Colonel (Ret.) James Ammerman Midnight For America As The Bell Tolls For Thee

Editor's note: Col. James Ammerman has served in three wars. He's been around and he KNOWS. And he doesn't like what he's seeing happening to America. In explicitly clear language, Col. Ammerman tells it like it is at great personal risk. For those of you who look for confirmations of the information published in CONTACT, here it is.

Is the hour too late for the American people to wake up in time? Will America's Constitution just become a historical document, to be mentioned in passing in future propaganda books under some restrictive regime? Will the Christians continue to be persecuted, as Col. Ammerman suggests, or will religious freedom once again find expression? We shall see.

JA: That's ok, go ahead.

RM: OK. Can you just tell me a little about what's going on. Apparently there are some things happening right now as we speak that I need to know about (Please see Midnight For America As The Bell Tolls For Thee, p.23)

Clinton—

The End Is Near?

7/9/96 EUSTACE MULLINS

Many Washington insiders are aware that the current FBI scandals involving illegal acquisition of personal FBI files on almost one thousand Republican Party opponents by Bill Clinton is certain to ring down the final curtain on the Bill and Hillary show. Always an outsider, Clinton failed to realize that when you are in Washington, you don't mess with the FBI. Americans outside the Beltway may find it difficult to grasp the seriousness of this latest imbroglio. The Clintons apparently survived the financial scandals of their Whitewater involvement because the public became confused about the long-running investigation and what it actually proved. It did not damage the Clintons because the central figure, White House lawyer Vince Foster, was removed before the story broke, one of the most convenient of the in-house "suicides" which have marked the Clinton Presidency.

ROOTS OF GOVERNMENT

The FBI scandal, on the other hand, shakes the very foundations of the present federal government. The Federal Bureau of Investigation is the government's police force. They are the hitmen who destroy any opposition. The FBI files have always been the basis of the entire government operation. It is the constant fear of exposure by revelations of these files that keeps both citizens and bureaucrats in line. These are known as "raw files" meaning that nothing in the FBI files has been subjected to any legal challenges or verification of any kind. They are largely rumors and gossip about sex scandals, fraud, conspiracy and treason, all of which would incur lengthy prison sentences if prosecuted. This dangerous information requires severe restrictions in the handling of FBI files.

When I applied for my personal file from the FBI through the Freedom of Information Act in 1978, the FBI notified me that I had a file of more than eight hundred pages, which I subsequently found was ten times the size of the FBI file which was maintained on John Dillinger, Public Enemy No. 1 for several years. FBI officials stipulated that before my files could be released to me, I must send them a notarized signature and a statement that I really was Eustace Mullins. They had had me under daily surveillance for thirty three years, but they still were not certain as to just who I really was. I supplied the necessary document, because I was now very anxious to see what they had on me. I had never been arrested or charged with any offense, and to my reckoning they could not have very much. I was not about to find out, because, after I complied with their requirement, FBI officials continued to stall me on sending the file for three more years. I am always very reluctant to ask anyone for assistance, but I finally called upon a college classmate, Senator John Warner of Virginia, for help in getting my file. He was glad to oblige, and within a few days, the FBI delivered to my door a partial release, five hundred pages of my file. The FBI explained that they were retaining more than three hundred pages of my file, on the grounds that to release it would "endanger national security". I appealed this ruling, but it was upheld by an executive commission of senior FBI officials. To date, I have never seen the other three hundred pages of my file.

FILES OPEN TO ALL AGENCIES

Few Americans know that their personal files are available for reading by any other government agency, on request. Jack Anderson, a Washington columnist, boasted for years that he could obtain any FBI file. The going rate was one thousand dollars per file, not as a bribe, but as a freewill offering! When President Clinton appointed a former barroom bouncer and drug user named Craig Livingstone (these were apparently his only qualifications for the job) as his White House Security Chief (reputedly on orders from Hillary Clinton: it turned out that Livingstone's mother was one of her oldest friends, and he needed a job desperately as he had been fired from previous positions for lying to his employers) Clinton must have rejoiced that he had at last found the perfect person for the job.

