it is obvious that the evidence is false.

(7) Counsel or assist his client in conduct that the lawyer knows to be illegal or fraudulent.

(8) Knowingly engage in other illegal conduct or conduct contrary to a Disciplinary Rule.

(B) A lawyer who receives information clearly establishing that:

(1) His client has, in the course of the representation, perpetrated a fraud upon a person or tribunal shall promptly call upon his client to rectify the same, and if his client refuses or is unable to do so, he shall reveal the fraud to the affected person or tribunal, except when the information is protected as a privileged communication.

(2) A person other than his client has perpetrated a fraud upon a tribunal shall promptly reveal the fraud to the tribunal. [End quoting.]

ETHICS

In Gerry Spence's book With Justice For None, we read the following. [Quoting:]

Judge John F. Grady of the United States District Court in Chicago, speaking to the American Bar Association, recently said, "What I see happening is that a growing percentage of the bar is not only primarily concerned with pecuniary gain but is preoccupied with pecuniary gain to the exclusion of everything else...[E]thics," he said, "have been harnessed in the service of pecuniary gain." [End quoting.]

In Black's Law Dictionary [6th Edition], we read, [quoting:]

Ethics. Of or relating to moral action, conduct, motive or character; as, ethical emotion; also, treating of moral feelings, duties or conduct; containing precepts of morality; moral. Professionally right or befitting; conforming to professional standards of conduct. Kraushaar v. La Vin, 181 Misc. 508, 42 N.Y.S.2d 857, 859. Legal ethics. See Canon (Canons of judicial ethics); Code of Professional Responsibility; Legal ethics.

Legal ethics. Usages and customs among members of the legal profession, involving their moral and professional duties toward one another, toward clients, and toward the courts. That branch of moral science which treats of the duties which a member of the legal profession owes to the public, to the court, to his professional brethren, and to his client. Most states have adopted the Model Rules of Professional Conduct of the American Bar Association. See also Canon.

Canon. A law, rule, or ordinance in general, and of the church in particular. An ecclesiastical law or statute. A rule of doctrine or discipline. A criterion or standard of judgment. A body of principles, standards, rules or norms.

In England, a cathedral dignitary, appointed sometimes by the Crown and sometimes by the bishop.

Canons of judicial ethics. Standards of ethical conduct for members of the judiciary. Such were initially adopted by the American Bar Association and later by most states. [End quoting.]

CONSIDER THIS: EVIDENCE—ETHICAL QUICKSAND

Richard Vilkin, in the June 26, 1982 edition of The National Law Journal, presents the following example for consideration. [Quoting, in part:]

It's the end of a rather boring day of poring over interrogatories. A new client walks into your office carrying a paper bag. The client sits himself down, reaches into the bag, pulls out a blood-stained knife and a wallet bulging with cash and drops them on your desk.

He explains that during the course of a robbery, he stabbed and killed his victim and left the body in a vacant lot across town. He says he wants you to help him dispose of the incriminating evidence and "keep clear of the cops".

Should you examine the knife and wallet? Hold on to them or get rid of them? Hide them, maybe? Give them to the authorities? Perhaps give them back to the client? What should you tell him to do with them? And, oh yes, what about the body? [End quoting.]

CAN THE BAR REGULATE ITSELF?

In an article presented before the American Bar Association Annual Meeting held on August 5, 1990, titled Can The Bar Regulate Itself by Deborah M. Chalfie, Legislative Director for HALT (Help Abolish Legal Tyranny, 1319 "F" St. NW, #300, Washington, D.C. 20004 (202-347-9600—An Organization of Americans for Legal Reform), we read, [quoting, with permission:]

Consistent with the doctrine of separation of powers, the police power gives the legislature control over the practice of law, absent convincing arguments to the contrary. Such arguments were of questionable authority in the past and have no more force today.

The title of today's panel poses the question, "Can the Bar Regulate Itself?" The answer to this question is, clearly, "yes, it can." In every single state, lawyers are regulated solely by other lawyers: lawyers in bar associations, lawyer-judges on state supreme courts, and the multitude of lawyers who dominate disciplinary staffs and hearing panels, "unauthorized practice of law" committees, boards of bar examiners, lawyer-client fee programs, and every other lawyer-regulation body that exists.

Moreover, the power of state supreme courts to regulate the bar is well-established in every state. Starting around the time of the depression, courts began interpreting their "inherent" power to regulate lawyers as an exclusive power, thereby thwarting any independent scrutiny or public accountability for the legal profession. Most state courts now claim the exclusive power to regulate lawyers, and the corresponding power to strike down regulatory attempts by other branches.

If, on the other hand, the question is revised to ask whether the Bar should regulate itself, or can the Bar regulate itself and still serve the public interest, consumers' answer is a resounding, "NO!" The conflict of interest inherent in any system of self-regulation necessarily results in an anti-consumer system of regulation.

The Conflict of Interest Built Into Self-Regulation

[Still quoting:]

If anyone can recognize a conflict of interest when they see one, it's lawyers, right? In your own practices, you usually can't represent both spouses in a divorce because, even if the break-up is uncontested, the interests of the two parties may conflict in the future. And, you can't represent a company on one side of today's business deal and represent the other side in tomorrow's. In addition, lawyers recognize the conflict of interest inherent in the buyer-seller relationship, otherwise, lawyers wouldn't always be telling people to "get it in writing." Finally, lawyers are among the first to scream "foul" when there is conflict of interest in the self-regulation of other occupations. No self-respecting consumer lawyer, for example, would defend requiring patients to have their disputes or malpractice lawsuits decided by a panel of doctors.

Yet, when it comes to consumers of legal services, the legal profession instantly becomes blind to any conflict of interest. In fact, the profession makes outrageous claims such as "self-regulation is necessary because only lawyers know when a fellow lawyer has screwed up," or "lawyers should be self-regulating because lawyers have the highest stake in getting rid of the bad apples." Substitute the word "doctor" or "car manufacturer" or any other occupation for "lawyer" in these claims and lawyers wouldn't buy it for a minute.

Perhaps the fact that lawyers see themselves as agents, representatives, and advocates for their clients obscures the conflict of interest between lawyer and client, profession and public. Perhaps the fact that law is a "profession" with public service obligations obscures it. Perhaps the fact that lawyers have so often played the role of consumer advocate in reference to other industries, as noted above, obscures it. But, nevertheless, it's there, it's built-in, and it's got to go.

There's nothing "personal" in this conflict-of-interest criticism of lawyer self-regulation. "No matter how well intentioned...no vocational group is well-situated to pass judgment on matters that directly implicate its economic interests, social status, and self-image." This is because there is a fundamental conflict in the interests of buyers and sellers of services: buyers want to get the highest quality service at the lowest possible price, while sellers want to provide the least amount of service at the highest possible price. Buyers want the greatest possible level of competition and choice, sellers want the lowest. Buyers want strong consumer rights and remedies, sellers want weak ones.

In the particular case of lawyer self-regulation, the source of this conflict is two-fold. First, there is a conflict of interest in having lawyers dominate every aspect of lawyer regulation. Lawyers share a long, unique, and traumatic experience—becoming and being lawyers. The sense of camaraderie and elitism that results from that community creates in lawyers an "us/them" view of lawyers and nonlawyers. In light of this, there is little chance that even the best-intentioned lawyers can be "objective" when making public policy decisions about how lawyers and the practice of law should be regulated. And, although lawyers may be able to judge other kinds of disputes between other kinds of parties impartially, they cannot be impartial in judging lawyer-client disputes.

Beyond the conflict of interest in lawyer domination of lawyer regulation, there is a structural conflict of interest that is inevitable when any agency is charged with protecting the interests of multiple constituencies who have opposing interests, or who are in disputes with one another. This conflict is aggravated when the agency is also a trade association, as is the case with bar associations. Asking a trade association to pose as a consumer protection agency is asking for trouble: lawyers' trade associations cannot simultaneously advance the interests of lawyers and advance the interests of consumers because the two are in conflict.

Neither conflict of interest—the lawyer domination one nor the dual function one—is cured by having state supreme courts, or "independent" agencies under their jurisdiction, regulate lawyers. First of all, supreme court justices are lawyers; they may not be practicing lawyers, but are lawyers nonetheless. For the most part, judges are exclusively selected from lawyers' ranks, and upon leaving the bench commonly return to private practice. Second, there is little difference between court regulation and bar regulation because courts are too busy to take an active hand in regulation. In practice, courts delegate lawyer-regulation functions to agencies that are either run by or are heavily influenced by bar associations. Finally, the bench and bar are linked in a myriad of ways—ways that make judges beholden to the profession (and vice versa)—such that neither can be counted on to "bite the regulatory bullet" with the other.

The conflict of interest in lawyer self-regulation shows. Lawyers design and maintain a "consumer protection" system that dismisses more than 90% of all consumer complaints. In most states, these 90+%, plus the additional three percent that end in "private" reprimands, are forever concealed from the public in whose interest the system ostensibly exists to protect in the first place. Even in the rare instance when discipline is imposed, making lawyers refund fees, pay for the damages they caused, or do what they promised rarely accompanies the imposition of discipline. The system is secret, slow, lenient, unfair, and unresponsive to consumers' needs.

At the front end, the bar enforces an extremely restrictive licensing scheme which give lawyers a monopoly that leaves most middle and low-income consumers with no affordable access to legal services. All of the entry requirements—ABA accreditation of law schools, charging bar dues, and everything in between—are set and overseen by lawyers. By making the hurdles high and expensive to jump, the profession assures that the number of providers will be reduced and the high costs of entry will be passed on to consumers. In addition, lawyers define what constitutes "the practice of law" and are the chief enforcers of unauthorized practice of law (UPL) prohibitions, thereby regulating the potential competition out of existence.

And, if anyone still doubts the existence of a conflict of interest between the profession and the consuming public, one need only look at the bar's track record in responding to consumer criticism and calls for reform. The bar actively evades and fights even the modest reforms at every opportunity. And, because the profession is accountable neither to the public nor the public's representatives in the legislature, it usually gets away with it.

The Rationale for Self-Regulation is Flimsy

[Still quoting:] Traditionally, the legislature, not the judiciary, is the branch constitutionally-charged with protecting the public welfare by regulating businesses and occupations. Thus, judicial branch claims to exclusive regulatory power over lawyers is a usurpation of legislative police powers and, as such, is itself a violation of both the letter and spirit of the separation-of-powers doctrine. Therefore, the burden of justifying self-regulation is on the profession. And you can't sustain that burden.

The central premise of the courts' inherent and exclusive powers to regulate lawyers is that lawyer self-regulation is vital to maintaining separation of powers and, therefore, vital to a functioning, checked-and-balanced democracy. The essence of the argument is that lawyers must be "independent" from (i.e., unregulatable by) the other branches or else lawyers could be threatened with regulatory retaliation for bringing lawsuits that challenge legislative and executive abuses of power. Though lofty-sounding, such arguments are little more than post hoc rationalizations of the status quo.

There is little basis for speculating, let alone any hard evidence, that permitting outside regulation by the legislative and executive branches would prevent lawyers from challenging abuses by the other branches. In fact, lawyers were regulated by legislatures for many years before courts began usurping regulatory power under the guise of the inherent-powers doctrine, and American's constitutional democracy didn't fall.

In contrast, there is plenty of evidence that self-regulation compromises lawyers' independence. Many a lawyer can testify to being disciplined, sanctioned, or having a case adversely affected, not for violations of the ethical code, but for challenging a judge or the bar establishment, handling controversial cases, making the "wrong" judicial campaign contributions and other political reasons, or simply for undertaking activity (e.g., "undignified" advertising) of which the bar disapproves.

ZIGGY

If the real concern about outside regulation was shielding lawyers from regulatory retaliation, there are other, far less expansive options short of complete self-regulation for minimizing retaliation against the relatively few boat-rockers who challenge governmental action. First, for example, express statutory prohibitions on retaliation could be enacted, as they have been in other areas of the law, enabling the courts to act as a check on abuses. Second, the new regulatory agency could be structured so as to insulate agency personnel from illegitimate pressures, such as by making the agency independent, with a director removable only for cause.

Closely tied to the separation-of-powers rationale for self-regulation is the contention that because lawyers are "officers of the court", the judicial branch must have the power to regulate its own "officers", otherwise "order in the court" would be threatened. Attempts by any other branch to regulate those "officers" is thus an encroachment on the courts' inherent powers to run its own house. The argument, however, is unpersuasive.

The bulk of what lawyers do takes place outside of the courtroom. Thus, even if courts need the power to regulate the in-court behavior of advocates, it by no means follows that they should regulate out-of-court issues. Yet, courts claim the exclusive power to regulate everything that even touches upon the practice of law. Besides, the concept of courts regulating their "officers" flies in the face of reality: judges (and lawyers) rarely report lawyer misconduct to discipline agencies. Trying to bolster total self-regulation with the notion that lawyers are somehow quasi-governmental officers just begs the question.

Aside from constitutional arguments about separation of powers, the profession also attempts to justify self-regulation on the presumption that, as a practical matter, only lawyers (and lawyer-judges) have the background and training necessary to detect misconduct and understand how lawyers should be regulated. Such a premise rests on the assumption that lawyer regulation involves the same knowledge and skills as the practice of law itself. It doesn't.

Lawyer discipline addresses questions such as "did the lawyer commit a crime?", "did the lawyer neglect a client's case?", and "did the lawyer screw-up?" Obviously, nonlawyers are perfectly capable of answering the first two kinds of questions. As for the third, this kind of question is now pursued in the form of malpractice cases which, if the defendant lawyer so chooses, a jury of laypeople may decide! In fact, our entire jury system rests on the notion that nonexperts can and should decide even the most complex cases.

Similarly, the "lawyers as experts" rationale doesn't support self-regulation in the licensing context. Lawyers typically justify the existence of unauthorized practice of law (UPL) rules on the premise that only lawyers understand the practice of law, a contention easily rebutted by the hordes of nonlawyers, both the "already-there's" (e.g., architects, accountants, financial planners) and the "wanna-be's" (independent paralegals), who are already practicing. To the extent that UPL enforcement rests on the need to protect the public, it is for the nonlawyer public to determine whether, as a matter of public policy, it wants the choice of nonlawyer services available, and what trade-offs consumers are willing to make between upfront costs and upfront assurances of competence. As for lawyer-dominated enforcement of UPL, the profession's economic interest in stifling its competitors makes it the best appropriate body to watchdog the public interest.

CONCLUSION

[Still quoting:]

Lawyers are indeed "important", but not because they play a vital role in upholding democracy or in smooth functioning of the courts. Primarily, they are important because they provide an important service: solving significant problems in people's everyday lives. As service providers no different from any other, they must be accountable to the legislative and executive branches who are responsible for safeguarding the public welfare. The fact that lawyers possess a monopoly over providing these services—lawyers alone now hold the keys to the legal system, and therefore, access to justice—makes independent regulation and public accountability all the more necessary. [End quoting.]

ATTORNEY DISCIPLINE

In an article titled The Conflict-of-Interest In Lawyer Self-Regulation, by Kay A. Ostberg, Deputy Director of HALT, we read [quoting, in part:]

Lawyer-run attorney discipline agencies increasingly are attacked by the public, the press and legislative bodies. The basis of these attacks is evidence of inordinate secrecy, delay, indefensibly lenient disciplinary decisions and an overall failure to provide consumers with adequate mechanisms to settle client-lawyer disputes.

The first problem is the narrow scope of the ethical rules disciplinary agencies enforce. These rules, which are adopted from the American Bar Association model, fail to deal adequately with the most common client problems, such as lack of communication, neglect, overcharging and incompetence. Moreover, the procedural rules agencies operate under fail to provide consumers with compensation for injury or help settling a dispute.

The legal profession defends these limitations by claiming the system is not a consumer protection system, but is set up to maintain "minimum licensing standards". At the same time, the legal profession has consistently resisted establishing new consumer protection forums precisely on the ground that such forums will duplicate or conflict with existing discipline mechanisms. In essence, self-regulation has led the profession to argue that "minimum" standards are enough to protect legal consumers.

Even if one accepts that the basic mission of the system should be to uphold "minimum licensing standards" rather than address consumer protection needs, the system fails because self-policing has led to an overprotectiveness of lawyers. This is manifested in a process that is secret, slow and lenient.

Processing complaints takes place in secret in all but one state. Secrecy is defended as necessary to protect lawyers from the possible adverse publicity of frivolous complaints. In fact, secrecy also protects lawyers who are guilty of misconduct, prevents clients from learning about lawyers who are being investigated or who have had numerous complaints filed against them and denies the public the opportunity to evaluate whether the discipline system is functioning well.

Lengthy delays in processing complaints are also a serious problem. The time between filing a complaint and final decision can take up to five years. Unjust in itself, delay also compounds problems caused by the systems' secrecy, allowing incompetent and unethical lawyers to continue practicing and possibly injure more clients.

Disciplinary action is infrequent and lenient. Publicly-disciplined lawyers are usually thieves, felons or guilty of repeated misconduct. Further, agencies are willing to accept a wide range of "mitigating factors" to reduce discipline such as alcoholism, inexperience, or financial and emotional difficulties. In essence, agencies act only when the level of misconduct is critical enough to potentially attract adverse public attention while "lesser" complaints are largely ignored.

When faced with these criticisms, the legal profession contends that, with minor reforms, the system will work. Secrecy and lengthy processes are defended as necessary to protect the due process rights of lawyers. Leniency is denied or seen as justifiable "forgiveness" of misconduct and a reasonable willingness to give lawyers a second chance. While these defenses are understandable coming from a trade association, they reflect an inappropriate loyalty to the legal profession for an agency intended to serve the public.

The ideal consumer-oriented system wouldn't be a "discipline" system at all. Instead, it would be a consumer protection system with the responsibility to mediate disputes. However, until the conflict-of-interest in self-policing is acknowledged and consumer protection taken from the hands of lawyers, the discipline system will not serve consumers' needs and will fail even at the limited task of enforcing "minimum licensing standards". [End quoting.]

THE AMERICAN BAR ASSOCIATION

Again, quoting from Gerry Spence's With Justice For None:

The American Bar Association, its dominant membership in tune with the new conservative court, has provided little inspirational leadership for the nation's lawyers to fight for the rights of the individual. That is nothing new. Fifteen years earlier, Chief Justice Earl Warren castigated the ABA for its nonfeasance in the area of human rights: "In all candor, I cannot say that in my view the organized bar of the nation has, on the whole, discharged that obligation in praiseworthy fashion. Throughout the McCarthy era, and for years following that shameful period, while the federal courts were struggling to make the Bill of Rights and the Civil War Amendments meaningful in our society, the organized bar of the nation did precious little to assist. On the contrary, it occupied itself with trying to establish to the world that the Supreme Court of the United States was the handmaiden of Communism and the greatest friend the Soviets had in America." None of this must have surprised the good judge, assuming he had even a scant knowledge of the ABA's history.

Nearly from its inception, the American Bar Association has held affectionately to its pallid bosom its favorite child, the wealthy white male Protestant from selected parentage. Blacks were not admitted to the organization until 1953. The ABA's Standing Committee on the Federal Judiciary, which passes judgment on all nominees to the federal bench, was, from its birth in 1946, restricted in membership, cloaked in class bias, and composed of lawyers from the "fast track"—the said "best and brightest" of the Anglo-Saxon elitist bar. More than half its membership came from the very corporate law firms that have perennially held the reins of the bar. None of the committee members in these crucial years specialized in criminal law or family law. For the two decades ending in 1967, not a single black person held membership on that committee. It was all-male and as pure white as a Wyoming snowstorm.

The ABA's approval of the first woman appointed to the Supreme Court was given with as much enthusiasm as that of a groom at a shotgun wedding. Yet except for gender, Justice Sandra O'Connor seemed identical to the American Bar Association's profile of a duly qualified judge. She was a graduate of Stanford Law School, a member of a prestigious law firm that represented the corporate sector, and she was conservative. She did not disappoint her mentors. By her third session, she was already standing as close to the archconservative of the court, Justice William Rehnquist, as would be proper for a robed woman. In twenty-nine of the cases decided by one-vote margins she had joined Justice Rehnquist in all but three.

The Judicature Society, devoted to the uplifting of the American judiciary, took pains to scrutinize the ABA's evaluation of judges. It concluded: "...the strongest possible relationship which emerged in our analysis was that between the American Bar Association rating [of nominated judges] and the candidates' white male status. Higher marks were bestowed on the judicial candidates who practiced predominantly before federal and appellate tribunals, those who practiced predominantly in civil litigation and in the traditional subject areas of the law; those who were born in the jurisdiction of their appointments; those who attended the elite law schools; those who at one time had achieved a prestigious legal clerkship, and those who earned relatively higher incomes than other candidates."