When Senator Joe McCarthy was in his heyday, he made headlines all over the world with his question "Who promoted Peress?" Dr. Peress was an Army medical officer who had been promoted despite grave doubts as to his loyalty to the United States and his ties to Communists. Today, the question in Washington is "Who hired Craig Livingstone?" He claims he had no idea who might have hired him for one of the most sensitive security positions in the entire United States. William Kennedy, a partner of Hillary in the Rose law firm, recently testified that he thought Vince Foster may have hired Livingstone. This was a safe bet, as Foster has been buried and cannot reply to any question from a government committee.

The Washington Post reported that Livingstone had been an advance man or promoter for a viciously anti-Christian movie, The Last Temptation of Christ. This would fit the Clinton requirements for White House staff, dedicated leftwing hippies who hate Christ, the military, and the United States of America.

As the Governor of a small rural state, Clinton has been accustomed to exercising total political power, a Gauleiter of an area which the rest of the country is not concerned about. When he assumed the office of the Presidency, he could think of no reason why he should not requisition the personal FBI files of his Republican opponents, to peruse them at his leisure in the White House, and to use the material in upcoming political campaigns. We might suppose that the files would contain very reliable documentation, the result of careful investigations by highly trained FBI agents, but in fact they are a mishmash of spite and innuendo, gathered by FBI agents from anyone who had cause to hate the subject of the investigation. These lurid compilations of vicious smears and rumors are duly deposited in the highly guarded files of the FBI, to remain there forever, and never to be contradicted or exposed by anyone. Such material is invaluable in the desperate infighting of a political campaign.

THE STRANGE CASE OF THE ONE THOUSAND FBI FILES

It is rare for any government agency to request more than a few files at a time, to review a job application, or to make a decision about a temporary employee. The White House went whole hog, requesting about one-thousand FBI files of their Republican opponents. This news was leaked to the public very gradually. At first, it was but one FBI file, the file of Billy Dale, who had been fired from the White House Travel Office to make room for a Clinton cousin, at the personal insistence of Hillary.

Billy Dale had been arrested and charged with embezzlement by Janet Reno, again at the personal insistence of Hillary. He was promptly acquitted by a jury, which found no evidence against him. When a government committee on oversight demanded the release of one thousand documents concerning the Billy Dale case, the White House staff refused to turn over the documents—until they were faced with a subpoena.

When the papers were received, they contained references to other FBI files requisitioned by the White House. The first count was three hundred, then four-hundred-and-eight, and finally nine-hundred-and-eight. The Washington consensus is that more than one thousand FBI files had been requisitioned by the White House.

The White House requested the files by unsigned forms bearing the typed name of Bernie Nussbaum, White House counsel, who had been hired to replace the now deceased Vince Foster. Clinton immediately explained the incidents as “an innocent mistake”. His staff chimed in with well-rehearsed choruses of “bureaucratic snafu” and “honest mistake”. As one of the inquiring Congressmen pointed out, the obtaining of these files involved some forty-three separate requests, so that there would have had to be forty-three individual “honest mistakes”. Apparently there had been no “dishonest mistakes”. Compare the delivering of one thousand personal FBI files to the White House over typed signature requests with the FBI’s steadfast refusal to deliver one file, my own, to me, even with a notarized signature!

Never in the history of the FBI had anyone dared to request such a horrendous quantity of the sacrosanct FBI files. J. Edgar Hoover would have thrown any such request into the wastebasket. However, he was succeeded by a series of pathetic political dupes and stooges, scraped from the bottom of the barrel in Washington, the dregs of the entire nation who now were ushered into J. Edgar Hoover’s hallowed precincts, there to squirm and dishonor themselves daily as prostitutes for ruthless political operatives such as the sleazy Bill Clinton.