The study further revealed that the ABA had not taken into account the not-so-subtle political influences of the candidate toward his own appointment—such as his hefty financial contributions or those of his sponsors, or the ever-present cronyism, or the relationship of the candidate's firm to the members of the ABA committee or to the approving congressional committees, or to the president himself. Partners of senators and powerful congressmen are, with unusual predictability, endorsed by the ABA and appointed to the federal bench.

The Judicature Society reported that half of the male federal judges were active in party politics before their election to the bench. Some held high political office. Others had been advisers to prominent politicians. Almost every appointee had either directly or indirectly through his partners made substantial contributions to his political party, so that the clear margin between politics and judging became blurred. By the beginning of President Reagan's second term, the ABA, working overtime, had rated over half of Reagan's first-term nominees to the district court "exceptionally well qualified" or "well qualified". Given the foregoing, I should have thought those judicial nominees receiving the ABA's punctilious kiss of approval would have found the same as disquieting as being over-greeted by a whore in church.

These judges, many of whom have spent a majority of their years as corporation lawyers, are, upon ascending to the bench, just as much the corporate progeny as a skunk raised in a litter of kittens is still a skunk. These judges will continue to make their decisions with the same mental apparatus that only a fortnight before they had called upon during an entire career to forward the interests of their corporate clients. Are we to suppose that such a judge, like a blacksmith who, for all of his life, has beaten swords from plowshares, will, merely because he has moved to a better address, beat plowshares from swords? Oliver Wendell Holmes and others debunked the orthodox doctrine that judges, despite the method of their selection, upon assuming the ermine would faithfully apply existing rules of common justice in deciding cases. These so-called "legal realists" argued the obvious, that judges actually decide cases according to their own political, ethnic, and moral preferences, and in payment of their political obligations. [End quoting.]

UNAUTHORIZED PRACTICE OF LAW

In another article from HALT titled, Issue Brief: Challenging The Lawyers' Monopoly, we read [quoting, in part:]

Lawyers in this country have a self-regulated monopoly over the provision of legal services. The ability to enforce the rules under which nonlawyers are prosecuted for practicing law without a license is the major way the profession preserves this monopoly. For consumers, the result is a lack of competition among legal-services providers that creates artificially high prices for legal services and, consequently, denies legal assistance to those who can't afford a lawyer.

Unauthorized practice of law (UPL) rules typically prohibit nonlawyers from practicing law but seldom specifically define what acts constitute "practicing law". A few states do list some of the acts prohibited (such as "representing litigants in court"), but even those usually end their list with a catch-all phrase such as "or any action taken for others in any matter connected with the law."

While UPL rules are of little help in understanding what "the practice of law" encompasses, case law is somewhat more helpful. An early landmark case involved a charge by the bar that the publication and sale of nonlawyer Norman Dacey's book, How To Avoid Probate, constituted UPL. The N.Y. Court of Appeals ruled against the bar in 1967. Since then, most state courts have ruled that the publication of self-help legal information and the sale of legal forms by nonlawyers is allowed, and most of these courts have also ruled that printed instructions are permitted.

The main prohibition remaining concerns oral instructions about how to fill out legal forms—crossing this line makes a nonlawyer guilty of UPL, in most states. Even the oral instruction standard, however, has many exceptions. In Arizona, for instance, a constitutional amendment allows real estate agents to complete any forms related to the sale of property. Since the amendment became law in 1962, "[t]here has been nothing to indicate any sustainable harm to the public." Other states have similar exceptions for certain professions or transactions, such as exceptions for nonlawyers practicing in administrative agency hearings. In July, 1987, the Florida Supreme Court approved a new rule that allows nonlawyers to advise their clients about "routine" details in preparing court-approved forms for such matters as divorces, adoptions and name changes.

In almost all states, prosecution of nonlawyers practicing law is carried out by UPL committees of the state bar associations. These committees are dominated by lawyers.

The committees have broad power to enforce UPL rules. Prosecutors (the committees) are required neither to allege nor prove any harm to clients to win a case against a nonlawyer practitioner. In almost all states, the committees can initiate an investigation of a nonlawyer without review by any outside agency such as a state or local prosecutor's office. In more than half the states, the committees have exclusive power to take action against a nonlawyer charged with UPL. These actions are usually designed to intimidate nonlawyers into limiting or closing down their businesses.

Lawyers usually talk about unauthorized practice in terms of the danger incompetent providers present to consumers. There is no evidence, however, to demonstrate either that nonlawyers are incompetent to provide routine services or that consumers are being harmed by nonlawyer practitioners.

In a 1976 comparison of uncontested divorce papers filed by lawyers and nonlawyers representing themselves, Stanford University law professor Deborah Rhode found that nonlawyers were fully capable of completing the paperwork correctly. In some cases, she even found that nonlawyers' files were more complete and filings more prompt than lawyers'.

A later study conducted by Prof. Rhode dispels the notion that nonlawyer practitioners pose a significant danger of harming consumers. In her 1981 study of 45 states, Rhode found that injured consumers filed only 2% of all UPL complaints, inquiries and investigations. Of the 84 published judicial decisions over a 10-year period, only 11% even alleged any consumer harm. In 1985, Florida's Rosemary Furman was forced out of business by the state bar, even though, in 13 years of "practice" not one of her customers complained.

Rather than prevention of consumer harm, then, evidence indicates that the bar's major interest in preventing nonlawyer legal assistance springs from the threat it presents to lawyers' business. Even the ABA Commission on Professionalism's 1987 Report acknowledged that, "[i]n the past, both the public and some segments of the Bar have viewed state bar unauthorized practice of law committees as existing to protect lawyers' economic interests."

Instead of protecting the public from harm, the current monopoly system has driven prices so high that many low-to-middle income citizens cannot afford a lawyer. It has been estimated that 90 percent of the nation's lawyers serve 10 percent of the population. The ABA has estimated that approximately 6 million low-income people will need a lawyer for a civil legal problem in a typical year, but that programs funded by the Legal Services Corporation can handle only 1.3 million cases yearly. It is difficult to see what "public good" is served by denying citizens affordable legal assistance, yet that denial is one of the major effects of UPL enforcement.

The legal services market should be opened up to competition for lay providers, especially for routine, uncontested matters. Today, consumers are allowed their choice of providers for many complicated tasks. When preparing their tax returns, for instance, consumers are free to choose whomever they wish to help them, whether that person is an accountant, a lawyer, or their next-door neighbor. Like some legal matters, tax preparation can be very complicated and mistakes can have serious consequences. Nonetheless, we assume consumers are capable of making the best choice for their situation. We should assume that consumers are capable of making the best choice for their situation. We should assume that consumers can make the correct choice when it comes to their legal affairs as well; the bar should give up the paternalistic notion that only lawyers can decide what level of expertise consumers need for their legal matters.

Consumers are not the only ones who recognize nonlawyers can perform many legal tasks; increasingly, lawyers are using paralegals to do a great deal of the work that is carried on in law offices. The demand for paralegal services is booming, such that the U.S. Department of Labor estimates that the number of paralegals in this country will have increased 166% between 1980 and 1990, making it the fastest growing occupation of this decade.

In light of the evidence that shows nonlawyers can perform many legal tasks as competently as lawyers and the lack of evidence that nonlawyers who perform these tasks present a serious threat to the public welfare, HALT maintains that the "practice of law" should be substantially deregulated so consumers can have more choices about the providers from whom they may buy legal services. "Fifth Column" Purges More Top-Level Gov't Crooks

James Norman's articles appear in a number of publications, most notably in the current issue (Feb. '96) of Media Bypass magazine in an article entitled "Congressional Retirees Leaving Voluntarily and We Should All Believe in Mother Goose". I will now quote from the beginning of that article:

"One after another in recent months, big-name U.S. senators and representatives have announced that they are "retiring". Since the last election, a record 45 members of Congress have decided not to run for re-election or have outright resigned from office. Not in a hundred years has there been such an exodus. And it is not over. Dozens of other lawmakers and powerful governmental leaders are privately hinting that they may be leaving office soon. Nor are these departees the obscure back bench sitters. They are the among most powerful people in the most powerful government that has ever existed on the Earth, with egos to match. Take a look at the list. Look at all the committee chairmen or ranking minority members who would be committee chairmen if the Democrats regained control. Look at the powerful committees, the sub-committees they are on: appropriations, rules, armed services, agriculture. Look at the startling last minute withdrawal of retired general Colin Powell as a potential candidate for president, a job for which many pundits had him pegged as a shoo-in. Common sense and history teach that people with this kind of power, pay, and perks don't give them up easily or without good reason."

Here now to expose the incredible REAL reasons for the rash of retirements is my guest tonight, James R. Norman. Let's list some of the key congressmen, senators, politicians, and corporate executives that have "resigned" or "retired" recently, and perhaps you might mention some of the excuses they have been giving.

JN: Well, it's a laundry list. It's as long as your arm—some of the most notable names. In the first wave there was Sam Nunn, former chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee; Pat Schroeder, ranking Democrat in the House; Mark Hatfield, the chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee; Alan Simpson, big time Republican in the Senate. Then you have a whole slew of others: Paul Simon and Howell Heflin. Then you just had Bill Cohen, the senator from Maine, and now he's not running again. They're dropping like flies.

JR: Yeah, Clayborne Pell. James Exon?

JN: Yeah, Exon, too.

JR: And how many Representatives from Congress? Just a whole raft of them.

JN: I've lost track. In fact, since the story came out there's been a dozen more or so. The count is approaching 60 now, I think.

JR: What is the standard excuse that they're giving?

JN: It's amazing. A bunch of these people have said, "Oh, I want to go spend more time with my family." And then a bunch of others who have been interviewed on the TV talk shows and in the Wall Street Journal on in the New York Times, they say, "Oh, the tone of discourse in Congress is so uncivilized these days." "Nasty politics, to where we can't stand it now

JR: Right. Well, Pat Schroeder, as you mentioned in your article, said she wants to give up her $133,000 a year job to be a writer.

JN: Pat, don't quit your day job to be a writer.

JR: Right. And Nancy Kassebaum, a very famous family behind her—Alf Landon, of course—wants to go back to, as you say, her little farm house on the prairie.

JN: Yeah. She did a long interview with the New York Times and the only plausible excuse she gave there in the story was, "Oh yeah, I've got this little farmhouse on the prairie in Kansas. I want to go back there." She's young; she's 62 or something like that.

JR: Right. How about Alan Simpson. He was carping about he has to raise $10,000 a week just for reelection. It's just too expensive and too draining on him.

JN: Ohhh, in Wyoming? How much would it cost you to hand deliver a huge packet of propaganda to every person. And the fact of the matter is, he COULD raise $10,000 a week with a few phone calls. These people are sitting on a gravy train.

JR: So the cost doesn't make it. I mean, it just isn't a problem to raise the money. People just don't walk away from these incredibly powerful, prestigious, status positions, without good reason.

JN: That's right.

JR: And your reason and your determined efforts to find out what happened has led us to an astonishing revelation here. What is really going on?

JN: Basically, it boils down to: somebody knows about their Swiss bank accounts.

JR: Aha! You mean there's graft and corruption and money going overseas without proper accounting?

JN: Yes. I know you are shocked that this could be happening, but in fact, yes. It's not been that big a secret, but what has happened is that, essentially, a handful of guys—former intelligence community guys—

JR: As in C.I.A.?

JN: C.I.A., N.S.A., the National Security Agency. There's a raft of government intelligence agencies. No one has any idea how huge the intelligence community is in this country. But some of these people are so fed up with the bipartisan corruption and payola that's been going on, that they just decided, in effect, to take things into their own hands.

JR: How many, James?

JN: I think it's just a handful of guys. I don't even know specifically. I'm told there's a group of five guys. They call themselves the Fifth Column. I've been dealing with, in particular, one of these guys—actually a couple of them for about eight months now. Their predictions have been really accurate. They've been telling me this is going to happen for months and months and I said, "Oh, come on! This is silly." Boy, next thing you know, you've got 50-60 retirements from Congress. It's like, what they've been telling me keeps coming true. There is no other explanation for this. What they have said makes sense. It's internally consistent and it's technologically feasible. This is what I'm learning from a whole bunch of bank computer people.

JR: Right. Before we get into the computer aspect of it, were they naming names to you? Were these people saying, "Okay, Senator Simpson is going to announce his retirement. Schroeder is going to bow out." Was it a name name kind of thing or just "a trend is coming, Jim Norman. Watch for it."

JN: Well, a little of both. It was mostly "the trend is coming, the trend is coming." Then they'd say, "Well, you're going to see a lady out West soon."

that the Republicans are in control."

JR: Morally repugnant to them.

JN: Yes, of course about a third of them are Republicans themselves. And look, things are no more nasty in Washington than they ever have been. I mean, it's always been politics; it's always been brutal. A lot of these people have just had no good excuse. They've just said, "Oh well, enough is enough. Time to go home. Been here long enough. I didn't want to do this all my life anyway."

BOING! There goes Pat Schroeder. "Now you're going to see a fellow in Alabama" BOING! There goes Tom Beville—the king of pork, I think was his nickname. It was eerie. And this whole thing with Colin Powell. They were telling me months and months of this: "Don't worry, Colin Powell ain't going to run for office. He ain't going to run for office. He ain't going to run for office." There was a huge, hoopla build-up for this thing. I mean, this was like a steamroller, rolling down hill to get Colin Powell—I mean, the cover of Time, the cover of Newsweek—guy was out there on the end of the springboard and he decided to go home!

JR: You could almost feel the energy mounting. You're right. It was a big massive effort to put him in there at one point, and all of a sudden, POP!—the balloon is gone. Amazing. Were you approached or did you ferret out these sources yourself through mutual contacts?

JN: The way this whole thing evolved is the most bizarre thing. I feel like a Woody Allen who stumbled into the midst of this huge thing that's going on here. I had no idea what I was getting into on this thing. I'm a business reporter. I've been a business reporter for twenty years.

JR: Well, you wrote for Forbes magazine.

JN: I was with Business Week for ten years. I worked at Forbes as a senior editor for five years. There I was doing sort of heavy duty financial investigative type of stuff. And I got looking into an oil company bankruptcy in Connecticut, which always smelled pretty fishy to me, because there was no reason for this company to have been losing money the way that it did. And in fact, when you back and look at the funny oil trading going on, it was a front to funnel money to yet another oil company that was financing arms sales to Iraq during the 1980s. It turns out it was one of a number of covert arms-funding mechanisms, money-laundering systems that were apparently being run and set up. That led me into looking at the government's use of some particularly interesting software, which was also being sold to the Iraqis. It turns up for use by their intelligence community. I said, "Now this is very bizarre."

JR: What was the name of that software?

JN: It turns out there has been a very long-running legal case in Washington involving a little company called Inslaw.

JR: Sure. The Inslaw is the thing that led to the death of Danny Casolaro and a lot of other problems.

JN: Yes. Inslaw was just one of many things that Danny was looking at. He was also looking at arms sales. He was also looking at offshore bank accounts. In fact, I think that was the approximate thing that led to his death, because he was found—supposedly committed suicide—but in fact, he had his wrists slashed like 12 times in a motel room in Martinsburg, Virginia, which happens to be the home of a major IRS data facility. My information is that he probably had gained access to some IRS data he wasn't supposed to have on some people and they didn't want him to have it. [The oil company in Connecticut] turned out to be a front for arms sales for Iraq and among the other stuff that was getting sold to Iraq by this Chilean arms dealer, Carlos Cardon, was software for use by Iraq's intelligence community.

JR: The Inslaw software.

JN: Yes, what people believed was the derivative of the Inslaw software. It was originally called PROMIS. It was designed for tracking legal cases. The thing about this software is that it was easily customized without having to rewrite all the code. You could just rewrite some stuff on the front end and it would go and track anything you wanted it to track, which would make it greatly adaptable, particularly in an intelligence use, where you are developing elaborate files on people. It also turns out it customized for use in the banking system—for tracking money—particularly in tracking it in the form of wire transfers. It became extremely valuable in connection with a major intelligence effort this country undertook, beginning in the early 1980s. It was called "Follow the Money". It was an effort to surveil foreign banking transactions. We've been doing this since the early 1980s now. It's probably been one of the greatest intelligence coups ever accomplished on the planet. We've been scooping up vast amounts of data on money flows. In fact, Bill Casey, former head of the C.I.A.—he crowed that his crowning achievement of his time in the intelligence community was this establishment of what amounted to real time surveillance of world money flows.

Partly the way they did it was by installing bugged software and bugged computers in most of the world's major banks, which the banks, sort of knowingly accepted, just because they had to if they wanted to do business in New York. Some of them might not have understood just how elaborate the surveillance was. The point is that there was this massive banking intelligence effort underway. This we've got on the record for people who were involved in that during the Reagan Administration. Now to accomplish that the National Security Agency, which is the signal intelligence arm of our government, used various front companies—cut-outs, as they would be called. One of these companies, we've learned, was a company in Little Rock. It's name was Systematics. It was owned by Jackson Stevens 100%.

JR: You mean ARKANSAS?

JN: Arkansas.

JR: A coincidence, if there ever was one.

JN: Yeah. This is a company—a small company—for bank data processing, but somehow or another it ended up—especially in the late 1980s—landing contracts all over the world to install banking software. Very curious. One of the key interface people between Systematics and the NSA was Vincent Foster, who was chief lawyer at the Rose Law Firm. More than a lawyer, he was a "deal guy" for Jack Stevens. Hillary Clinton was an attorney of record from Systematics. She represented that company in a key 1977 legal case, in which Jack Stevens, on behalf of the BCCI crowd, tried to take over a Washington bank holding company, which later became First American—you know, run by Clark Clifford and Robert Altman. Part of the deal was, they wanted to bring in Systematics to do all the data processing for that bank. Now when you understand that BCCI was essentially a huge, money laundering machine, involved in drug money laundering, bonds financing, and intelligence, then it starts to make much more sense here what was going on.

VINCE FOSTER, MOSSAD SPY?!

JN: Now that gets us into this whole bank spying thing and that's how Vince Foster's picture/name came up in this. I went to Kentucky one night to interview this former intelligence guy who I was told was going to be able to fill me in on some of the uses for this software. As we were sitting there he was blowing smoke rings in the middle of the night, and he said, "Oh, you know, Vince, he was under investigation when he died." I said, "Under investigation?!—for what?" And he said, "Well, it's spelled s-p-onage." And I said, "You've got to be kidding me!" And for months I was just incredulous about this. This is nuts. Vince Foster spying in the White House, come on!

JR: And the guy is really blowing smoke rings when he's telling you this!

JN: Yeah. He wasn't fooling. What we did then was go back and try to corroborate this through other channels in the intelligence community, thinking that, oh well, we'll get this denied right away. No. It came back corroborated. Yes, Foster was under an investigation. In fact he was under intensive surveillance by a bunch of government agencies, apparently. This was heavy duty stuff.

JR: What year was this?

JN: I'm told it began sometime between the election and the inauguration of Bill Clinton—that that's when Foster came under intense scrutiny. And it would have been a period of months prior to his death in July 1993.

JR: So he was already up to his knees in espionage prior to the election.

JN: Yeah. I'm told that he probably had a relationship for maybe 10 years or so with the state of Israel.

JR: The Mossad.

JN: Well, the state of Israel, and I guess the Mossad. They were paying big money for U.S. secrets. There's no surprise about this. This is what the Pollard case was all about. They spy on us. We spy on them. We're allies; we're friends. We cooperate in many ways, but there are many things we don't tell them. In fact, they were paying big bucks for high-level code, in particular, and nuclear secrets. How else can you explain how a debt-ridden little Third World country, basically, has amassed one of the most potent nuclear arsenals on the face of the Earth? It wasn't by sheer luck and by accident. It was well planned and heavily funded and they have done well. If I ran Israel, I'd do exactly the same thing. But the fact is, there were spying on us, and people here were selling out to them. What I think happened was in the process of—there was this small intelligence group—computer hacker group, basically, that was out there surveilling a foreign intelligence data base, again using this bugged software, that would allow us to basically snoop in and they actually downloaded like 50 data bases of foreign intelligence communities. Even the KGB was using this stuff, apparently, and they were able to download KGB files, which was, I am told, how they found about Ames, originally, going back to 1991—years before the CIA admits suspecting him.

JR: Right. Aldrich Ames.