FREEH A TOTAL NONENTITY

In choosing the present head of the FBI, Louis Freeh, President Bill Clinton knew that he had the complete stooge, a Jerry Lewis actor look-alike who would perform any silly antics and grin while doing it. Freeh willingly participated in FBI massacres of women and children, and promoted the FBI agents who had managed to exterminate the greatest numbers of helpless women and children. Now Freeh’s head is on the block. What has yet to be dealt with in the FBI files scandal is the fact that even though the White House acted illegally in requesting the files, in open violation of the Privacy Acts, the cooperating FBI officials acted even more illegally in releasing them to the mysterious forms bearing only a typed signature of an alleged White House official. Such a request in mass would have had to be brought to Freeh’s personal attention as director of the FBI, and he is the person who would ultimately have to answer if the scandal were to break, as it surely has. These files could only have gone out of the J. Edgar Hoover Building after Freeh had given his personal approval.

RELIVING THE NIXON ERA

At the height of the Watergate scandal, pot-smoking young Jewish lawyers at the Department of Justice held wild drug and sex parties while playing the top secret Nixon tapes in the background. Many of the parties, weeklong in nature, were moved to Greenwich Village in New York’s drug culture scene, where a party was not considered successful unless the forbidden Nixon tapes were playing in the background.

Under Craig Livingstone’s aegis, as the hallowed director of security in the Clinton White House, the indecencies of the Nixon years were replayed. The FBI files of the Republican leaders were kept in an unlocked vault, with a copying machine nearby. Livingstone admitted in his testimony before Congress that he had no knowledge how many files were copied, by whom, or for what purpose, as the copying machine was set up to make no records of any kind relating to its use.

WALL STREET JOURNAL COMMENTARY

After Craig Livingstone’s testimony under oath before a Congressional Committee, the Wall Street Journal duly reported on its editorial page, June 27, 1996: “So control over the Clinton White House’s office of personnel security was given to Craig Livingstone, a punk, and Anthony Marceca, a political lowlife.” Congressman Floyd Flake reported that he had had an altercation with Livingstone at National Airport, during which Livingstone called Flake “a dumb-ass nigger”. The Journal observed that “no one at the White House has a clue how Craig Livingstone got this job.” Its editors note that an FBI agent detailed to the White House since 1979, Dennis Sculimbrenne, told a Senate committee that White House officials asked him to get information about Travel Office employees before they were fired. The Journal says “That was no ‘innocent mistake’.”

Two years ago, the Journal reported that hundreds of White House employees had failed to get security checks, because they were still undergoing drug tests. Most of them, including those who had access to the one thousand Republican FBI files, still today have not been able to obtain security clearances, and are going in and out of the White House daily on temporary passes! The Journal concludes its revelations with the observation that “Craig Livingstone isn’t just some loopy guy who wandered out of a Georgetown saloon into the White House. Craig Livingstone was in that highly sensitive job because, on the evidence that has emerged in the past week, his work was well up to the standard expected.”

CLINTON’S DEATH SONG

The political implications of this week’s revelations are clear: Clinton has now smeared ashes on his face, and is preparing to sing his death song. Washington insiders know that he is already more politically dead than Jimmy Carter or Gerald Ford, zombies who have been wandering around for years like escapees from the set of a substandard Hollywood horror movie. Soon Clinton will join the living dead, while Hillary will be condemned to wander the Earth with him, each of them convinced to the last that “they did nothing wrong”. This may be true, but the more damning evidence is that they did nothing right, and the American people now have to pay the piper for their nonsense. A five-trillion-dollar debt, created out of thin air by the wizards of the Federal Reserve System; a totally demoralized population; and the most encouraging economic prospects are that within a few months, we will join the ranks of the Third World nations, most likely with their typical military dictatorships.

HILLARY’S FLIGHT

While her protégé, Craig Livingstone, writhes before an inquiring Congressional committee like a trapped rat, echoing Hillary’s favorite line, “I don’t recollect”, Hillary herself has fled the country. Responding to inaudible demands for her presence, she rushed off to Europe on a whirlwind tour, which was designed solely to allow her to escape the maelstrom in the United States. Inevitably, she must return, perhaps to join her husband in his death-song. We are reminded of the last days of Nixon’s Presidency, when suddenly everyone turned on him; there were no defenders left. There will be no Beau Geste to ease Clinton’s journey into oblivion. Indicative of the process is the emergence of a new star in Washington, a thirty-year FBI veteran, who for years, as resident FBI agent in the White House, has been aghast at the destruction wrought on the nation by the Clintonista hippies. Now he has gone public, with a bestselling book Unlimited Access—An FBI Agent Inside The Clinton White House. The agent, Gary W. Aldrich, overnight became the hottest guest on the talk show circuit. So great were the demands for his appearance that he had to turn down 60 Minutes to meet his prior commitments.

Aldrich reports that “There was a unisex quality in the Clinton staff that set it apart from the Bush Administration.” He reports that Clinton was wont to stray from the White House to meet a celebrity gal at the downtown Marriott, favorite scene of Washington’s political trysts. Howls of rage emanated from the White House. Claims were made that it would be impossible for Clinton to evade his ever vigilant Secret Service protectors. Unfortunately, Hillary has frequently boasted in her newspaper column that her favorite sport is to elude her Secret Service escorts and drive about the city without hindrance. In this predilection, she differs from most Washingtonians, who would prefer an armed escort if they venture onto the crime-ridden streets. Other spin efforts, which were counter-productive, included demands from the Imperial Presidency that Gary Aldrich be forbidden to appear on any talk show. The Clintons, still divorced from the real world, failed to understand that these talk show hosts are committed to finding the most controversial guests in Washington, hoping that they will say something outrageous, in order to boost the ever-sagging ratings in the hot summer months. Aldrich’s book is filled with inside stories about the Clintons and their beehive of frenetic, drug-ridden young things, Marxists to the core, who have one thing in common: their hatred of America.

Clinton recently lost one hero of his battle against all American traditions, when a Ukrainian Jewish refugee, Jeremy Boorda, miraculously promoted from cabin boy to Admiral, supposedly took his own life at the height of his struggle to destroy the old Annapolis crew of loyal Naval officers, who were unanimous in their dedication to flag and country. Another “Washington suicide”, Chief of Naval Operations Boorda supposedly shot himself in the chest moments before he was to face a Newsweek correspondent who had wished to ask him about his connection with America’s most famous spy, the Israeli espionage agent, Jonathan Pollard, supposedly doing life in prison for his crimes, but scheduled to be returned to Israel a national hero as soon as Clinton pardons him in return for Jewish support in the approaching Presidential elections.

THE ZIONIST COMMITMENT

To prove his zealous commitment to the State of Israel, Clinton had to fill his White House staff from hordes of young Zionist Kibbutzniks, ardent Israeli-Firsters who look upon the United States as a virgin territory to be conquered and enslaved forever in Israel’s grandiose scheme of Israel Uber Alles, Israel Over the World. The deus ex machina of Clinton’s otherwise incomprehensible rise to political power has been the unholy trio of the Anti-Defamation League of B’nai B’rith; Mossad, the Israeli espionage agency and Jonathan Pollard’s boss; and the ominous Jewish Defense League, the only terrorist organization operating full-time throughout the United States. It is true that Clinton’s incredible rise from rube-on-the-make to President of the United States was facilitated by the accident that Winthrop Rockefeller, one of John D. Rockefeller Jr.’s “Fortunate Five”, the richest youths in the world, fell in love with his Black Army sergeant during the Second World War, and wished to bring him back to New York as his personal trophy. His relatives issued a stern rebuke, and Winthrop was told to hie to the hinterlands for his then-bizarre tastes. He bought most of the state of Arkansas as his personal fiefdom, and installed his lover as his farm manager. When eager young Bill came along, Winthrop realized that he would be a valuable asset to the Rockefeller political program. No less an organ than the New York Times hailed the “brilliant young Clinton” as a comer. Even then, I predicted that the Rockefellers (read: the House of Rothschild, the creator of the Standard Oil Octopus) would boost Clinton into the Presidency. His qualifications were ideal: totally amoral, willing to do anything to get on, and totally sincere in his confidence in his own degeneracy. Amoral people who begin to doubt themselves must quickly be jettisoned. Clinton has never had this problem, nor has he ever been the cause of any qualms by his manipulators.