THE HILLARY CONNECTION

JN: Right. From that suspicion they were able to go and they actually found the Swiss bank account that was Foster's. Actually several bank accounts at that bank, but one in particular had 3 million dollars in it, which had been traced to Israeli accounts. After some surveillance, they determined that this was Foster's account, that the money had come from illicit sources. In July 1, 1993 Foster bought a round trip ticket for a one-day trip to Geneva and back from the White House travel office. Mysteriously he cancelled that trip before he took it. I think it's because he found out that that money had been raided. Once they were able to identify the money and that it was his account and once they could snoop inside the bank and actually get the authorization code of that account, they could go in and effect their own technically legitimate wire transfer of that money and they cleaned out the account. They pulled the money back to an account at the U.S. Treasury.

JR: This Fifth Column of intelligence agents with all of this incredible, sophisticated computer software had cracked all the banking codes, the access codes. They drained Vince Foster's bank account just before he apparently was headed over to do something with it, and Vince, realizing his account was now zippo—what happened then?

JN: He knew he was under surveillance. He knew the jig was up. That coincides completely with this mysterious bout of depression that everybody claims overcame Foster although Web Hubbell, his buddy and former Rose Law Firm partner had never really described it as depression. He said Vince was worried. He was afraid to use the White House telephones. He was nervous. He couldn't sleep at night. He had heart palpitations. His sister tried to set him up with some psychiatrists. He never contacted any of them. Instead he went out and hired a high-powered Washington lawyer, this guy Jim Hamilton, who—guess what—President Clinton had just appointed to the President's Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board. Very curious. There's something very fishy going on here. But the thing about this whole Foster case is—Foster ends up being just a tiny bit of the picture, because he's not the only one they found with one of these Swiss accounts. They found hundreds of other high-level U.S. Government officials.

I think that the intelligence community in general has known for a long time that there were a lot of these Swiss accounts. The problem was there was no practical way any law enforcement agency could go after them, because it was a bipartisan thing. Everyone was going to help cover this thing up. No agency had enough political power to actually go and nail any of these people. So what I think ultimately happened was this Fifth Column group, after witnessing this gridlock for years and years and years—for decades, I think this has gone on—they decided, look we can do this ourselves. They managed to get hold of a used Cray supercomputer from Clark Air Force Base after it closed. Normally civilians are not allowed to buy these things, partly because they are so useful for hacking, because they crunch numbers so fast. They can throw enough numbers at a security system they can bust their way in by sheer force. So civilians are generally not allowed to buy these things. They got hold of one used, cheap. I think it's a small air-cooled machine that can actually be put in the back of a truck and I think the thing is rolling around the country in what looks like a refrigerated truck with onboard generator and a satellite uplink. Otherwise the thing would be shut down. The feds would locate it and stop it. So I think by doing that for the past five years, they've been downloading data bases.

The first priority was the foreign intelligence data bases. They pulled those down—approximately fifty of them. Then they went after the banks, and I think it was going through the bank stuff, that's where they really came across the Foster stuff, which was then corroborated by their accessing the Mossad data.

JN: And guess what! Hillary too! Hillary apparently has been under investigation for being a party to this—for taking a piece of the action off that Swiss account and probably for providing Foster with extremely sensitive stuff.

JR: And how many years have they been working together—15 years or something like that?

JN: This goes back to the mid-70s.

JR: Okay, a long time. Alright. It's looking pretty dark for Arkansas and the Clintons and all of their retinue right now.

JN: Yes. In fact, there is sworn testimony as part of the Senate investigation by Deborah Gorham, Vince Foster's executive assistant, that shortly before he died, Vince had given her two inch-thick ring binders that Deborah Gorham identified as being from the National Security Agency and Vince had her put those in the safe of Bernie Nussbaum, the White House counsel. Now, Newsweek ran this little blurb saying, "Oh, not to worry, it was just routine legal stuff from the NSA." Wrong. These were extremely sensitive binders. They had the code and more importantly, the protocols by which the President would authenticate himself to the Pentagon when he ordered military action, including the use of nuclear weapons.

JR: Those are the ultimate numbers. The big numbers.

JN: That's right. They're not launch codes, per se. That's a different set of codes.

JR: They're identifier codes, I got it.

JN: Yeah. This is how the guy on the other end of the phone at the Pentagon knows it's the President calling them up. These code books should only have resided in the safe in the Oval Office or in the possession of the military attaches who carry the so-called "football" with them. Or they could have been in the Presidential living quarters. How did Vince Foster end up with these things? What was he doing with them? Did he have a security clearance for them? No. But he did have a security clearance, apparently—a relatively low-level security clearance. That in itself is interesting because everybody denies that he had anything to do with the intelligence community.

The last few days of Vince Foster's life, a very curious chain of events occurred there. There was a strange meeting the weekend before he died. Vince and his wife, Lisa, took off for the eastern shore of Maryland, supposedly for a get-away weekend. By "sheer coincidence", they meet Webster Hubbell and Hubbell's wife down there. So they decide well, let's go over to Michael Cardoza's place. Michael Cardoza is now the head of Clinton's legal defence fund. He's the son-in-law of Nathan Landell, big deal Democratic contributor. Close ties to Israel. According to all the official reports, it was a casual weekend of poolside chit-chat. Wrong. It was damage control. At this point it was clear that Vince was under investigation. That this was heavy duty stuff. There was concern that he was going to crack. That he was going to spill the beans. Or maybe he himself was going to decide to just, you know, go public and expose some of this stuff, and I think he became a real liability. The man who knew too much.

Monday came and he went back in the office. The record shows he had a bunch of people come by soliciting how the weekend went. "Are you cool with everything, Vince? Is everything okay?" He seemed to be calmer as if he had resolved something in his mind. There was a strange two-hour meeting with Marsha Scott, one of the people in the Arkansas contingent there in the White House. Marsha claims she doesn't recall what they talked about. But they met for two hours in his office. Very unusual. After which she went back and reported to her boss, Webster Hubbell, that Vince had apparently made the decision that he was worried about, or that he was thinking about. Then Tuesday, the next day, Vince apparently leaves early in the afternoon and shows up dead, supposedly in Fort Markey Park.

In fact, what I've been told—now we published this in the December issue of Media Bypass—he was under intense surveillance. I mean the Secret Service had him under surveillance while he was on the White House grounds. As soon as he left, the FBI and the NSA had surveillance teams on him. There's also CIA, I think, surveillance of the apartment that he was renting near the White House, where he went apparently and met a woman there, I am told, from the White House staff. Then there's apparently also video footage of a three-person team entering that apartment, supposedly identified as being connected somehow to the Mossad. That's apparently where the death occurred. Who actually pulled the trigger? I don't know, but certainly it seems that elements of the Mossad were independently involved in knowing about it, setting it up, probably covering it up. It raises the question of whether elements of our own intelligence community

GAIA'S PREMIUM HORSETAIL TINCTURE

Springtime Harvested (Horsetail is a herb)

Horsetail tincture is an excellent source of Silica which is said to change into calcium that is more absorbable in the cells of the body. We are a nation that is seriously deficient in calcium because the forms of calcium that we consume may not be getting to the cellular structures in the quantities needed. The Silica found in Horsetail is said to transform into a form of calcium that can be assimilated into the body cells for proper functioning. Tinctures are an easily digestible form for taking any herbal substance and this product is superior in its bioavailability for the body's use. There are some researchers who claim that high blood pressure is due to a lack of sufficient calcium, as well as the more common symptoms of brittle nails, thin and weak hair, nervousness, and osteoporosis, etc. The body must keep a balance of calcium in the bloodstream to keep organ systems functioning. Without it, we would be dead. This is why our hope for this product is to provide our customers with the most useable form of calcium available today.

Recommended dose: 10-15 drops in water or juice 1-2 times per day. Available in 2 oz. bottles. Pregnant or lactating women should consult a physician before using this product.

participated in or facilitated this hit in some way. If you go back and look at the official records there are all these curious anomalies.

JR: It seems to me Vince Foster represented a danger to several intelligence agencies and governments all at the same time.

JN: That's right. Because, as I was saying, Vince is like a window that you can look through to a vast landscape of corruption. It wasn't just his Swiss account. It was all these other Swiss accounts. It's affected a bunch of people who were participating in the sale of state secrets. In fact, I think when the truth finally comes out, you'll see that a lot of people have been doing this stuff. They treat it like it's a perk of office. It's like checking in to a cheap motel. Anything that's not nailed down—the towels, the televisions, the pillowcases—we'll sell them. In this case, the towels are nuclear secrets.

You match that up and then you can assure yourself that the money in that account is basically dirty money. What these guys have done—they've just wire-transferred this money back to the U.S. Treasury, where it's being held, I'm told, in an escrow account, escrowed for use by the CIA. But only if the CIA gets rid of a bunch of its own corrupt bad apples. You have to realize that large portions of these senior and middle management of the CIA have got dirty hands from drug and arms dealing. The CIA has been fundamentally corrupted by these illicit businesses that it's been running, supposedly to further the covert, legitimate foreign policy aims of our government, but in fact, these people have been raking in the dough in their own pockets off this stuff. It's utterly corrupt.

TRAVELGATE AND WHITEWATER: A SECOND LOOK

Hillary was very shrewd about this. Vince, in effect, was her bag man. Her fingerprints don't show up on this stuff, which is why I think they had a lay-down case against Vince and not so good against Hillary. That's why you're seeing the Travelgate and Whitewater stuff going on. Look. The crimes mentioned in these particular cases are penny-ante stuff in the grand scheme of things. It's not worth taking the president down over it. There's something else underneath here.

JR: Sure. Whitewater is the flea on the dog's back.

JN: Right. And so is Travelgate. But why were they so apoplectic about getting the professional people out of the Travel Office? Well, if Vince was taking periodic one-day trips to Geneva, booking it through the White House Travel Office, maybe you don't want that kind of information to get out anywhere. In fact, they've gone to great pains to NOT get it out. We found out about it because there was a private investigator in Arkansas who was able to get access to some of Foster's private American Express records, which showed these charges and the refunds. And in fact, just before Vince died they showed he'd bought $2400 in travel to somewhere from the White House Travel Office. He never lived long enough to take it. Was he going to skip the country? That's an interesting thought. There's all kinds of ramifications.

The take, so far, I'm told, is over 3 billion dollars. When I started on this story, it was about 8 or 9 months ago—it was in the range of a billion eight, but they've just been going hog-wild lately, because I think time's running out. The story is going to get out. It can't go on forever. Every night, they're just pulling in more money. And it's not just Switzerland. It's the Caymans. It's the Channel Islands. It's Macao. It's all of these tax havens. All of these banking secrecy, money-laundering centers around the world.

The banking system is much more porous than anybody wants to admit. For proof of that, about three months ago now, Citibank admitted that some Russian, armed with no more than a PC, managed to hack his way into Citibank's cash management system and was moving around tens of millions of dollars in cash out of corporate accounts! Always keeping it in small denominations so it wouldn't trigger any internal bank alarms. Moving the money to Argentina and Finland, where he would have his buddies standing by to pick up the cash. It was only because someone tipped off Citibank that this was going on, I think, that they got wind of it and stopped and retrieved much of the money. But it just shows how vulnerable these banks are. In fact, what I am told is that most major banks are apoplectic because they are under persistent, sustained attack by the hacking community, looking for these same keys to the kingdom. So the banking community is utterly uptight about this.

JR: I would think. How are the Fifth Columnists selecting which people to drain financially of their Swiss accounts?

JN: They're going after the dirty money wherever they can find it. They have set a practical cut-off. They're not looking at anything under half-a-million dollars. Part of the thing they do, I think, is take a little bit out of somebody's account—spook 'em—make them move the money to another account. Then they can track it and lay hands on yet another hoard of money. So these people are uptight. They don't know where to put their money. They don't know where to put their dirty money anymore.

I don't know if this is true or not, but several months ago there was this hoopla about "Oh, great terrorist threat—more security at the airport—everybody's got to get searched—turn up the settings on the metal detectors" and that kind of stuff. There was no terrorist threat. They were looking for money. Cash. There is a metal thread that goes through currency, which if you have enough bills wadded together is going to set off the metal detector. They were looking for cash.

AN OFFER THAT'S HARD TO RESIST

JR: Okay, so how do we get them out really quick?

JN: There's another fellow who publishes a little newsletter in Wisconsin and apparently he's been able to correlate some of this from his own congressional sources. What's happening is these people get hand-delivered a plain, brown paper envelope that contains actual transaction records of these bank accounts—their own bank accounts. They get to look at the this. The evidence is confrontive. They're confronted with it and a day or so they get a call from one of these guys in the Fifth Column who I've been referring to as the Angel of Death—the Avenging Angel—he basically reads them their alternatives. "Now that you've had time to read this and think about it, here are your choices, a: you can immediately announce your retirement." The purpose of that is that once somebody announces he's retiring from Congress, they aren't worth bribing anymore. They don't have a lot power anymore. People don't have to listen to them. They're lame ducks and it's only a matter of time before they actually resign, probably sooner rather than later.

Now the alternative is "Okay, you can stay and you can fight it, but we're going to release this data. If we have to we'll deliver it to every doorstep in your district. You will be prosecuted for tax evasion—willful tax evasion—the minimum sentencing for which is ten years in prison under federal sentencing guidelines. And guess what? When a public official gets convicted and sentenced to hard prison time, they can lose their pension, too. For some of these people that ain't chicken feed. For instance, the case of Pat Schroeder, a young woman, who has been in Congress a long time—her respective payout on her pension is going to aggregate over 4 million dollars over the rest of her life. That's big bucks here. Considering that these people have already had their Swiss accounts raided, they're probably trying to figure out how they're going to support their rather plush lifestyles out into the future.

So you don't have to be a rocket scientist to figure out the bright thing to do is to go away, play along with it, be a nice guy, go away, and then maybe when the hammer finally comes down, then you plead guilty to tax evasion and maybe they won't hit you with a prison term. But there's no deal cut that says these people are not going to be prosecuted. I think they probably all will be prosecuted some way or other, eventually. Partly depends on who's the Attorney General. We're going to have a new one.

JR: So the Fifth Column doesn't make any promises. They say "you've got Plan A: resign now; Plan B: fight it and be exposed immediately with all the data of your private Swiss bank account or wherever it is—Cayman Islands. So most everyone has opted for Plan A. That's announcing a retirement or resignation.

JN: So far they all have; it's been 100% success rate on that score.

JR: And they have 24 hours to make that decision or something like that.

JN: It's pretty quick. Who they go after—it's been a bipartisan thing. I think it's been about 2/3 Democrat and 1/3 Republican, so far. There's no favorites being played here. As a practical matter, since the Democrats controlled Congress for so long, they're the ones who got all the bribes! Republicans weren't worth bribing until recently. There's a bunch of heavy-hitter Republicans leaving here. Even this guy, Bob Walker from Pennsylvania—right hand man to Newt Gingrich—powerful guy. He almost was elected House Majority Leader. He's gone. Clinger, the head of the committee that's investigating Travelgate. He's announced his retirement. These are not back-benchers. They are heavy hitters who are being asked to go here. People from safe districts—I mean, they have no worry about being re-elected. They're young people, by and large. They could be there for many more years. This guy Jack Fields in Texas—Houston, young, Republican, and in his early 40s, chairman of the Congress subcommittee on telecommunications and finance—extremely powerful job. Holds a press conference and says he's going to spend more time with his family, breaks into tears, his wife breaks into tears, his mother breaks into tears. You'd think they'd be joyous!

JR: Pretty odd reaction, isn't it?

JN: Yeah, what's going on here? This is so bizarre. And the mainstream media just blaps the stuff up and says, "Oh yeah, we can understand how nasty the politics are. Oh, I think it's so nice that people are going to spend more time with their families. The new atmosphere in Congress." Oh, come on! I don't understand how people can publish this stuff.

RUNNING SCARED

JR: What about the reaction to these spontaneous resignations from the insiders who have not been tainted so far. What do you hear?

JN: What I hear is that they're all scared to death about this. They're all worried that their accounts are going to hit. It's like it's a matter of time, you know. "When are they going to find out about my account?" It's like rats scurrying to leave a sinking ship. I think you're going to see retirements announced now before people even get handed their brown paper envelopes. Because they know it's just a matter of time. "Let's get out of here now."

JR: So James Norman is predicting more.

JN: Yes. Dozens. Maybe scores. It's going to stretch out over a period of years. It amounts to a rolling coup d'etat of our government. Think about it. In fact, what you have here is that the economy is not so much between Democrats and Republicans. It's between the haves and the have-nots in Congress. It's the people with seniority and the ranking committee positions who have been taking all this payola for all the years and letting the crumbs falling to the freshmen. Now you have this crop of freshmen who have come in here and they see at last there's a chance to break this cycle of corruption. I think they're in a mood to take no prisoners. Some of these guys are just chomping at the bit at the idea of cleaning away at this whole raft of corrupt legislators in our government. Not just in the Congress, but in the administrative branches of the government. There are unprecedented numbers of departures from the Justice Department from—and I'm told this is going on in the Treasury, Customs—I think there's a concerted clean-up effort going on in the government because, I think, finally some of the enforcement functions there—the Inspectors General, the internal audit functions within the government—are finally being emboldened to go after this stuff, because the corruption had just gotten so endemic. The Fifth Column has emboldened these people that "yes, something can be done about it."

JR: Wow. What super-patriots these five or six people must be, I guess. Although there may be the doubters and critics on the sidelines who will say, "Well, they're using blackmail and extortion and conspiracy to do it. That's not right either."

JN: Well, yeah. I've had some heated arguments with these guys. "How can you dare do it this way? You have to go public with this. You have to play by the rules." And they say—well, I won't tell you what they say—because they think about it in a completely different way. They look at it from an intelligence community standpoint, which is "let's get the job done and worry about the rules later." The appearances—"We don't care about the appearances. We want to get these crooks out of there." And they don't care about the media. They don't talk to the media. One of my guys, he's got a stack of 50 messages from all the big-deal media. He won't even return them. He thinks they're all whores. He talks to me, I think, just because he takes pity on me and because I was a persistent son-of-a-gun and went down there and talked to him myself. We developed some rapport and joked around together. I don't know. I think I've become sort of the one convenient mouthpiece, and I think they do want to get this story out somewhere.

WHOSE PUPPET IS JANET RENO?

JR: What does Janet Reno have to do with any of this at all, or does she have anything to do with it? And furthermore, who is really controlling Janet Reno?

JN: Well, that's really the question. I think that Janet Reno is really kind of a figurehead there. I think she got the job specifically because she had a lot of—she's human; she has a lot of weaknesses; she has a lot of faults that people can hold over her head and manipulate and control her. And I think if you control the Justice Department, you can get away with all kinds of stuff. Is it Bill Clinton who controls her? I don't think so. I think there are other entities here. Look at this huge drug business that is underlying all of this. Look at the huge arms business that underlies all this stuff. All of which is basically based on illicit trade. I think that what is in the process here of this whole change of government—I think it's going to involve the executive office. I think it's going to involve the attorney general here before the election, I think—that the noose is tightening here. You can see that with Hillary Clinton.

JR: Well, she's going before the grand jury now.

JN: Yeah. Four hours of machine-gun questioning by Kenneth Starr. I mean this is not Travelgate and Whitewater. There is a reason they are going after her. And it is this whole espionage, potentially treasonous activity. The way the government works on this stuff—the object is just to find some felony that they could get her with and prosecute her and then throw the book at her. Treason and espionage might be too hard to prove, but they are going to find something. For sure, they want her out of there and it's going to happen. It's just a matter of time, I think. There is considerable speculation that the reason it hasn't happened sooner is that there is still just some dickering over the terms of surrender here. Will there be pardons? Will these people leave the country? This is a mind-boggling situation! This has never happened in this country. What we've said in these stories, and it's sadly coming true: this is the biggest political upheaval this country has faced since the Civil War. Make no mistake about it.

JR: Yes. A rolling coup d'etat, as you said. Rolling in terms of the semi-truck and trailer that's rolling around the country—maybe with, what, Piggly Wiggly markets on the outside? Who knows.

JN: Yeah, I don't know. The thing about a refrigerated truck is that they don't have to be inspected. They don't have to open up on the road, you know. They can bypass the weigh scales. Who knows? You can't inspect every one of those things.

JR: Amazing. Let's shift gears just a little bit and look beyond our borders. The former president of Mexico, Salinas—just a LITTLE bit of dirty money around that guy. Let's talk about him.

JN: Only a half a billion or so. Massive amounts of money. Massive—drug money, other kinds of payola—all kinds of stuff they've been ripping off from the Mexican economy. It ended up mostly in Switzerland in Citibank accounts, apparently. Hmmm. Didn't the vice-chairman just quit there suddenly? And didn't their chief financial officer just leave there all of a sudden—bolted out the door? I hear John Reed, the chairman, may be looking for another job, you know. Look, the thing you have to keep in mind here—you could not launder the amounts of money we're talking about here without the knowing and willing participation of major banks and brokerage houses. All the big guys. And I think in many cases, it has involved the corruption of senior officers in these institutions. They wink at this stuff.

JR: Hasn't there been a lot of City Bank stock being dumped lately?

JN: Yeah. A bunch of insiders are selling their stuff like mad in the last quarter partly, they could argue, because the stock was so high, but to me it is indicative that there's a bunch of these people going to bail out. That they're leaving the bank. So they're selling their stock. Probably part of negotiated separation agreements or something. There's more turmoil going on there. Look at some other countries here.

Canada. Brian Mulroney, former prime minister there—under investigation by the Mounties for Swiss bank accounts. Apparently he'd been taking kick-backs on Airbus aircraft orders for Air Canada. And that's just the tip of the iceberg, I'm told.

JR: How much?

JN: Well, there I think, we're talking in the area of double digit millions.

FOREIGN RULERS TOPPLE

JN: The Columbian Cali Cartel—let's look at them for a minute. My information is that they've had their computers raided, too, fairly recently—in the last couple months or so. Now let's say you could get into the Cali computers and find out who they've been paying off. Whew, there could be a lot of people get real nervous about that. One person they did find out they were paying off was our star witness in the Noriega drug case—which is going to get Noriega a whole new trial. They paid him a million-two or a million-five or something like that.

JR: We're looking at a potential here of Manuel Noriega going back—if he lives to go back to trial—this thing could get real amazing.

JN: He already has plans to move to Nevada and live there, I'm told. Or is it New Mexico or Arizona or somewhere? He's going to get off. He's going to be free. Let's look at Korea. Both of their past presidents are in prison right now. Together they've been implicated in slush funds aggregating over a billion dollars. Where? Well, Switzerland some of it. A lot it was in England, apparently. The English, apparently, are masters at money laundering. And probably the Bank of England itself has participated in it. The prime minister of Japan has just resigned, Mr. Murayama. The word we got was that the opposition party probably got one of these brown paper envelopes with funny transactions, which, I think, forced his resignation.

Half the Italian government is in prison too. I forgot to mention that. By the way, there are record numbers of retirements in the English Parliament. Hmmm. I think that's connected too. There's something going on here. I think this Column crowd has been sharing the information with a bunch of other governments. There's something very big here going on. Not just coincidence.

WHO'S IN CHARGE?

JR: It has been said before many times, Jim Norman—you've heard this probably for years and years. The people in government don't run us anyhow. There's a hierarchy of power—multi-national corporations and so on—one that really sets the tone and pulls the strings. How does it look from your position as ten years with Business Week as a senior writer, five years at Forbes, senior editor. You know money as well as anyone would want to know money on a national and an international basis. Who is calling the shots, ultimately, here?

JN: I don't know. I thought I knew. I thought I understood perfectly how the world worked. And then I stumbled onto this story. And I realized nothing is what it seems to be. I mean all of this pretense, all of the facade of order and dignity and reason and rule of law. It's a charade. It's money. It's money that is calling the shots here. And it's greed that is driving these people. And they have polished this to a fine art. They know all the lies to tell. They know how to put on a great facade. But behind it, it's money, money,

"BOP TROT": CLEANING OUT RATS' NESTS IN THE STATES

JN: You were asking at one point: is there any precedent for what we are seeing here? And actually there is and it actually involves, I think, some of the same Fifth Column crowd. It's an effort called—the code name for it is "Bop trot". I don't know where they get that. But it's a code name put on a major public integrity enforcement effort. It began about 5 years ago. It was manned by several hundred, I think hand-picked out of various federal enforcement agencies—FBI, Treasury, IRS, Customs, and I think some intelligence people were seconded to it. It was focused—it began on the state of Kentucky, just because that state, apparently, next to Louisiana, is known for being just a rat's nest of public corruption. They began a back-to-the-basics approach, looking at the assets that all these public officials had, trying to figure out how they could have afforded it on their meager public income, and going back, going through all their bank records, checking all this stuff, amassing powerful cases against these people, and then there have been some 65 indictments. It mean, it's a massive number of indictments—and a 100% conviction rate.

JR: In Kentucky alone.

JN: This is just in Kentucky. There has been very little publicity about it, partly because they have not gone through the usual U.S. attorneys. Very little discussion in the press, although it showed up in the press a little bit down there. But before this raft of indictments there was this eerie wave of retirements and resignations of people, very similar to what we are seeing right now. There is a pattern to this.

JR: Maybe the Fifth Column was cutting its teeth here on some of these smaller operations and then got the big picture.

JN: I think so. In fact, they're rolling this out across the country. I think they went from Kentucky. There's a crew that was doing some work in Chicago. I've heard that Connecticut is on a hit list, maybe soon. I think there's like 16 states that it's going to roll out there. But this basically a federal effort aimed at state-level corruption. The problem is who is going to police the federal government? No government can really police itself. So that's the problem. The corruption at the highest levels. How do you get at it? That's why I think these people decided a vigilante action was about the only way to do it. But it's applying, essentially, some of these same techniques.

JR: You know it's amazing when think and you contrast the efforts of these five or six people—the Fifth Column—to the hundreds of thousands of Americans who have allied themselves with various militia and patriotic groups and they're studying the Constitution and so forth, and wanting very badly to take this country back from the graft and corruption which has permeated virtually every level of big government. And you've got five or six guys with high technology, a Cray computer and a truck, apparently—and this may be oversimplifying it—doing everything that most of us who care about this country would like to see happen.

JN: Well, it's not just these five guys. They're getting a lot of help from their buddies in the intelligence community and in other agencies. These guys are just like the rallying cry around which a lot of good people in government now are—I mean there is apparently information coming out of government like a sieve—files that people have been maintaining for years that they knew they could never do anything with. Now all of sudden, "Hey, here's another account you ought to go look at." And they start getting swamped with leads now.

I don't have records of these Swiss bank accounts yet myself, but I tell you this, nobody has sued me. Nobody has even written me a letter threatening me, and in fact, that brings me to another interesting point. The government's effort to suppress this story—you know I wrote this for Forbes and Forbes chickened out, wouldn't run it, but they gave me permission to publish it elsewhere. I think knowing that any other big-deal publication would dare touch it because of the heavy-duty issues involved here. Another place I took it was Insight magazine. Paul Rodriguez, the editor there, did a lot of work to corroborate it, made a lot of calls around Washington. He got a visit from a military intelligence guy from the Pentagon saying, "Lay off this subject. You don't know what you're dealing with." Wall Street Journal wouldn't touch it. New York Times scared to death of it.

It was Media Bypass, this funny little magazine from Indiana. I kind of refer to it as the sort of Hustler magazine of right-wing political writing. Actually they're quite eclectic, more of a libertarian sort of thing. They called me, because they had heard that I had this story out there from one of the sources and in fact they had managed to corroborate the key element on their own. They had found out from one of their sources that the IRS had a four-man team surveilling Foster during daylight hours. In fact one of those guys actually read part of the surveillance report off a computer screen to a source. So it wasn't that hard for them to corroborate. I don't think it would be that hard for any of these big-deal media conglomerates to corroborate the fact that there was a surveillance thing going on. In fact, a Paris-based intelligence newsletter corroborated this, too. It's not that hard to prove, substantially.

Yeah, there's no documents, but I mean Woodward and Bernstein didn't have documents. They had trusted sources, and they went with stories when they believed they were true. Why the media hasn't touched this, I don't know. It's totally bizarre. In the case of Media Bypass, just as it was going to press—Jim Leach—his House Banking Committee staff—this was after I'd spent three hours with them in Washington, explaining all this stuff to them—when they found out the story was actually going to be published, they called up and requested a pre-release copy of the story and they immediately leaked it to the libel attorney for Systematics, which is now called All Tell Information...

JR: In Arkansas.

JN: Yeah. This is this Arkansas front company that Foster was involved with—so that their San Francisco attorney could try and threaten Media Bypass and prevent them from running the story. Media Bypass just thumbed their nose and said, "Go take a flying leap. We're going to run this story. We think it's true." They went away. They never sued. They never wrote a threatening letter. Guess What! A couple of weeks ago, John Streuve, CEO of Systematics, announced his retirement, at age 56, to go spend more time with his family.

The government went overboard to prevent the publication of this story in rather heavy-handed ways. Why? National security? Probably. I think just the fear of exposure of the corruption.

JR: Well, national security has taken on an entirely different meaning in many ways, hasn't it.

JN: Well, it's the rug under which you can sweep a lot of dust. Maybe we can put it that way.

JOIN UP

JR: What can individuals do, James Norman, to try to move this entire process forward besides stay on the sidelines and cheer loudly, as I'm sure many of them will do as the months roll by.

JN: Well, one thing I've started to do is pray a lot! We're making a modest proposal at Media Bypass that we all basically become members of the Fifth Column Society and start doing some of the basic legwork ourselves, of keeping these people honest. Actually it turns out it's not that hard to do, and in fact, we've got another story that's going to run in the March issue. It was written by a former Wharton University professor. This guy is a character. His name is Orlan Gravve. He's one of my heroes. After he left Wharton he started his own software company, developing software for pricing derivatives. Really arcane stuff, but this stuff became essentially one of the most frequently used pieces of software in major banks and brokerage houses for financial pricing of financial instruments. What do you know? The intelligence community comes to his company and says, "Hey, can we use you guys as a front company so we can help spy on all these banks and brokerage houses?" I think that's what sent him up the wall. He thought, "Holy smokes, we're living in a surveillance state here." So he got quite upset about it and he's actually written sort of a primer on the kind of data bases and public sources of information you can go to.

Basically, go back to the basics. Find out what kind of assets these people have. Where are they? What are they worth? How could they possibly have amassed this. You know, the home on Martha's Vineyard. The million-dollar condo in Washington, the two Volvos, the expensive kids' education, all of the perks and all of this stuff on their meager public salaries. The numbers don't add up. If you just go back and do this kind of stuff, and what we are proposing in Media Bypass is that everybody goes and does this stuff—send it to your local newspaper, send it to the IRS, and if nobody does anything about it, send it to Media Bypass and be sure and tell us what newspaper wouldn't print it. And we'll just keep going after this stuff. We can fill up this magazine for years and years on this kind of stuff. It will be a whole new career for us. I think it needs to be done. The government can't police itself. It's corrupt and the enforcement system is essentially corrupt. It takes the public doing this kind of stuff.

I think the pace is going to accelerate now, because I think the whole cover-up of Foster's death is unwinding. And as that becomes known, the position of President Clinton and Hillary Clinton is going to become untenable and it's going to just raise all kinds of questions and the rate of retirements—the lame excuses are not going to hold up anymore. The next time you hear someone announce their retirement, you can think "Swiss bank account" and it'll probably make a lot more sense.

JR: Wow. Amazing. What's next for James Norman besides coming back and visiting with us again I hope in about three or four months.

JN: Well, I guess I'm going to keep poking along at this and Media Bypass is eager to get more of this stuff. I haven't gone out looking for another job. Oh, that's another thing. I got fired from Forbes, basically. Not because of this story, necessarily, but because after it ran in Media Bypass and I was continuing to work on it on my own time, basically, I came across the fact that Caspar Weinberger had one of these Swiss bank accounts. The Secretary of Defense. He's the chairman of Forbes. He's the co-chairman of Steve Forbes' presidential campaign now. His account apparently got raided for 2.3 million dollars. This account number that had been given to me—I didn't even know whose it was—I gave it to the Fifth Column guys and they played around with it for awhile. Months later, they said, "Oh yeah, didn't you know whose account that was? That was Cap's." BOING! Two hours after I put that in a memo to the boss, I was offered a buy-out and they said, "Hit the road. Bye." I am working on a book effort here and somehow or another, we're going to get this stuff into print.

JR: I think you need to do that and I think it will happen even if it's in these so-called underground or alternative media.

I can't thank you enough for spending two hours with us. It's been enlightening, to say the very least. I congratulate you. I salute you and a lot of our listeners would do the same. Thank you and have a good evening and we'll talk again.

Judges Whose Names Did Not Appear On The Election Ballot

2/9/96 GARY WEAN

Editor's note: For our readers who have wondered what ever happened to Gary Wean's lawsuit against Gov. Pete Wilson, Judge Lance Ito, Attorney Johnny Cochran, et al., we have this update for you. You may recall that Johnny Cochran was the only person successfully "served" with this lawsuit. (Gary's entire lawsuit was presented in the 9/26/95 CONTACT as the Front Page story; see box on this page.) Well, the time came for Gary Wean to file what is termed a Request for Entry of Default with the court clerk in the County of Kern—and, without spoiling the punchline—you are about to read what happened. In the meantime, you'll also find in Part II of this series (in next week's CONTACT) documents from Gary that contain some VERY INTERESTING AND TELLING information concerning just HOW "they" are able to justify and/or rationalize judges, sitting on the bench dispensing justice, who were never elected by ballot. But, in the meantime, read on.

PART ONE OF A TWO-PART SERIES

In the fall of 1995, the two convicted L.A.P.D. officers in the Rodney King case were due to be released from the federal penitentiary.

Los Angeles County Supervisor Michael D.

Antonovich knew the terrible problems that had beset the two officers, Sgt. Stacy Koon and Officer Laurence Powell, and their families.

In a move of compassion for their families, Supervisor Antonovich arranged a dinner at the L.A.P.D. Academy to raise funds to pay lawyers fees and expenses incurred from the two trials.

The two officers were released to what is called a "rehab house" in Los Angeles, a pre-conditioning prior to their full release but still under parole conditions.

The "rehab house" was attacked by a heavily armed man with the intent to kill Stacy Koon. Sgt. Koon was away at the time but several people were killed by the attacker before he himself was killed by the police.

In an act that amounts to vengeful persecution the federal judges are trying to increase the length of the original sentence and return the officers to the federal penitentiary.

Also, the ADL put terrific influence and power-pressure on Supervisor Antonovich to cancel the fund-raising dinner.

The L.A. Police Academy is private property and this dinner in no way was connected to the city or county government or politics.

The first document you are about to read is a letter I wrote to Supervisor Michael D. Antonovich on November 2, 1995, regarding his intention of holding the fund-raising dinner. Along with this letter to the supervisor, I included a copy of my lawsuit, Case No. 229531 AEW. The initials are those of the judge, Arthur E. Wallace, in the County of Kern.

This setoff an eye-opening set of events that will amaze the citizens of America.

In his response, L.A. County Counsel De Witt W. Clinton stated that the lawyers and "unelected" judges relied totally on California Supreme Court case Binns v. Hite (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 107. The reading of this case, Binns v. Hite and a connected case, Barrett v. Hite, exposes the most fantastic California State corruption that, when seen and read by your own eyes, will be absolutely unbelievable.

Part II of this article (next week's CONTACT) will include a copy of the two infamous California Supreme Court cases and my letter of January 2, 1996, responding to Supervisor Antonovich and L.A. County Counsel De Witt W. Clinton.

Judge Ito Not A Judge? Nightmare For Dream Team Wean Sues For Fraud And RICO

In a bold move by retired Police Detective Gary Wean, a major lawsuit was filed in KERN COUNTY on September 19 [case #229531] against defendants: California Governor Pete Wilson, Johnnie Cochran, Robert Shapiro, Lance Ito, and Does 1 through 700 inclusive, for conspiracy to commit fraud and to defraud: lack of judicial jurisdiction; illegally changing the California State Constitution and surreptitiously legislating an illegal election code statute without legislative jurisdiction; conspiracy to violate the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organization Act (RICO); violation of the Civil Rights Act; and violation of the Mail and Wire Fraud Act, to name a few of the 15 counts.

And what, possibly, you may ask, could Gary Wean's purpose be in filing such a suit? The answer is clear and simple: O.J. SIMPSON HAS A RIGHT TO RECEIVE A FAIR TRIAL—

AND IF O.J. DOES NOT RECEIVE A FAIR TRIAL THEN YOU OR I MAY BE NEXT!

Has anyone else noticed that Judge Ito has ruled against anything which would help the Defense? This is the very same tactic used several decades ago by Judge David Horowitz in the trial over the murder of Vicki Morgan and Marvin Pancoast—with many of the very same current players. As in

In my lawsuit against Johnny Cochran, et al., there has been a little trickery conducted by the Kern County Court Clerk.

Johnny Cochran failed to answer the lawsuit and I filed an "Entry of Default", which a Deputy Clerk dated, initialed, and put in the legal file.

Due to a little clerk skulduggery, it became impossible to make a hearing set in Superior Court (Kern County) on February 9, 1996 at 8:00 a.m. On Wednesday, February 7, 1996, I sent the entire file to Superior Court Judge Arthur E. Wallace, Dept. 7, Kern County, California. Federal Express has guaranteed me that it will be (will have been) delivered to the Court Clerk not later than Thursday, February 8, 1996, 3:00 p.m.

Supervisor Mike Antonovich:

You are absolutely right in arranging a dinner for Laurence Powell at the Los Angeles Police Academy.

Again, you are correct when you state that the officers were following procedures and orders laid down by their superiors when they lawfully arrested Rodney King. These commands that the officers were obeying came down all the way from the Police Commission.

Re: The prosecution of the Los Angeles police officers in the Rodney King Case.

None of the persons claiming to be municipal and superior court judges were lawfully elected to the position of judge.

None of the judicial procedures involved were conducted by lawfully elected judges. [Exhibit "A"]

The Los Angeles County Clerk is guilty of "high-grade" felonies for certifying and filing documents purporting that judicial candidates and appointees have been elected to office while knowing that they had never been on a ballot and had not received even one vote which is necessary and required to be elected as a judge.

The Los Angeles County Clerk not only involved himself in criminal violations but can be sued as an individual in federal court for violations of civil rights laws (denying the people the right to vote for the candidate of their choice). In a Pennsylvania case of November 1991, the U.S. Supreme Court, in an 8-0 decision, ruled that state and county officials can be sued and forced to pay out of their own pockets for violations while acting under color of law. [Exhibit "B"]

Any money raised at the Police Academy dinner for the benefit of Powell should not be used to pay Powell's alleged legal bills. The money should be used to obtain Powell a new and trusted lawyer to file for reinstatement to his job and pension for the civil rights violations committed against him.

The entire trial at Simi Valley and prior judicial proceedings were a farce—a terrible, evil set-up wherein there was no legal judge presiding. No judicial jurisdiction or authority for any of the proceedings and no authority to select and activate a jury. It was a total non-trial, wholly void and ineffective.

The alleged federal trial and prosecution of Officer Powell and Sgt. Koon in Los Angeles must be dismissed. The most inflammable testimony presented and used to convict Sgt. Koon and Officer Powell in the federal trial was questionable self-serving statements made by Officer Ted Briseno in the Simi Valley Superior Court non-trial.

Recordings of Briseno's statements made in the superior court non-trial were played in federal court. These inadmissible recordings were the subject of a defense motion to the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeal to reject the recordings. But Judge Harry Pregerson ruled that the recordings were admissible and Koon and Powell were convicted. Harry Pregerson's ruling and the ensuing result of a guilty verdict revealed Pregerson's and Stanley Mosk's involvement in a terrible, deep conspiracy against America which they have conducted for 50 years.

In 1946 and 1947 I was a member of the L.A.P.D. I was working Metropolitan Division (Narcotics and Vice in Old Chinatown) and I observed Pregerson, Mickey Cohen, Abe Phillips, Nathan Turkebtahn and Sidney Bocarsky in clandestine meetings with international drug smugglers and dealers Abraham Davidian and Benny Wong. Shortly afterward this investigation led to the arrest of Abraham Davidian in possession of a large amount of narcotics. Davidian talked; he was going to testify against Pregerson, Chen and many more people—lawyers and judges including Stanley

Mosk, presently a state supreme court justice. Federal narcotics agents took Davidian from L.A.P.D. jurisdiction and hid him out under their protection in a secret location in Fresno where strangely, while sleeping, Davidian was shot in the head and killed. Consequently Pregerson, Cohen, Mosk and many others who are still in high office escaped a prosecution that would have put them in prison for years and exposed their giant crime organization.

From that point on because of their extreme hatred for me, I have been harassed and tortured by Federal Judge Pregerson, Stanley Mosk and the vicious ADL. The constant harassment by Pregerson and Mosk through their secret contacts in the L.A.P.D. forced me to resign and I joined the Ventura City Police Department where, as a Det. Sgt., I discovered that Abe Phillips and Mickey Cohen were expanding their gangster operations northward into Ventura County. They

LOS ANGELES COUNTY

ELECTIONS JUDGES

New Judge May Not Even Be on the Ballot

By CAROL MCGRAW
and LOISTIMNICK
TIMES STAFF WRITERS

In the only contested Los Angeles County Superior Court race, voters could wind up with a new judge who does not even appear on the ballot rather than either of the two contenders actually running.

The incumbent in Office No. 8 is Judge Lourdes Baird, who has been nominated by President George Bush for U.S. attorney in the Central California District.

If she wins reelection today over her opponent, lawyer Mitchel J. Ezer, and is then confirmed for the federal job by the U.S. Senate later this month, the judgeship vacancy would be filled by appointment by Gov. George Deukmejian.

Aside from that unusual race, there are only four other contested positions among the 125 judgeship openings in the county—Municipal Court races in the Antelope Valley, Downey, Los Angeles Office No. 13 and Santa Monica.

The hottest battle is being waged in Santa Monica, the center of a continuing controversy over rent control, where three of the four candidates have lined up landlord or tenant group endorsements.

In the other races, where issues are not as well defined, the incumbents have a strong edge, as history has shown in most judicial elections. In those cases in which the office is vacant, the election may hinge on evaluations by the Los Angeles County Bar Assn., slate mailings and newspaper endorsements.

In its election ritual, the bar association has rated the judicial candidates as "well qualified," "qualified" or "not qualified."

Although many candidates rated unfavorably by the association have won handily in past elections, the group's critics said the evaluations are the product of a conservative "old boy network" and are shrouded in secrecy.

The ratings are vague—"has not displayed temperament indicative of fitness necessary to be a judge," for example—and the basis of the ratings is not made public.

However, the group's judicial evaluations committee chairman, Sheldon H. Sloan, said the recommendations are "not only substantively but procedurally fair." He said the process is conducted over a three-month period by a large, diverse committee of lawyers and includes an appeal process during which evaluations sometimes are changed.

Bar spokesman Jerry Greenberg said the evaluations are purposely vague. "They are opinion, not facts. As soon as we issue facts, we would be in a position where a court could demand that we identify our sources."

In the contested Superior Court race, both Ezer and Baird have been rated "well qualified" by the bar association. Baird, 55, was appointed to the East Los Angeles Municipal Court by Deukmejian in 1986, to Los Angeles Municipal Court in 1987 and to Superior Court in 1988. Before that she was an assistant U.S. attorney and in private practice, specializing in trial and appellate litigation.

Ezer is a partner in the law firm of Rich & Ezer in Century City. An attorney for 30 years, he has taught at UCLA and Loyola law schools and written several books.

"I am not running against Baird. I'm running against a seat about to be vacated," Ezer said. He contended that voting for Baird means voting to let the governor fill the judgeship later.

But, contended Baird, "Nothing in this world is certain. If the Senate does not confirm me, it wouldn't be the first time they haven't confirmed a nominee. So I'm very much a candidate."

Here is a rundown of the other contested races:

• Santa Monica. The only issue-dominated race, the contest here boils down to perceptions of where the four candidates stand on rent control, although all said they would be objective in deciding landlord-tenant disputes that may come before them.

Many members of Action, a local landlords group, support West Los Angeles Court Commissioner Norman Perry Tarle, 39, was appointed commissioner in 1985 and was a Los Angeles deputy city attorney for six years. He is endorsed by Rep. Henry A. Waxman (D-Los Angeles), county Supervisor Ed Edelman and 54 judges and commissioners.

Santa Monicans for Renters' Rights, the tenants group whose candidates control both the City Council and the city Rent Control Board, has endorsed City Councilman David B. Finkel, a labor attorney. Finkel, 63, is also endorsed by Assemblyman Tom Hayden (D-Santa Monica).

Also running is Sonya Bekoff Molho, a tenants attorney who co-founded the Tenants Organizing Project, a legal aid program for renters. She is endorsed by state Sen. David A. Roberts (D-Los Angeles). If elected, she would be the first woman to hold a Santa Monica municipal judgeship.

James M. Bambrick, 50, who is a Santa Monica Community College District board trustee and civil litigator, said he has no connection with any of the groups—considered by some to be an advantage. He is endorsed by Judge Joseph W. Chandler, who is giving up the judgeship after 20 years.

• Downtown. In the Municipal Court race here, only Marvin Licker received the bar association's "well qualified" rating. David W. Perkins and Leo R. Villa, received "qualified" ratings, and Daniel W. Bunnett was deemed "not qualified."

"It was a bad rap," said Bunnett, 41, of his rating, which stated, "He has not displayed temperament indicative of fitness necessary to be a judge."

Said Bunnett, "I work hard, I grew up in Downey and know the area and its problems well." He has practiced law for more than 15 years and has served as a judge pro tem on more than 100 occasions.

Perkins, 55, served 28 years with the Vernon Fire Department and has been a lawyer since 1977. Perkins, who said he was once a member of the county bar's rating committee, was also critical of it. "They are often taking potshots or splitting hairs, especially when trying to distinguish between well qualified or qualified."

Villa, a 62-year-old retired deputy district attorney and former sheriff's deputy, has 34 years of law enforcement experience and has also served as a temporary judge.

Licker, 65, is the only Downey candidate to get a "well qualified" rating. He has practiced law for 27 years in the Norwalk area and is a full-time court commissioner.

• Los Angeles Office 13. M. Roy Siegel, who is challenging incumbent Emily A. Stevens, received a "not qualified" rating. The committee said he did not have "sufficient professional ability, lacked sufficient work ethic indicative of fitness."

"I believe I got that rating because I am running against an incumbent," Siegel said. "They also asked me during the interview if I were a member of the county bar association. When I said no, that I could still participate in the programs without that, there was stone silence. I guess I should have signed up." He said he appealed the rating.

Siegel, 47, has been practicing law for more than 20 years, and has worked as a temporary judge.

His opponent, Stevens, was appointed to the Municipal Court in 1987, and is assigned to the court's felony preliminary hearing panel where she has handled more than 1,000 hearings. She was a Los Angeles assistant city attorney for 12 years. Her endorsers include Mayor Tom Bradley and Los Angeles County Dist. Atty. Ira Reiner.

• Lancaster. Antelope Municipal Court Judge Richard E. Spann rated "well qualified," is being challenged by veteran lawyer De. L. Falls, rated "not qualified."

Spann, 55, switched to law after a 16-year chemical engineering career in the aerospace industry. He specialized in civil law for 11 years before being appointed to a vacancy on the Municipal Court last year. He is endorsed by Lancaster law enforcement officers, the local bar association, the Antelope district attorney's office and all other local judges.

Falls, 69, has practiced law in Lancaster for nearly 37 years and said he decided that with the last of his 10 children reaching adulthood, it was time to make a run for judge.

A proponent of alternative sentencing, Falls said the county bar has few Antelope Valley members and does not understand how things work "up here." He said he was informed that his "not qualified" rating was based on allegations that he was late to court, occasionally unprepared, and on several occasions had not kept up with the law—charges he denies.

While the candidates in the other 120 uncontested races will not appear on the ballot, a provision in the law allows any voter to file a petition with the election commission asking to conduct a write-in campaign. That would force the race in question to be placed on the November ballot.

were secretly associated with a lawyer, Ben Nordman of the Levy family who owned the Bank of A. Levy. Nordman was also a U.S. Commissioner and engaged in corrupt court operations involving bailbonds with Abe Phillips and his bonding scams. Ben Nordman's law partner was Jerome Berenson, the presiding judge of Ventura Superior Court. I became the victim again of a severe conspiracy of job harassment when I, along with Det. Sgt. Ed Patton of the Oxnard City Police Department, exposed their involvement in narcotics and other gangster operations. In 1958 I returned to Los Angeles County and joined the L.A. District Attorney Bureau of Investigation. At that time I was working undercover and my pension fund money was transferred from Ventura to Los Angeles and, at the orders of Dist. Attorney William McKesson, it was placed in the hands of investigator Jack Livingston. Livingston was the agent officially designated by Dist. Attorney William McKesson to take care of my pension fund. I talked with Livingston numerous times about the condition of my pension fund and why it didn't reflect on my pay records and he repeatedly assured me that everything was taken care of and that they were just doing it that way so my status of working undercover could not be exposed through the office records.

At one time I discussed this matter personally with Dist. Attorney William McKesson at which time he assured me that everything was taken care of and there was no need to be concerned; Livingston was present at the time. Then Jack Livingston was mysteriously killed and I could learn nothing more about my pension fund status.

My partner for seven years, Frank Hronek, and I had informants and were investigating an operation of Mickey Cohen and Freddie O'Tash. They were bugging motel rooms and making tape recordings of Lana Turner and Marilyn Monroe having sex with Mickey Cohen's Italian "lover-boys" Johnny Stompanato, Georgie Piscitelli, Sammy Lo Cigno, Joe Di Carlo who were operated by their Jew coordinator Roger Leonard. Roger's brother was Hollywood producer Herbert Leonard, who was one of Mickey Cohen's leads into Hollywood.

This bugging operation of Cohen's and O'Tash's coincided with our investigation into Cohen's and Menachem Begin's operations. We were recording and photographing their meetings at the Beverly Wilshire Hotel.

Our operator, Hank Jacobs was Jewish and understood them when Begin and Cohen talked in Yiddish. Our recordings were translated into English and Frank and I played them for D.A. William McKesson in his office. Only the three of us were present. Later we played the film of Cohen and Begin when they went to Melvin Belli's house and met with Caspar Weinberger. Later when we met with McKesson we played tapes of Cohen and Begin how they were going to "duke" Marilyn Monroe into JFK and get sex tapes on them so as to compromise JFK. When McKesson learned how Frank and I were digging into corruption of the Democratic Party and how it connected to Israel he flew into a rage screaming that he would kill us if we did any more investigating into JFK and the Democratic Party. He demanded the tapes, which we gave him, but we had made copies for our own safety. It was shortly after this that Jack Livingston mysteriously died.

Since 1958 when I was a Det. Sgt. with the Ventura Police Department I had been investigating information that the Oxnard National Guard Armory was going to be burglarized and large amounts of heavy caliber weapons and explosives were to be stolen. They supposedly were going to be taken to Israel. These crimes involved Commissioner Ben Nordman and Judge Jerome Berenson and lawyer William P. Clark, who worked for them and was a Democrat at the time. Clark later became a Republican when they duked him into Ronald Reagan. They also had a plan formulated by Begin and Cohen that they called "Race Riot and Revolution". Clark was a top operator of the plan to foment race hatred and riots between White and Black, and the outline and inspiration came from Stanley Scheinbaum and Ira Glasser whose headquarters were in Santa Barbara.

Clark was so certain of the coming riots that he kept one of the stolen Oxnard Armory 50 cal. machine guns and mounted it in his house. At that time he made statements that "when the revolution comes I'll kill every Mexican and nigger that comes in range."

Patton and I gave information to the FBI and they arrested and convicted two men. Mickey Cohen, Commissioner Ben Nordman and Judge Berenson were closely connected to these two men, who were supplied by Abe Phillips. We also advised the FBI that Mickey Cohen and Begin had hidden the weapons at a Jew retreat, Camp Ramah in the Ojai Mountains, California. The FBI never recovered the weapons or came out with the involvement of the ADL which we had told them of. Later an article appeared in the Oxnard paper that the FBI believed the weapons had been delivered to Mexican insurgents who were planning a revolution in Mexico. But this was a lie; the weapons were kept in Cohen's possession and later were transferred to Rabbi Meir Kahane when he formed the JDL and Kach Party.

When Kahane was killed, Irving Rubin took possession of the weapons. Rubin met with David Koresh in Hollywood and made a deal with Koresh to conceal the weapons and explosives at the compound in Waco.

In 1963 Frank and I had been investigating serious criminal child pornography, molestations and slavery of children by wealthy people. We came upon knowledge and evidence that certain officials in the Los Angeles District Attorney's Office were involved in flying young children, 10 to 14-year-old boys and girls from South America to Los Angeles and selling them to wealthy people in Beverly Hills.

Frank and I were called to William McKesson's office, where in a rage he threatened us that this time we were as good as dead—that he was going to have us killed if we didn't destroy every bit of evidence that we had.

We were called to another meeting in Asst. D.A. Manly Bowler's office. Capt. Joseph McClure was there and certain details of Frank's and my evidence were discussed.

I was forced to resign and Frank Hronek was ordered to other duties and direly threatened if he did not keep his mouth shut.

I went to the L.A. District Attorney's Payment and Pension Fund Office and requested my records. I was told that my records were kept in William McKesson's office, but I could never get them from him. A short time later I was appointed to the civil service position of Chief Investigator for the Ventura County Public Defender Office. In 1966 I made numerous efforts to have the Los Angeles District Attorney's Office transfer my employment and pension fund records to Ventura County, which they never did. My Ventura City Police Department pension fund was commenced in January 1955, Los Angeles District Attorney's Office in July 1958, and Ventura County Public Defender Office in 1966 to 1970.

The Public Defender of Ventura County, Richard

State officials may be liable, top court rules

WASHINGTON (AP) — State officials who violate someone's rights while performing governmental duties may be sued and forced to pay monetary damages, the Supreme Court ruled Tuesday.

The 8-0 decision in a Pennsylvania case could expose officials to costly lawsuits when they are accused of violating a Civil War-era federal law aimed at preventing abuses of power.

Imposing personal liability on state officers may hamper their performance of public duties," Justice Sandra Day O'Connor wrote for the court.

But she said the law is clear. State officials are not immune from being sued "solely by virtue of the official nature of their acts."

In other developments, the court:

■ Heard arguments in an Illinois dispute over the use of hearsay evidence in child sex abuse cases. At issue is whether juries may hear statements allegedly victimized children make to others if the young accusers do not testify at trial.

■ Heard arguments in a Texas case over the liability of cities when municipal workers are killed or injured on the job.

The court's decision in the Pennsylvania case cleared the way for trial of a suit against Barbara Hafer, the state's auditor general. Hafer, a Republican, was accused of firing 18 Democratic employees for political reasons.

The workers sued, alleging they were fired based on unsubstantiated charges that they had "bought jobs" in the auditor general's office.

Hafer was elected to her post in 1988 after a campaign in which she made the job-buying allegations.

The employees said they were dismissed after she took office without any further investigation of whether they paid to be hired or promoted.

They also said James West, acting U.S. attorney in Pennsylvania at the time and a Republican appointee, conspired with Hafer against them.

The high court rejected Hafer's argument that she is immune from such a lawsuit because she acted in her official capacity.

The Constitution's 11th Amendment bars most lawsuits against state governments, and the court previously has given public officials some protection against civil rights suits.

The justices in 1989 ruled that state officials may not be sued in their official capacities for violating the same 120-year-old law at issue in Hafer's case. The practical effect was to bar those who sue from recovering monetary damages from the state through lawsuits that name state officials as defendants.

But the 1989 ruling left unclear whether officials ever could be forced to pay out of their own pockets.

The court on Tuesday said they could.

O'Connor said the 1871 law is intended to provide relief for those who say they have been victimized by "persons acting under color of any statute, ordinance, regulation, custom or usage."

"The requirement of action under color of state law means that Hafer may be liable for discharging (the workers) precisely because of her authority as auditor general," O'Connor said. "We cannot accept the novel proposition that this same official authority insulates Hafer from suit."

O'Connor noted that officials who are sued may prevail by showing they acted in good faith, meaning they relied on what they believed to be a law or policy that violated no one's rights.

E. Erwin was a lawyer from Los Angeles with deep ties to William McKesson and Captain Joseph McClure and the Democratic Party.

Erwin (actually Richard Fish) came from another state to Los Angeles in the late '30s.

Mysteriously Fish assumed the alias Richard E. Erwin and, with false scholastic records, enrolled at Southwestern Law School.

Shortly before I was forced from the Los Angeles District Attorney's Office, Hronek and I were investigating the murder of our informant, Mary Mercadante, a close friend of Marilyn Monroe. A prostitute, Mary was a girlfriend of Georgie Piscitelli, one of Mickey Cohen's Italian "lover-boys". Then Mary became a girlfriend of lawyer Harry Weiss, who got Mary a job at Abe Phillips' bail bond office. Abe Phillips viciously sexually assaulted Mary in his office, and criminal charges were filed against Phillips. We had tape recorded death threats made by Cohen to Mary that if she didn't drop her charges against Abe that they would kill her, which they did. The D.A. prosecuted Phillips but without Mary's testimony he was acquitted. Shortly after this, Marilyn Monroe was killed, and soon afterward JFK was assassinated.

Mickey Cohen and Abe Phillips swore that they would destroy me and my job for my interfering with their gangster operations. Cohen, Capt. Joseph McClure and Richard E. Erwin, etc. conspired with Judge Jerome Berenson and Commissioner Ben Nordman to file false charges against me and I was discharged from my position as Chief Investigator for the Public Defender Office and denied my pension fund which Capt. Joseph McClure claimed he could find no record of in the L.A. County records.

From 1970 until the present I have suffered untold vicious harassment and attempts against my life and have been denied the right to a hearing in superior court and the federal court by Jerome Berenson, Stanley Mosk and Harry Pregerson and numerous other persons claiming to be judges. This is set out in the lawsuit attached to this letter.

At this time I Request and/or Demand that the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors review the circumstances and the facts of the death threats by McKesson and my job termination with the Los Angeles District Attorney Office and the fact that I should have kept my job (as Frank Hronek did) until he and I would have retired. My back pay and pension should be calculated the same as Hronek's during that period.

For the last twenty years and more, there have been hundreds and hundreds of lawyers who have falsely operated as judges with no jurisdiction or authority to do so in L.A. County.

Hundreds of these phony judges received money from the county under false pretenses and fraud and many of them have retired and are still receiving pensions illegally. These monies amount to at least a trillion dollars that have been stolen from the people and they must be recovered. The intricacies of the Judges' Pension Fund are not understood by the taxpayers but the county supervisors are well versed in it—where the money comes from and who administers it.

The fantastic amount of money that can be recovered from these gangsters can cure the financial problems of the L.A. County government for years to come.

These gangsters will argue and threaten that such a disclosure of their phony judicial crimes will open the jail-house doors for thousands of criminals, but this is not so. It at most would allow them new trials, and lawyers would have a whole new bonanza of litigation and fees for their defense. For the people it would be a Godsend—the greatest chance ever presented to appoint and elect new, honest judges. America could return to a constitutional judicial system. The gangster lawyers could be cleansed like never before dreamed.

Politicians from L.A. to Washington, D.C. are grossly underestimating the temperament of the people and their terrible frustration and anger at judicial and political corruption and the fact that they cannot be heard.

I assure you it is a volatile situation that can burst at the slightest spontaneous provocation. Once it starts it could so damage our government framework that we could never get back to where we were.

Scum like Stanley Mosk, Harry Pregerson and Stanley Scheinbaum have been in absolute power over 50 years. The perversion and damage they have done to our country, our judicial system and the people cannot even be described to its fullest horror.

One of the surest signs that our government still exists with honor would be for our representatives to come forth in an unstoppable movement to put an end to the corrupt judicial conspiracy.

I had a lawyer in Los Angeles who was representing me, a Black lawyer. He was so viciously threatened [to cause him] to sabotage my case that he hid and concealed my documents in a closet in his office and did not file them. It was in this same case that Federal Judge Harry Pregerson ordered and conspired with U.S. Supreme Court clerks to sabotage a Writ of Certiorari and prevent the justices from hearing it. A White female lawyer from L.A. who was representing me was threatened and terrorized so severely that she couldn't function. Another lawyer who was representing me, Dean Pic'l was paid off and he sabotaged my hearing. He was later convicted of stealing from and sabotaging his clients and was sent to prison.

I have physical evidence, intelligence reports, tapes, audio and video and documents, etc., etc., that Hronek and I obtained that will expose the entire corrupt judicial organization that Harry Pregerson and Stanley

STAFF ANALYSIS: ACA 99 (SIEROTY) As Amended May 8, 1974
AB 3109 (SIEROTY) As Amended May 8, 1974

SUBJECT: De-masculinizes our State Constitution

SUMMARY: ACA 99 amends specified sections of our State Constitution to do the following:

1. Substitutes non-sex linked references in places where masculine references are made
2. Adds title of "Assemblywomen"
3. Substitutes "presiding officer" for "chairman"
4. Changes "material men" to "persons furnishing material"
5. Substitutes "workers' compensation" for workmen's compensation

Companion bill, AB 3109 amends various code sections to change "workmen's compensation" to "workers' compensation". Requires forms to reflect "workers' compensation when present supply is depleted.

BACKGROUND: Author left controversial Section 6 of Article IV unchanged so as not to reinstate the Reapportionment Commission.

Similar de-masculinizing amendments have been made in for Article I (Declaration of Rights) in ACA 60 (Meade).

BALLOT DEADLINE: June 8, 1974 for the November ballot, otherwise a companion bill is needed. Absolute deadline with companion bill is June 28.

COMMENTS:

1. Very few masculine references are made in our State Constitution. This ACA would probably make our State the first to have a Constitution free of sex-linked titles.
2. Page 3, line 39 of AB 3109 refers to "his use". Should this be amended?
3. Last week, the League of Women Voters gave men full membership, but rejected changing the name of the League. They also voted to retain "chairman" for all committee heads.

Mosk have built and operated over the last 50 years. I wrote a book, printed in 1987, a report of more than 700 pages with index and took it and evidence to Washington, D.C. to Senator Joseph Biden, the chairman of the U.S. Senate Committee on the Judiciary. Biden covered it up. In the report written over 15 years ago I exposed the fanatical, insane rabbis of the Bar Ilan University where they taught Jew law that sanctioned assassination of anyone that they designated to be their enemy—and how this was connected to Harry Pregerson, Mickey Cohen and Menachem Begin, who was operating in America at the time. And how Rabbi Meir Kahane created the JDL and the Kach Party and how the National Guard weapons were transferred from Cohen to Kahane and then to Irving Rubin, an insane fanatical Jew assassin.

Chief Daryl Gates has a copy of the audio-video tape of Alfred Bloomingdale and Vickie Morgan having sadomasochistic sex, with government officials and Israeli spies involved. Gates will play it for you. He has played it for others. You will be amazed and disgusted when you see the danger these treasonous people put our country in. Vickie Morgan was murdered and her boyfriend framed. This was done by judges who weren't judges.

I gave Johnny Cochran information regarding who killed Nicole Simpson and Ron Goldman. Goldman was a "lover-boy", along with Kato Kaelin, working for the ADL the same as Mickey Cohen's "lover-boys" operated. Instead of exposing the persons actually responsible for the murders, Cochran proceeded to use the information to frame the Los Angeles Police Department. Cochran's purpose in doing this was that he considered the people who committed the crimes as being far more powerful politically than were the police and that they could destroy his future as a lawyer.

The "lover-boys" job is to get next to Hollywood women, compromise them and, as spies, pick their brains as to their husbands and families' political and business activity. They turn in their secret reports to their ADL handlers and are paid.

It was a setup because the ADL believed that O.J. Simpson and other influential Hollywood Blacks were connecting with Farrakhan in a Black power base and the ADL would lose control of the solid-Black Democratic vote that they have so long controlled.

The "lover-boys" spy reports of the espionage ring were being routed to Stanley Scheinbaum, the head of the Police Commission and a top ADL agent under Harry Pregerson.

Get the Vicki Morgan-Marvin Pancoast file; study who is involved, including detectives. Get the Ele, Esther Ruven murder file. Defendants Jehuda Avital and Joseph Zakaria were convicted. Observe how Jew assassins handle knives in their merciless cutting and blood-letting of their victims—the same MO as Nicole Simpson and Ron Goldman.

Mayor Thomas Bradley was a paid agent of the ADL and his Jew handler was Rabbi Marvin Hier when they extorted millions of dollars from the Coors Brewery. Rabbi Meir Kahane, Irving Rubin and the University of Bar Ilan in Tel Aviv where they teach the Jew law of Halacha, that section of the Jew law that gives Jews the right to legally kill anyone that they have designated as their enemy. The Mishna is the 'first writing of the Jewish oral law' that rules all phases of a Jew's life. The Mishna, the Jew law, is taught to all Jews in their synagogues in America and Jew lawyers and judges constantly override and overrule American constitutional law in the courts in their conspiracy to destroy American law.

L.A. City Councilmen Marvin Braude, Joel Wachs and Zev Yaroslavsky were involved in a drug smuggling operation with Jerry Plotkin. When Plotkin returned to L.A. from Iran, the councilmen got Mayor Bradley to welcome Plotkin as a hero. In a bizarre ritual he was driven to City Hall in a gold limousine with a big yellow ribbon.

In 1981, California Governor George Deukmejian issued an Organized Crime Report in which he stated, "There is an Israeli Crime Organization, the Jews are competitors of the Mafia, they are involved in drug smuggling and specialize in narcotics dealing." The ADL-controlled judiciary quelled and quashed the court actions against Jerry Plotkin's drug scam and covered it up.

Top ADL operators Stanley Scheinbaum and Ira Glasser, from their positions as L.A.P.D. Commissioners, had been conducting a clandestine stalking of Nicole and O.J. Simpson for more than two years prior to the murders.

There are cancelled checks issued by secret bank accounts to pay the "lover-boys" and treasonous police officials, who as paid agents of the ADL conduct sabotage operations against the L.A.P.D.

These terrible depredations by such evil people as Harry Pregerson, Stanley Mosk and Stanley Scheinbaum have been going on for over 50 years. America and its honest, loyal citizens cannot stand any more of it. It is high time that a few honest, brave American officials step forth and expose and destroy this evil menace; the cards must fall where they may, no matter whose face appears on the card.

Harry Pregerson, Stanley Mosk, Stanley Scheinbaum, Ira Glasser, Diane Feinstein, Richard Blum and Bobby Boxer, etc., etc., are all assassins connected to Irving Rubin and Meir Kahane and Menachem Begin's Kach Party. They are the American connection to the University of Bar Ilan in Tel Aviv, whose rabbis teach the Jew law of Halacha. This is the Jew law that allows a Jew to point at someone and designate him as an enemy so he can legally kill him.

Governor Pete Wilson has been taking money from the ADL and involved himself in the Marcia Clark and Fred Goldman scam to create chaos within the Los Angeles District Attorney's Office and the judicial system.

For the Republican Party to adopt Pete Wilson's strategy, evolved by the ADL to capture California's vote, will become a total disaster when it is revealed who the murderers really are. The Republican Party would be far more responsible to stand strongly behind civil law enforcement and its loyal officers who take their duties to protect the people seriously.

The Rabin assassination has split Jews into two distinct, visible factions. Eighty-five percent or more of the Jewish people support peace with the Arabs and the return of their lands in Israel. This huge majority of Jews also demands the destruction of the ADL and JDL and its murderous Halacha assassins both in America and Israel.

Everybody has had enough of years of this small group of terroristic killers and their insanity.

There is no way possible that Pete Wilson can lead the Republicans to an election victory in California by bringing the ADL and JDL and their crazies into the party.

Further, the Black people have also become aware of the ADL and who has been behind their misery and they will vote in the coming national election accordingly.

In less than a month it will be 50 years since I joined the L.A.P.D. and went to the Police Academy. I was a Gunner's Mate 2/c and had only been discharged from the Navy a few weeks before. I felt like I was still at home; the L.A.P.D. inspired great pride. Like the U.S. Navy, the L.A.P.D. had class. It's a terrible sight to watch the ADL gangsters destroy the civil law enforcement of not only the L.A.P.D. but of the entire country.

The Jews have now split into two distinct, visible factions: one, the Jews who are attempting to form and maintain a good government in Israel and who want peace with the Arabs. These people of the Israeli government realize they can no longer afford to hide the fact that an organization of Jew assassins exists and travels back and forth between Israel and the United States and have infiltrated both the U.S. and Israeli governments.

The second faction of Jews are members and agents of the ADL Halacha Rabbis. Dedicated assassins who believe fanatically that the Jew law allows them to legally kill anyone they believe to be their enemy.

In 1974, Alan G. Sieroty was a California Assemblyman from Los Angeles and a dedicated ADL agent. As a major move in Harry Pregerson's scheme to take over the California judicial system, Sieroty set up an amendment designated as ACA 99. Subject: "Demasculinizes our state constitution." [Exhibit 'C']

State Constitutional Amendment, ACA 99, of May 8, 1974, per the Summary, amended the change of specified words pertaining to the substitution of 'non-sex'-linked references in places where 'masculine' references are made. [Exhibit 'D']

Now refer to Exhibit 'D'. Lines are drawn from the specific words to be changed to the side of the page where the exact words that are to be inserted have been typed.

Now refer to Section 16, sub-section (b) of Article VI. The following words have been secretly, conspiratorially and treasonously inserted, "The Legislature may provide that an unopposed incumbent's name not appear on the ballot." This horrendous crime designed by the ADL gangsters to seize control of the judiciary was further capped by their passing Election Code sections based on the phony 'one-liner'.

All of the acts were feloniously committed without legislative jurisdiction. They are totally void. All persons wearing black robes who have never been on a ballot and received at least one vote are 'non-judges'. They must be removed immediately and Governor Pete Wilson, who is a major conspirator of this fantastic, insane conspiracy, must be prohibited from making any further judicial appointments.

On the California State records of the 'Assembly Final History' of ACA No. 99 are the names of assemblymen. [Exhibit 'E'] Sieroty, the ADA agent responsible for the criminal conspiracy is the first name; Wilson is third from the last.

Pete Wilson, as a United States Senator in 1987, was notified of this crime and many other judicial crimes, including murder, at his office in Washington, D.C. At that time he conspired with other senators to cover it up. Wilson has had knowledge of this crime and all the rest of the judicial conspiracy being committed in California since he was notified and advised nearly ten years ago, yet he continues to bring the ADL directly into the Republican Party.

It is not known or believed at this time that any of the other persons named on the document are knowledgeable of the criminal 'one-liner' which was inserted in sub-section (b) of Section 16 of Article VI of the California State Constitution, with the exception of Assemblyman Ken MacDonald. He was known to be a major conspirator from the beginning with Alan Sieroty, Harry Pregerson and Judge Jerome Berenson in Ventura.

These documents and others too numerous to itemize at this time were obtained by myself from the official records of the California Secretary of State, March Fong Eu. This was shortly before Fong Eu destroyed a major portion of the state's files. Fong Eu was involved in Asian drug smuggling with her husband and was nearly killed when her throat was slit. (You should get the police file.)

This murder attempt was committed by a man who was primed by the ADL but with the cover of just a common burglar. Fong Eu was appointed as an ambassador to Micronesia where her husband is deeply involved in drug smuggling but they are now controlled by the ADL-Halacha Rabbis. The ADL has controlled the drug trade from Asia to the U.S. with an iron hand since before the early 1970s. Harry Pregerson's son Dean and his wife, both lawyers, had an office very close to Judge Jerome Berenson's headquarters in the old Ventura Courthouse. They were secretly sent to the South Pacific to coordinate and control the importation of drugs. At the same time they set up all the ground work for giant housing and commercial developments in Guam and the Pacific Islands. Billions of dollars of government money were involved in these transactions through banks and S&Ls in Beverly Hills and Oxnard, California, where at the same time they mixed in billions of dollars of drug money to be laundered. These criminal operations in the Pacific were overseen by Harry Pregerson's henchman Federal Judge Irving Hill, who made numerous trips to the Pacific to check on operations and bring back secret documents and money skimmed from the operations.

In the late 50s and early 60s Menachem Begin and Mickey Cohen were hitting up on the rich Jews of Hollywood and Beverly Hills for donations to Israel for arms and their military. These wealthy Jews had generated into an enormous group who had invested money in Israeli government land that Israel had taken from the Arabs. With ADL pressure Israeli courts ruled that Jews as individuals could buy these stolen Arab lands. Wealthy Jews in Beverly Hills then invested billions if not trillions of dollars in commercial and residential developments. Huge areas covered with shopping malls, condominiums, apartment houses and hotels. With the Israel and Arab peace and the return of all these lands to the Arabs, the wealthy Jews in America who have invested trillions of dollars will lose their money. This group of wealthy Jews are ADL Halachas, fanatic Jews who do not intend to lose their money and investments. The most prominent leader of this group is Rabbi Marvin Hier, a dangerous, fanatical mad-man. If the ADL and JDL is not destroyed, there will be political assassinations and murders throughout the country.

In the mid-1950s George Bush was well known in the oil field industry of Ventura County. It was known as Ventura Avenue, an area of great oil activity and drilling equipment companies. One of the most popular water-holes for the big dealers in the oil industry was the Sportsman Bar and Grill on California Street, just a block below the old Ventura Courthouse. Bush became associated with William P. Clark, a wealthy oilfield operator and lawyer in Judge Berenson and U.S. Commissioner Nordman's law office. At the same time Bush became associated with Robert Lagomarsino whose father Emilio (Red) Lagomarsino owned the Ventura Bank of Italy and the Ventura Realty Company, which owned most of the town of Ventura and vast oil field investments, including most of the oil leases in the Los Padres National Forest. It was in these days of the fifties that George Bush, William P. Clark and Robert Lagomarsino became ADL agents for Berenson and Nordman. Robert Lagomarsino became a California State Senator, then a U.S. Congressman. William P. Clark and Robert Lagomarsino and George Bush were duked into Ronald Reagan and Clark became National Security Director and Secretary of Interior and George Bush became Reagan's Vice President.

The drugs from Asia were quietly shipped through Port Hueneme, Point Mugo Navy Base and Vandenberg Air Force Base, all within the perimeter of the huge ranches of the William P. Clark family, the Lagomarsino family and Reagan's ranch.

Right in the middle of this in Santa Barbara County was the ADL headquarters of Stanley Scheinbaum, Ira Glasser and their A.C.L.U. cover which coordinated the entire setup.

Mena, Arkansas was actually a minor point of drug distribution that was deliberately built up as a diversion to hide the extraordinarily huge shipments of drugs coming quietly through the government coastal ports that were completely covered and protected by Caspar Weinberger, the Secretary of Defense. From the California bases the drugs were easily shipped and routed across the nation.

An examination of the Mena, Arkansas operation easily discloses that, as a major distribution point of huge secret shipments of drugs, it is not a logistic possibility. The Columbian sources could in no way compete with the extreme volume of drugs coming from Asia, but it was a successful diversion to conceal the Asian operation.

The Marcia Clark and Fred Goldman scam to change the jury system is an extremely dangerous operation with which Pete Wilson is involving himself and the Republican Party. George Deukmejian and all the others who were hoodwinked by the ADL's Alan Sieroty and Pete Wilson in the California Constitution scam have a responsibility to expose this conspiracy that could eventually end up as in Israel, with the people not being entitled to a jury at all, just an ADL non-judge. And what chance would anybody have with one of them?

One enormous load has been lifted from the backs of America's politicians and also every Christian in the United States. No longer is the threat of being called 'anti-Semitic' a thing to die of fright from, because the Jews have now visibly and officially split into two factions: one involved in maintaining the government of Israel and peace with the Arabs, and the other a bunch of ADL fanatic Halacha Rabbis and their desperate followers who are poised to assassinate and kill anyone who tries to give the Arabs' land back to them, which would strip the ADL of their billions of dollars of investments. How can the ADL scream "anti-Semitic" at you for being on the side of the Israeli government Jews?

At the same time the citizens and taxpayers of Los Angeles County and California can recover up to two trillion dollars from the false non-judges and their pension fund. The people are not responsible in any way for this insane judicial debacle and should not suffer one iota because of it. The documents clearly reveal the guilty parties.

The fanatical Jews in America have infiltrated our government and must be quickly removed. I am a White Christian and the disgusting so-called White "Christians" who have secretly taken pay and promotions from the ADL and committed foul acts against America and its people must be treated even more severely. For instance, William Webster, former federal judge, who as Director of the FBI turned the entire FBI organization against America when he took the ADL pay. Richard Thornburgh, who brags constantly on Larry King's ADL program about how he prosecuted L.A.P.D. officers. Buck Revell, ex-FBI agent who has conspired for years with Morris Dees to frame and set up loyal Americans for the ADL.

The questions must be asked and an answer received from the FBI, the Department of Justice and Robert Rubin, the Secretary of the Treasury and in charge of the ATF. Why? Why has an insane ADL fanatic like Irving Rubin and his wife been allowed to create assassination, murder, mayhem and havoc in America and to maintain an armory of stolen National Guard weapons which purpose is the overthrow of America and the takeover of the Israeli government. The faction of Jews desiring peace in Israel outnumbers the ADL fanatics by ten to one, as voters.

ADL assassins prowl our nation without fear of the FBI and commit fearsome political murders. They have reached their most desperate period since the assassination of Rabin, and the Jews have divided into two factions.

Many more assassinations and murders are about to be committed if the ADL and its top leaders, such as Harry Pregerson and Stanley Scheinbaum and the Deputy Asst. Attorney General Mark M. Richard, are not exposed and removed from the power and influence of office in our government. Mark M. Richard is head of National Security Investigations and is the top ADL agent covering up the Halacha crimes. Mark M. Richard gives Janet Reno her orders. He made several personal visits to Waco and was in charge of the Weaver murders in Idaho.

Governor George Deukmejian was correct in his Intelligence Report years ago when he notified the people that the Jews were in competition with the Mafia in drug dealing and crime. But he did not follow it up. Now it is his duty to expose the judicial corruption and its takeover by the ADL.

Certain people in the District Attorney's Office have joined in a political conspiracy to remove Gil Garcetti and return Ira Reiner to control of the D.A. office in Los Angeles. Reiner is a powerful ADL leader and represents the ADL fanatics in Beverly Hills and Hollywood who have invested enormous sums in the development of Arab lands and they have no intention of losing their money or their evil scheme of a Jewish Greater Israel. Their original plot for Greater Israel was to steal all of Lebanon for massive commercial and residential development. This is what got over three-hundred of our American military personnel bombed and killed in Lebanon. The reason President Clinton is fighting the budget is because Treasury Secretary Robert Rubin is demanding an increase of a trillion dollars in the National Debt which will be used to bail out the ADL Jews' investments in Israel the same as they were bailed out by Clinton in Mexico.

At this time of signing, Johnny Cochran has not filed an answer to my lawsuit No. 229531 which I filed in Kern County Superior Court on September 19, 1995 and served on Cochran on September 21, 1995. Mr. Antonovich, I can assure you that the people have become highly aware of what is happening to them because of the depredations put upon them by a corrupt and failing judicial system and they are gearing up for it as they see their civil law enforcement protection being destroyed, leaving nothing but themselves to protect their families and property. Their temperament and feelings of America going down the drain have been stretched to the breaking point. The evil and madness that the ADL and JDL have put on them must be stopped. At this time it is the responsibility and duty of the people's representatives to prevent a looming spontaneous incident and chaos that can destroy our country. It is not going to go away and will only get worse until action is taken.

The Jews have divided to the point that they are killing each other. Even Yaroslavsky will have to reveal which side he is going to be on.

The L.A. County Board of Supervisors run the county—NOT the judges. Through your official contacts with the County Boards of Supervisors of every county in California they should be informed of these facts and their duties to destroy judicial corruption—particularly Orange County, who would regain enough funds to dissolve their financial problems and return to governmental sanity.

Sincerely,

Re: Election Of Judges Whose Names Do
Not Appear On The Ballot

Dear Mr. Wean:

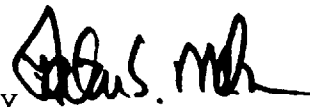

Supervisor Antonovich has asked this Office to review that portion of your letter dated November 2, 1995, which suggests that unless the name of a municipal or superior court judge appears on the ballot that judge is not lawfully elected to office.

Elections Code Section 8203 provides, in brief, that if only the incumbent has filed nomination papers for the office of municipal or superior court judge his or her name shall not appear on the ballot at either the primary or general election unless a write-in campaign, signed by 100 registered voters, is timely initiated. If that does not occur, the incumbent is deemed reelected on the day of the general election.

The constitutionality of this provision was upheld by the California Supreme Court in Binns v. Hite (1964) 61 Cal.2d 107. Referring to Section 25304, the predecessor to Section 8203, the Court stated: "The Constitution does not require that there be an actual balloting and tabulation of votes by which the selection or choice is made by the 'electors.'" Section 25304 furnishes such a procedure with respect to an incumbent judge who is unopposed and as to whose office no petition for a write-in campaign has been filed." (61 Cal.2d at p. 110.)

Very truly yours,

BANKING CLOSURES?

I am asked to comment on the significance of February (02), 22, 1996 as a day of Bank Closure, etc. "Could this ACTUALLY happen?" OF COURSE! Will it? That is difficult to predict in final and actual shutting down of the banks because you have to realize that the announced day for money (currency) change-out is set for the 19th. What the "timing" would allow for is a major trade-in period of three days ahead of a long weekend. But the point is to pull into play the digi-plan so that all "trading" on your so-called markets would have to be centralized through the Beast system and actually purchased and retained in ONE entity attached to all market transactions. It makes confiscation much more easily accomplished.

You can KNOW something big is coming down because you are in the year of the biggest New World Order CHANGES to systems before the turn of the millennium and the functioning New World Order-One World Rulers-One World Satanism.

You may well be "thinking" that you "pray to God of Light" and expect angels but I heard the best definition of fact in truth last evening: "When you talk to God it is called 'prayer'; when God talks to you, you are called 'nuts'." Therefore, who do you think are the "nuts" and who might be the foundation layers of the New World Church Order? YOU ARE THE MOST FUNDAMENTALLY AND MASSIVELY DECEIVED CIVILIZATION EVER TO GRACE THE EARTH WITH YOUR PRESENCE AND FOOLISHNESS.

If positive changes do not come there will be a major restructuring plan put into play in the year about 2011 during the height of what is known "now" as the Photon Belt. You will have blasted so many holes in your ionosphere by that time with your frequency systems as to allow the most uninhibited rays of the Cosmos to move uninhibited through your atmosphere and upon you—and you can't survive long in that turbulence and laser bath. There will have to be higher intervention if the planet is to survive in its ability to have human life sustain itself. That should be pretty well recognized as "direction" by 2022. So, Little Crow, I remind you of your most important dates of whirlwind consequences for mankind and YOUR rejourney here. Little Crow was born on day of 22nd day of his month of presentation and that little experience was and remains in his vision-recognition with energy hitting in something like 22 strikes of electricity (lightning) in something like 22 seconds. We go back to the 8th day of the 8th month and find the birthing of a child called Immanuel—or was it the 22nd? And, was it Immanuel? You do NOT count correctly under ANY CIRCUMSTANCES. This has been an "insider" joke with Little Crow and us of our place—but it is unimpacting to you so would certainly bore most of you who are simply wanting to know what is going to happen to your "bread and beans" in the banks. WE ONLY SET DATES AS A POSSIBILITY OR PROBABILITY AS THE SEQUENCE OF EXPRESSION MOVES ALONG—REMEMBER, THERE

IS NO "TIME".

PLEIADIANS

A lot of you follow along, still, with Billy Meier's group of Silver Star Center (if they still call themselves by that label). Now it is claimed by that group and the one THEY CALL Billy Meier that the Pleiadians/Plejarans left the Earth "for good" on February 2nd and 3rd, 1995. However, since they were to have all gone, perhaps for "the good" and perhaps because the whole operation, has been uncovered for what it became after Billy was changed out, why do they still fight over the rights to be the only ones visited by Pleiadians.

Never mind where you might have come from—obviously if you are HERE ON EARTH—you did have to come FROM somewhere. It makes so little difference as to be a waste of time to discuss it.

Yes, I CAN recite this information, for your assumption is that if Billy Meier doesn't place blessings upon a myth then you can't accept it—or deny it. Wake up citizens!!

"During the night of February 2nd to the 3rd, 1995, the Pleiadians/Plejarans left the Earth for good. This action was previously planned at the time when the contacts began, but could not be openly revealed by Billy for certain unofficial reasons. [H: Well, readers, I WOULD LIKE TO KNOW THOSE UNOFFICIAL REASONS! Many of you ARE directly from Pleiades and I take exception to "unofficial" announcements of such garbage—but this does get far worse.] The Pleiadian/Plejarans' withdrawal does not signify that the contacts have now ended definitively, however—only the official contacts have terminated, while contacts on private level will continue intermittently. [H: In other words, the official contacts were so off-the-wall and WRONG as to make even the little groupie of silver starlets shudder.]

"With the Pleiadians' withdrawal, the secret can be revealed that they do not refer to themselves as Pleiadians, but as Plejarans, a name taken from their Plejares star system, which is not within our space-time configuration, but one that deviates from ours by mere fractions of a second. The Plejares are beyond the Pleiades star cluster, where a dimension opening was created that allows the Plejarans to travel between the two different space-time configurations. [H: In other words, the time for connections to be made has arrived, my friends, and so they have to take their misinformation to some whole other galaxy to keep from being found in lies from the recent years of deceit.]

"The Pleiades, respectively the celestial bodies and planets of the Pleiades star cluster, are uninhabited, indeed, uninhabitable in every way, for they are far too young for the formation and establishment of any life forms. This fact, therefore, takes the wind from the sails of every crook, fraud and liar who claims to have maintained physical or telepathic contacts with the Pleiadians from the time when Meier made his initial Pleiadian/Plejaran contact information public. [H: Ah, but Billy Meier SAID that he was in contact WITH PLEIADIANS—SO, DID THE LIES START THEN AND THERE—OR HERE AND NOW? IT CANNOT BE BOTH WAYS! Truthfully, Pleiadians simply do not exist, only Plejarans!! This information was kept secret throughout the entire contact period for the specific purpose of exposing each and every hoaxer, liar, charlatan and crook when the Plejarans had withdrawn from Earth." [H: I suggest it has certainly EXPOSED SEVERAL!!]

If one bunch of liars and deceivers can't destroy truth, there will always be new ones to come along and do it. The main thing for you to realize is that Billy Meier is never allowed to be among speakers and NOTHING is as it WAS.

Will CONTACT change as do all the other centers and revelators? No, because CONTACT is a newspaper printing every side of any issue as it is shared. We HAVE NO CENTER of anything save possibly on an occasional Sunday afternoon for tea and crumpets. Green and his baggage can call us anything he wants to and claim great inside knowledge. He was also ripping off Billy Meier long before he heard of ME or Dharma. Saying a thing over and over may well cause a lot of sleep-walkers and fantasizers to believe something—but it does not make one iota of difference to truth. The man (Green) is now mired (no pun) in his own bog-swamp of lies and deceit—and actually believes he is the wronged party in this journey through experience.

More importantly, we are NOT "REVELATORS". There is nothing to "revelate". It has all been revealed! WE ARE REVEALERS OF WHAT IS. I HAVE NO REVELATIONS TO OFFER YOU, JUST THE FACTS!

I am amused that there comes about a great uproar and battle because the Israelis toss the blood given by Ethiopian Jews for transfusions—OUT. It is claimed that it is because of the "fear of AIDS" from that population. NO! It is because no newly defined "JEW" would even "touch" the blood of a black person. Inter-marriage of Jews and Blacks may well be touted as "good" but it is so totally off-the-wall as to be called, by the Khazarian hierarchy, a SACRIFICE and one for which the Jew is given "brownie" points for his/her contribution toward World domination.

One last suggestion as to caution, please. There is a booklet presented as being through Billy Meier:

A CRUSADE AGAINST OVERPOPULATION

It shows 'Billy' Eduard Albert Meier as the author. No, it is not only NOT by "THE ORIGINAL" 'BILLY' Meier but it reads like something out of Jason Brent's Mensa essay on getting rid of humans. It is but a repeat of the United Nations Khazarian Zionist Plan of "cleansing".

For a very long time ALL in that groupie stopped receiving from Semjase and/or SemjasA. And remember, good buddies, Asket was from the Dal Universe—and the pictures were of a model in Munich. Truth needs no embellishment for acceptance and the very lies thought to sell the truth will destroy the truth.

So, enters Ptaah!!! Beware, beware, beware—you now have a very big boy playing in the game of deceit. I make no claim to great knowledge of this "being" but it is very EARTH BOUND and is that which takes place with Ptuey and Ptaahing—in other words, it is that which is spitted from the face. There is nothing strange or remarkable about those names except that in "meaning" it is quite amusing that those would be chosen for YOUR LEADER!

If you came aboard MY craft and asked to see "The Leader" you would probably be brought before Captain Leah, Omar, or Gilford. And I would ask you to stop the nonsense and look to the heavens for your truth—there we all ARE in rainbow dressings so that you CANNOT not notice. Remember something else: There is nothing wondrous or even meaningful in the term UFO as applies to anything save something running about in your sky which is unexplained. Lightning is certainly a UFO. You have "space craft", now called Shuttles and rockets, and certainly MOST OF THEM ARE NOT "IDENTIFIED". Nobody of the visitors abducts anything or anyone! Little Grays are a full production of YOUR PLANET after your having destroyed the better DNA strain of visitors. YOU BREED SERPENTS—NOT THE COSMOS! Third dimensional man is the most destructive entity in the universe during his learning sequences.

Another MAJOR CLUE as to the deceiving from these writers is "Plejaran". If Plejara is beyond Pleiades it still DOES NOT EXPLAIN HOW SUCH TRAVELERS WOULD KNOW ANYTHING ABOUT PLEIADES TODAY. To say a place is uninhabited is stupid indeed, beyond those who say that no life was on the moon during your deceitful lies about same and landings, etc. You have a battle ground under siege right in your own atmosphere—and it has nothing to do with aliens from other worlds except possibly some calling themselves by similar names such as Plejarans. And furthermore, they would not "leave" the Earth "for GOOD"—BUT TO RUN LIKE HELL FROM THEIR OWN MISCHIEF. BUT YOU SHOULD BE SO LUCKY. THE DECEIVERS HAVEN'T GONE ANYWHERE EXCEPT UNDER COVER OF NEW NAMES AND SHROUDS—JUST LIKE THE KHAZARIAN THIEVES AND LIARS WHO STEAL YOUR HERITAGE AND EVEN YOUR "NAMES".

DYING STARS AND OTHER NONSENSE

In the great insightful presentations as are now offered are some of the "old" ones as well. The best example is that of "...the Sun of Earth system being a dying star". Are you SURE? When the SOURCE OF LIFE changes it is never a "DYING" anything—it may well be birthing into LIFE—but it is NEVER dying. Nothing dies—it only CHANGES! THIS INCLUDES YOU.

TESLA'S MACHINERY

There is a book now out by Dale Pond and Walter Baumgartner. That is not the bad part; the bad part is revealed in the title and insures that the apparatus discussed is not only workable but is working AGAINST you-the-people. Now comes along some dudes who think they can share this with every Tom, Dick and Harry around—"just go build your own" simple-minded attitudes. It is called Nikola Tesla's EARTHQUAKE MACHINE with Tesla's Original patents plus New Blueprints to Build your own Working Model. (!!!!) Fine, can't you just picture Charlie Manson with his own Earthquake machine?

This book handles the tedious subject of Tesla's oscillating motor. Well, you have the results of Mr. Tesla's operating oscillating motors ALL OVER YOUR GLOBE, SHAKING YOU TO PIECES—PULVERIZING THE TERRA UNDER YOUR TOOTSIES EVEN AS WE WRITE. What idiots you have trying to guide your pathway to HELL.

Musicians and engineers would call this increasing resonance cycling "Amplitude Modulated Additive Synthesis" and it is simply the "physics" of "vibration".

With these oscillators and building resonance you can DESTROY anything. For goodness sakes, readers, I would as soon have the damage-boxes in the hands of the Elite as in the hands of the stupid "Patriots" out to shoot their way to the Government control panel—theirself. In 1898 Tesla nearly DESTROYED NEW YORK with a little box that could fit on a support beam in his lab. The earthquake which resulted from increasing the frequency of that little box in his lab moved outward in resonant frequencies that almost brought down the Empire State Building and surrounding areas. All you have to do, readers, is to have a frequency of resonance match whatever you want to DESTROY. For instance, if enough people simultaneously cross a bridge "in-step" you can bring the bridge DOWN. Match the resonating frequency to the frequency of the structure—and whammo—it is over!

You people in your own intentions of "goodness", as YOU SEE IT, do more damage than your enemy could ever hope to accomplish—as all they have to do is WAIT until you do yourselves into oblivion. The problem is that with you in control of your own destiny—you might actually destroy THEM as well so they "must" get you under TOTAL control so they have something to HAVE after the battle—and located in the "right" places.

You have example after example of the use of this technology—all around you—literally! These frequencies affect the weather, the fault zones, the tectonic plates, the atmosphere, the very Earth structure as to elasticity, etc. But the hardest damage to accept is the effect on life-forms. Total control of mental structure can be achieved through nothing except frequency pulses. The only problem is the inability of selectivity at this point of structure. The ONLY people, for instance, who can NOT be warped mentally by these devices and pulses are GOD'S PEOPLE. YOU OF GOD CARRY YOUR OWN "ANGELIC" FREQUENCY AND IT IS A SHIELD WHICH BREAKS UP THE FREQUENCY INTO CONFUSION. Just as "darkness" carries its own frequency, so too does light. Dark energies CANNOT survive infinitely in the LIGHT. They actually DISSOLVE in the presence of the intense "light". This is why, up until now, the impulses are LOW in frequency and command can be held over the lesser energy forms. You move into the very high frequencies and the bastard children of Evil Darkness cannot survive. True indeed, all we would have to do is turn up the frequency and wipe out all the negative energies along with the visible world. We could dissolve it and YOU into dissolution—but why would we even want to do THAT? This is your learning ground, your schoolroom, and why would we destroy the very thing you must have for learning and growth as souled beings? YOU MUST LEARN TO DO THINGS BECAUSE THEY ARE RIGHT AND BECAUSE YOU COME INTO THE REALIZATION OF RIGHT-NESS. You may well rotate on the wheel of manifestation in third dimensional presence—but no being of SOUL can stay on such a recycled journey forever and the Infinite Universe is out there beyond the primitive pivot points of physical structure. Physical structure is a prison in every sense of the term—as you are limited by perception, time, space and distance—and the very FREQUENCIES of such a manifestation. Now, this has little to do with even Spirituality (I did not say Spiritualism) but it IS YOUR SPIRITUAL REALIZATION AT STAKE AS TO SOUL ESSENCE (YOU INDIVIDUAL) BEING MANIPULATED BY COALESCED THOUGHT STRUCTURES. Certainly the most controlling FORCE is that of religion's limitations on your allowance of SOUL GROWTH. Bind the child and it will be warped! The priests of the "legal" "bar association", the priests of the halls of medicine and the PRIESTS in their dark and ribboned ROBES of the religious councils and limitation experts—are your enemies. LIMITATION IS YOUR SHACKLE AND CELL-KEEPER.

SERVICE TO GOD

While experiencing in "service" to God there is an Angelic presence—BUT YOU WHO ARE THE GUARDIANS OF THE "TRUTH" AND HAVE PHYSICAL DUTIES—DO NOT UTILIZE THE "MIRACLE" QUALIFICATIONS FOR SHOW AND TELL. Man must experience change WITHIN SELF—not your transformation, to move onward. All of MY CONTACTS are ANGELS! Angels mean messengers and guardians—but, beware for there are dark angels as well and they are for the very purpose of dumping you off the pathway. So, play in deceit and cover-up of truth and you join AUTOMATICALLY the dark angels while expecting the Lighted Angels to pull you out of your predicaments and dilemmas of your own choosing and construction. No thank you—you may fall into your own pits as you keep digging them and just to say "I'm sorry" while the heart hates is not acceptable. We can love and appreciate our enemies of truth and righteousness, but we don't have to accept them or serve them—or LIKE THEM. The worst thing you can do to these people is perfectly permissible and legitimate with Righteousness, and that is to let them destroy themselves and see to it that their egos bear the trauma in order to realize the errors of their ways. YOU could learn NOTHING without the adversarial assaults. The POINT of journey is to function and GROW within that seemingly insurmountable and evil system—IN LIGHT AND TRUTH, INTEGRITY AND RIGHTEOUSNESS. YOU CAN AND SHALL ACCOMPLISH OUR MISSION WITHIN THE SYSTEM, USING THE LAWS AS LAID FORTH BY MAN AND ALWAYS HONORING THE LAWS OF CREATOR/CREATION. THESE LAWS ARE CERTAINLY NOT THE SAME—SO WHY SHOULD EVIL ALWAYS GET THE LAND-LOCKED BREAKS? GET RID OF THE GUILT AND SILLINESS AND YOU WILL COME TO WIN THE BATTLE—AFTER YOU GET RID OF YOUR OWN EGO NEED TO PREVAIL AND CONTROL AND HAVE THE MOST!

UNCONDITIONAL LOVE?

A perception of total incorrectness has been thrust upon you as a people. The one so graciously honored with having presented it is Kubler-Ross who wrote: "The ultimate lesson all of us have to learn is unconditional love, which includes not only others but ourselves as well."

So now you see, it was not GOD who ordered up "unconditional" love. GOD OFFERS ABSOLUTE AND TOTAL LOVE—not unconditional—anything. God puts so many CONDITIONS on man that the only unconditional love is offered the infirm infant and elderly infirm—and the animals within the physical experience. For ALL things, save man with his gift of reason, logic and thinking, are but "beings". The thinking man is the miracle of God/Creator. And for that wondrous status—there are total "conditions" placed for PASSAGE into the higher realms of experience. Until YOU MEET THOSE CONDITIONS—you do not enter into God's immediate territory of expression. When one spouts "unconditional love", beware—they serve Satan and I don't care WHO they THINK they serve. They will have no ability to bear TRUTH for it will sting them like the scorpion and they will have no ability for stability—and you must learn to confront and move on for they are the testers of your own progressive journey. Stop feeling sorrow for their indiscretions—for those are THEIR OWN with which to deal—NOT YOURS! I sicken of watching my very own team searching for ways to NOT CONFRONT OR NOT HURT FEELINGS AND THUS AND SO. Why? Because these things and ones are here for YOUR GROWTH and until you can banish them from dealing HARM and their own form of evil intent—YOU CANNOT PASS ON. Evil not only MAY be abolished but until you rid yourself and your place of evil—YOU ARE NOT DOING YOUR JOB. Each person has a choice of right or evil—why would you continue to protect him who is steeped in evil—EVIL MAY AND SHALL BE SQUASHED AND CAST OUT—PERIOD. I will show the Evil-monger NO MERCY AND NO QUARTER—why don't you try accomplishing the same. You don't have to destroy by evil methods—TRUTH WILL DO THE JOB. YOU ARE TAUGHT LIES SO THAT YOU WILL NOT MOVE AGAINST THINE ENEMY—PONDER IT! WORSE, THESE SNEAKS AND THIEVES WILL COME BACK AGAIN AND AGAIN FOR YOUR UNCONDITIONAL BLESSINGS—ONLY TO FINALLY DESTROY YOU. GET RID OF THEM FROM YOUR LIVES.

I do remind you, however, that you must live in such a way in your every-day expression so that you can believe in your own goodness—so that if today be your last, you would be content with yourself. And don't fall for the old: "Love is blind!" No, LOVE IS TOTAL TRUTH AND SEES ALL. It is ego and physical expression that puts on blindfolds and REFUSES TO SEE TRUTH. LOVE IS PERFECTION FOR GOD IS LOVE. God never ceases to love you—you choose to stop loving God. God NEVER LEAVES YOU—you choose to try to leave God. These are choices of the physical world and that which is within the choices of physical man—no more; no less!

Will you have great abundance to do God's perfect work? Yes. But God has no need of "riches" to accomplish HIS "abundance". Why should you? YOU WILL HAVE WHAT YOU NEED TO ACCOMPLISH OUR TASK, WHATEVER THAT MIGHT BE IN BOTH TASK AND ABUNDANCE. I can promise you ONE THING: GOD WILL NOT BRING WEALTH TO HIS ENEMY SO THAT, THROUGH YOU, YOU CAN MAKE A BIG SPLASH ON THE STAGE OF YOUR OWN CONTROL AND EGO STANCE. WE KNOW WHO WILL SERVE UNDER ALL CONDITIONS AND GOD DOES NOT CHOOSE WRONGLY HIS MESSENGERS OR LEADERS. WE DON'T CARE WHO DOES OR DOES NOT LIKE GOD'S CHOICES—PERIOD.

Pink ink, for instance, only reflects a "blood-stained" intent when used in your silly focus on "loving" output. If you like pink—use it but it indicates nothing save silliness if you use it to represent words on a paper which is far better written in black and white without need for discerning meaning behind the choice. You don't need "other" names, for instance, except for identification in the NOW. What you ARE is full recognition of your being—and all the past expressions are zilch, zero, null and void.

I would comment about purple as well. A lot of you like to represent the "violet flame" with purple this or that. I would like to remind you that the evil trappings of "royalty" is PURPLE. Which are YOU representing? If you like the "purples" in color—enjoy them and stop the silly games. I personally am appalled at the number of people who think to don purple and lotus yourselves to not be disgusting, for nothing, NOTHING, can hide that which is truth within intent. There are a lot of very real meanings to color and tones—almost NONE OF WHICH ARE USED. ALL COLORS ARE OF GOD—THE ABSENCE OF COLOR IS OF DARKNESS. Each fragment ray has a tone and frequency but YOU ARE WHAT YOU ARE AND NO AMOUNT OF COLORING COVER WILL CHANGE IT.

With this in mind I would close this message lest it become too long for the digestion. I do not go forth on some popularity contest and our Angels do not go forth to prove anything—I and they, have a job to do and it bears only truth in intent. If our "dates" are wrong, please remember, TRUTH KNOWS NO TIME-ZONES OR GEOGRAPHICAL LOCATIONS. We have NOTHING TO PROVE to you "hypothetical" beings. It is NOT the ANGELS who are "crazy"!

Salu.

What Kind Of Pictures Do You Paint This Day?

2/12/96 #1 HATONN

ABOUT "LIFE"

*"IN PROSPERITY OUR FRIENDS KNOW US;
IN ADVERSITY WE KNOW OUR FRIENDS."*

We can ignore the major questions of "time" and "resolution", "space" and "translation" while we are physically young and laying a foundation upon which to allow for choices in our so-called "future". It does not mean a "new" soul is inhabiting our beings but usually a very elderly soul filled with prior blunders and unfulfilled expectations. So what have we here? We have a circumstance of experience, nothing more. We each, in our physical plan or journey, have opportunity to BECOME that which is acceptable to ourselves as we seek acceptance before our Creator and, by the way, those we truly appreciate, adore and above all, love. We do foolish things or wise things according to the love exchanged between the babe, child, adult and the caretakers of the little being. When a child is a child, he must fill the dreams of another, his caretaker. As an adult he must come to fulfill the standards of the SELF and no amount of wishing difference is available to change.

If a man chooses the ways of physical expression without consideration of GOD, he withers in soul as he becomes a zombie passing through something that LATER will have no meaning except sorrow at wasted wonderment as he is locked within the limitations of body and experience. This is ALWAYS so and no amount of repainting the canvass changes the picture first laid on that canvas. You can redirect, realize beauty and truth, and change the picture and the final presentation—but the brush strokes remain forever engraved in the fiber of the canvas. A NEW child is given a new canvas for his life painting. He may well have had a trillion prior pieces of canvas but the one in any given life-span of human expression must bear its own tales and dreams. The twisted and dark-tinged pictures are expressions of a soul in torment. The beautiful reflections are the expression of the location of beauty and wonder as can be placed upon a piece of fabric. Check to see what kind of pictures you paint.

You may well need to understand the various expressions and mediums of the artist, be he good or bad as a painter. Some paint with music, some with oils, some with the clay, some with the basket, some with words, some with a product, some with a reflection through a child—whole or handicapped. But EACH individual paints a picture of his experience either in his own regressed expression of his "being" or his wondrous achievements. What do YOU express?

Can you see that in changing dimensional expression we continue to paint our pictures and manifest them on the canvas of animated mechanics—a step beyond the basic flatland table of fabric and crayons? Dharma, for instance, serves in such a way as to allow printing of my own expression of truth and information. My own self is represented and reflected in OUR accomplishments and that does NOT mean, simply, hers and mine. My expression is not in the expected "how many times do I simply 'accept' a thing, action or person" but rather, how many times, every time, I confront my enemy in WISDOM without changing my own perfection of intent. YOU BECOME THE PICTURE ON MY CANVAS. Can you see this? And further, I must paint without force or cutting the canvas or tweaking the lithograph or having to erase the mural for you can only remove the splotches from the picture for the original will remain forever embedded in the fabric of that mural.

A group of individuals who never heard of a Christ or God can still paint beautiful pictures of goodness and GOD-ness but one who has never experienced electricity cannot paint of same with reality until he has experienced it. How can a child in South Africa draw a reasonable expression of a "convection oven"—he has NO OVEN AT ALL. But ALL have a recognition of GOD, ANGELS and the REALITY of that which is beyond the moment. What kind of pictures DO YOU OFFER beyond the moment for those who come after you? Do YOU paint ANGELS in LIGHT or devils in dark, dank hiding places? YOUR MIND IS YOUR CANVAS! YOUR EXPRESSION IS YOUR PICTURE. LIFE IS YOUR BRUSH AND COLOR PALATE. HOW DO THE FLAVORS REST UPON YOUR MIND? I HAVE NO NOTICE OF YOUR TONGUE; DOES YOUR TONGUE REFLECT AND POUR FORTH THE WONDERS OF CREATION OR CHANT THE USUAL DATA AND TRASH POURED INTO THAT WONDROUS MIND—BY OTHERS?

I have a question asked of me which gives me great pleasure in answering for these questions are the mark of a THINKING person and not just a curious replica of a man who giggles and wants to know if they "bathe on Pleiades". Even that latter perception is as silly as asking YOU if they "bathe on Jupiter". I can answer about the frequencies of other dimensions—I don't give a hoot if they do or do not bathe on a planet in the Pleiades galaxy OR ON JUPITER.

THE QUESTION: "We assume a quantum leap in frequencies upon entering the Lighted Fields as our aim takes us further along in the next decades, will the energies continue to increase? And,

"At what point do 3-D (man-made) articles dissipate? (Can't wait!)"

Here "Stoney" refers to what is in his mind as the "Null 'Break'"

THE BUCKETS by Scott Stantis

'FREQUENCIES' OF CHANGE

You can only, I suppose, relate to the "physical" aspect of experience. I can only truly relate to the energy aspect of expression. In this change of dimensional interpretation I hope that I answer your question and not simply my own.

You ASSUME a quantum leap in frequencies upon entering the Lighted Fields? No, for YOU are not the physical "thing" you experience. If you move into the "Lighted" fields, your frequencies will already have expressed in a frequency that simply moves ACROSS. Remember, the body is stilled! If you take body with you for a task or duty you will have had that body reestablished, albeit temporarily, to its setting. That can easily be accomplished by external forces such as frequency enhancement or BALANCE. You will not enter into the brightest of the "Lighted Fields" unless your frequency is already high enough to fill the conditions of being in that higher frequency. For in moving ahead in "time" and recognizing the dimensional change ALSO RECOGNIZES THE CONDITION CHANGE. Energy, at its highest level, does not "increase"; its frequencies simply CHANGE. I, for instance, am ALWAYS "visible" to my own associates—in some form or another, according to their own perception or my efforts to stabilize at a visible manifestation "their" eyes can "see". This is simply a physics lesson in frequencies, however, as you have to realize that you do not see me because I am beyond your VISIBLE "physical" receivers. You can easily see me by energy receptors. That perception is more up to ME than to the receiver. Please, I only use this (me) as an example.

You can FEEL the breeze—but you cannot SEE it. Moreover, you can recognize LIGHT but you cannot SEE IT—only the reflection of it or reaction with all it touches. The whole of you does not have cause to increase in anything in order to respond to the higher frequencies of another dimension—only the essence of mind and soul. Soul determines the placement or level of expression. You will find in your own journey through life that a person in "light" will seemingly be beautiful—even more beautiful than the physical expression. In the same realization, the Dark energies become twisted and radiate darkness no matter what might be their physical showcase. The "direction" of energy flow is always reflected upon the body by the intent of soul. Note how you express the presence of evil: "That person is ugly and sinister." At the same thought intersection you can see a rather "homely" person become radiantly beautiful. Then, as the person takes on higher expression, let me example Dharma: When I meet and confer, there is a full lack of ability of the "audience" to longer "see" her for their focus is on me and that which I offer. This has a purpose for when there is no longer focus on HER, I know that the people are expressing WITH ME. That keeps all of us safe and secure and Dharma can have her interchange at cookie break.

This is why, Stoney, you remain the stable support of such as Doris and E.J.—because you no longer function on a frequency level of mortal personage—you LIVE in the realization of higher expectation—MY WORLD. Your body and mind, which has to cause your body to function, does its work in the physical frequency—but the soul is already living its separate aspect in that which is beyond the mortal. It is reflected in simple physics AND in the acceptance of TRUTH in that which is beyond the mortal senses.

Comprehension, wisdom, realization INCREASES for the soul is birthed OF God and seeks its resolution within God. It already bears the "frequency" of expression in essence, it only forgets how to remove LIMITATION. It is much as an engine with great power, but having a "governor" which allows only so much energy to flow. Take away the governor and you have unlimited (at least with soul) potential. Get the potential flowing and the rest will move to meet that highest expectation and expression of the potential. Keep that potential low and you never get out of Earth-bound spirit.

As to the point of man-made objects dissipating, let us toss a new perception at you: they dissipate when YOU dissolve them. They may well break into particulate at a "given" frequency, depending on the substance of the manifested reality—but they do not become invisible until they reach a level of higher frequency than you perceive. When you see them "go" in the illusion, it is that you have, or someone has, moved to control the moment, and you have the frequency changed.

Visible objects in our realm of realization, say a space craft, can become VISIBLE at a frequency potential of 16,944.333 (or so) Mhz. The facts are, however, that we have the capability of BENDING light so that we might be very "real" but unseen. We can also disperse into cloud formation the particulate of our craft, for instance, allow passage of your dimensional "things" through the "object". We can also RELOCATE at instantaneous frequency change so that we can instantly "get out of the way".

We will usually stay shrouded in "cloud" or vapor (as in ghost) until we check our potentials. YOU cannot present in that manner YET. Scientists are working on shrouding mechanisms and can present holographic projections which are very good—but you don't yet have the "real stuff". A ghost of natural being can present as a hologram but only can utilize energy flow. Since it has no "body" it can only "assume" density enough to "fool" you. It will present as that which it would have had recognition in its physical state—usually as it WAS at the time of dimensional change.

This becomes even more interesting because the next question should be: "How does this happen?" Many times at impact causing death of the body—the soul essence is not present and when it returns from its astral travels it finds a dead body. Children, for instance, when confronted with violence and imminent death of the body—will remove the energy form from the body. This will often leave the soul in restlessness in a land-locked perception which will then disallow the "guides" to relocate it to proper expression. This gets into that which you long to learn but it also represents that which is, of necessity, on further in our experience together as to lessons. Our own mission here is quite physical in that we have to change the physical aspect in order to allow the higher aspect to make it through the barriers of misinformation and limited realization. Too soon with these lessons and we are called "nuts" and "crazies" and "cultists", etc., etc. The Adversary of Light and Knowing is always there with the cute phrases which distract the human consciousness of physical reality ONLY. Every SOUL knows and that is shown in battlefield patterns of expression as a soldier, who is quite an atheist—becomes a God-respecting being IN THAT FOXHOLE! Satan is never there when you need him and GOD IS ALWAYS THERE WHETHER YOU NEED HIM OR

NOT. BUT MAN ALWAYS "CLINGS" TO THAT WHICH HIS "SENSES" REASSURE HIM IS PRESENT WHILE HIS SOUL KNOWS THE SHOW-AND-TELL IS ONLY ILLUSION.

PHYSICAL NON-REALITY

The best example of this perception is expressed in the newly conjured and presented "Rapture". The "idea" is that you will believe on the "blood of THE LAMB" (a man) and through that silly perception you will somehow meet that LAMB, now God, in the clouds somewhere—ah, in physical format yet! Mostly you don't even "think" about this for you take it on "faith"—from whom? Your MAN-FORM preachers! Where are your brains? YOU in physical form cannot sit, stand, or dwell on a cloud. So, let us assume you make it to the clouds and your God is there to meet you. What is He going to do with you then? In physical format you have to be fed, swaddled, slept and beyond all—tended. You will be in an alien presence so who is going to do that which you know not HOW to do—for you? Has the PREACHER forgotten something maybe, LIKE YOU HAVE TO DIE IN BODY TO GET ANYWHERE IN SOUL? AND JUST "WHERE" IS "YOUR" SOUL HEADED—TO HEAVEN OR HELL? Oh, wait a minute, for indeed the same ones who offer you RAPTURE also preach "heaven" and "hell". What have YOU done to merit HEAVEN?

Let us get personal now for a minute. Let us consider "me". I have great "conditions" on who travels WITH ME. Do you think you are going to get on a "good ship Lollypop" to somewhere in perfection if you have cast rocks and shot at our team-mates? If it is MY craft, you will come aboard ONLY at my invitation because YOU HAVE NO WAY TO GET ABOARD UNLESS WE BRING YOU ABOARD!!! It requires no bloodstains, dirty hands or belief on any MAN. It depends on your relationship, WITHOUT bloodstains, with GOD CREATOR.

Next you complain about not "seeing" us so you can believe. Phooey! You believe the garbage lies thrust upon you about that which YOU HAVE NEVER SEEN AND NEVER SHALL SEE, SO DON'T GIVE ME THE OLD

VISIBILITY ROUTINE. YOU PEOPLE AS A WHOLE BELIEVE EVERY LIE THRUST AT YOU AND JUST CAN'T BRING SELF TO BELIEVE IN TRUTH. Fine, your choice is yours and I shan't push or shove—I and my team have quite enough to do and accomplish without dragging anyone along to anywhere. I'm not here to CONVINCE you of anything—I am here to do my job WITH my team. YOUR opinions are none of my business. You don't have to do anything "my way" for you will come to confrontation with your own morals and attitudes when you face self and God in the midst of "conditions" laid forth and kept or broken. Judging YOU is not my problem or responsibility. Working or not working WITH you is certainly MY PREROGATIVE—NOT YOURS. I am an equal opportunity employer—but you must meet MY REQUIREMENTS! You get to be foreman in my stead and you get to have your own requirements—so PERHAPS THIS IS WHY YOU ARE NOT IN CHARGE?

You just "be" and/or go kiss your bushes and trees and consider it enough while you get "bark burn" to the lips and insect bites to the tongue. That is YOUR business but it will change not one iota of ANYTHING. I RESPECT TREES; I do not WORSHIP them. If you DO, then perhaps that is why you never seem to get anywhere? Ponder it.

Most people come here "searching" and leave still "searching"—however, there is a BIG difference. When they get here they FIND TRUTH, don't like it and move on—and EVERY TIME, WITHOUT FAIL—IT IS DOWN-HILL FOREVER AFTER. If you do not learn from your lessons—you will go forth and err over and over and over again as the ego looks for its own level of CHARACTER. Therefore, realize that you can very easily be judged by the company you keep in expression and reflection of self and self intent. The thief will move with the thieves where he feels acceptable. The liars will search out the liars to shore up their own presentation. It makes not the lie into truth—it simply shows YOU for that which you REALLY are. It is one thing to be "misled" but quite another to DELIBERATELY GO THE WRONG WAY! BUT, you are certainly welcome to go any way you choose for your journey through this play.

You will find, at the time of the big bang, that which you are best suited for, actual ascension or just dissipated particulate.

Leon, as a for instance, can shout from the mountain tops that somehow we have "brought pain to his 90-year-old mother" for whatever reasons. NO, HE HAS BROUGHT PAIN TO HIS 90-YEAR-OLD MOTHER AND DEPRIVED HER OF HER MONETARY REWARDS—AT THE LEAST, OVER $40,000. What WE brought to her when she visited with us—WAS JOY! Every joining-in was JOY for Esther. Leon took the road with the unwise travelers and took his mother with him, no more and no less, for she was and is stuck in the ruts he makes and in which he remains quite stuck. HE ALSO CONTINUES TO COST HER THE PRESENCE OF HER WEALTH—HE WILL NOT HAND IT TO HER, EVER, FOR HE WILL USE IT AS HIS SICK LAWYER SEES FIT TO TAKE IT FROM HIM. Blame-casting onto someone else your own "sins" does not make them guilty, but you most foolish indeed.

Why do I continue to use these examples? Because they are examples in reality which we experience and would it not be nice to have happy endings of change in these exemplified persons? No, it is not likely—but hope springs eternal in the breast of God. Man gets his kicks feeling sorry for himself and blaming his life journey on somebody else, never realizing that we express OUR OWN journey, and failure or success is in the eye of the beholders and experiencers. The ones I really DO NOT WANT WORKING WITH ME—are the individuals WHO DECEIVE THEMSELVES. I can work with an enemy and/or a friend who is honest with himself—but you can never trust or work with, truly, a being who lies to and cheats himself. I cannot, nor do I wish to, lead your life or experience as you—AND YOU ARE NOT WELCOME TO EVEN TRY TO INVADE MINE. Ah, but "I only meant to..." or "Well, I was just giving you my wisdom..." OR, "I was just trying to tell you..." Thank you but NO

THANKS, for YOU are the ones in trouble—NOT ME. If your perceptions were RIGHT you would have heaven on your Earth place. Why do you continue to demand a right to hold your misperceptions? It seems unwise to me, but so be it. If you know fire will burn and you have even experienced the burning from the hot fire—why do you demand to put your whole selves into that fire? It seems quite foolish to me.

You may read or not read my words—but you MAY NOT tell me what to write. Do you see difference? If you don't see what I mean—please go back to pre-school. You may write or speak or do that which you will and it is none of my business. Why do you make MY BUSINESS such a major part of your DISLIKE program? If you don't like myself or my presentation—DON'T READ IT. Is it not strange that my deadliest enemies are the ones to first READ EVERY WORD I HAVE WRITTEN—but most do not even pay for the paper. You would "think" a bit of reason, justice, truth, and value would simply "rub off", wouldn't you? Well, it DOES and that's what makes the vipers so angry and vicious. The worst part of this particular scenario is that neither you nor anyone else CAN FOOL ME. I KNOW YOU AND I KNOW YOUR INTENT. You can fool human people—YOU CANNOT FOOL ME. "My" friends are now strong enough to go to proper battle with the liars and cheats—where they do battle—in the courtrooms of actual "injustice" where the lies flowed prior to now and are coming up NOW for review. It may not, good buddies, play the same way in the LIGHT OF TRUTH. My people intend to "make this so".

If, however, you ask how to do a thing or a step to take AND I TELL YOU EXPLICITLY AND TELL YOU TO DO IT NOW—we will LOSE if you fail to respond! It is up to you but when it affects many people—it is not your RIGHT to dump your perceptions off into their "loss" column. Sometimes you simply need to open another door with that which might at first seem a negative input. For instance, if you wait for D.O. to die—you will waste everything—for him—and I will NOT ALLOW HIS INABILITY TO PARTICIPATE IN HIS OWN RIGHTFUL INPUT TO JUSTICE! I am NOT interested in gold except as his participation allows him to experience for his best and highest cause. You people have no RIGHT to determine his participation for you are BLIND AS THE PROVERBIAL BATS. His last scene in the play can be his most outstanding and most eloquently played participation and I will not allow you to destroy that final joy. SEND THOSE LETTERS! Send them LAST FRIDAY AS I ASKED. I WANT MY ENEMIES TO KNOW I AM FAR AHEAD OF THEM—WHY DON'T YOU?

So be it, readers, in each little segment of experience there are equal but different tales as these. You can not experience in physical living without these negatives and positives presenting—YOUR VERY MEASUREMENT AS MAN IS "HOW YOU HANDLE EACH ONE". It truly is, in the ending, not whether it was perceived you won or lost—but how you played the game. You cannot always just attend what impacts YOU for in my game I care as much of that "other" as I ever cared for your own consequences. I am interested in Dave—not his stuff or your preferences. You disappoint me that you do not see it. You did EXACTLY the opposite of what I asked, friends, and now you have a bigger problem on your backs—count on it.

I would leave this now so you can go lick your wounds but it does not mean that I shall overlook the deliberate damage to selves. You are on a tightrope of "timed" steps and you act like you have generations of wide boulevards to traverse. No, you DO NOT. YOU are playing in MY GAME and, therefore, I get to make some of the rules as pertains to our circumstances and those especially where you CANNOT have insight.

You pray for answers and then you ignore or deliberately turn away from the very thing you have been given to work in perfection. It is not so much a game of "getcha" as it is as to who will fill the necessary roles to lead to redemption or right-ness. I do not write the lessons to have you IGNORE them because you prefer something else. We are caught experiencing in this journey—not just shouting "druthers". Your opinions are only THAT when the focus is revolving around ANOTHER. Why do you think I only SERVE YOU AND YOUR CAUSE? In these recent matters I have far more attention to "other" than to your wishes in the local encounters. Dave wants some control over his own destiny and input—you will have to live with it.

Salu, for I think you all have quite a bit to now be accomplished. You have NOT PROVIDED ME WITH A BETTER WAY.