MONEY AND TERRORISM

With the Rockefeller fortune behind him, and the terrorist arm of the world Jewish conspiracy, the Anti-Defamation League Jewish Masonic organization, to run interference against any detractors, Clinton indeed had a clear road to the White House. His campaign had all the money it needed, all the propaganda provided courtesy of the New World Order, and international terrorism to stifle any public criticisms of his misdeeds. What the manipulators must have known was that Clinton would be a one-shot President. He has no staying power. From adolescence, he has had only one goal, instant self-gratification. This is no small qualification for an instrument of the New World Order. However, there is nothing in Clinton on which to build a genuine persona, the essential ingredient of any public career. But, you may well ask, has he not had a career, his rise to the Presidency? Indeed he has, but it is no more than that, a rise, not a means of building on his successes. In fact, Clinton became President because all of the doors were opened for him. Now all the doors are closing, never to be opened again. Clinton's fall from grace reached the point of no return when he commandeered the FBI files of his political rivals. He failed to realize that the Anti-Defamation League considers the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and indeed, the entire Department of Justice, its personal fiefdom, to be used only to further the Zionist cause, and not to be encroached upon by anyone.

THE NESHER CELL

In 1936, Philip Klutznick, incorporator of the Anti-Defamation League, founded an Israeli espionage unit, the Neshher cell (neshher means eagle in Hebrew), in the Department of Justice. By 1940, the Neshher group was running the entire Department of Justice, as it has ever since. The FBI has always been the willing tool of the Neshher operatives at Justice. It was the Neshher terrorists who orchestrated the massacres of the Weaver family and the Waco Holocaust, as a dire lesson to any Americans to dared to oppose their satanic program. At no time did the Neshher group anticipate that a mere President would presume to use their private organization, the FBI, for his own partisan purposes. Thus Clinton made certain his permanent retirement from the political scene. The ADL and the World Jewish Congress allow their stooges only one mistake. They will never be around to make a second one. They will use whatever means necessary to get rid of him, but it is likely that they will permit him to join their other house zombies, Ford and Carter. These living dead, drained of all their blood and life by the Jewish parasite, continue to live among us as a dire prediction of the fate that awaits all of us at the hands of the parasite.

On the other hand, the Life Force of the Universe also waits for us, waits for us to join it, as we were intended to do. Yes, we have a choice. We can go on, drained of life by the parasite, or we can recognize and join the Living Universe, to grow with it and contribute to it as we were meant to do, and in so doing, to taste all the joy of creating life, of participating in the universe, no longer Earthbound, but freed to soar to the limitless expanse of all Creation. Know that there is a choice, and that you can, not must, make that choice. In our sublime and generous universe, there are no musts; there are only cans. What can you do?

Green Cult Spreads Out

GREEN CULT SPREADS OUT

Mr. Green's team has constantly referred to us as a "cult". They also continue, after being told to cease and desist by the COURT, to have a whole bunch of "aka" names for Doris. Well, we note that there is a "group" of followers who are even required to use the SAME ATTORNEYS after their own drop them for having no case. I find that interesting.

George Green and Desirée claim to receive from Hatonn, Kroton, Duggah, Sananda, Aton, etc. Does that mean that these are also aka labels for them? I suppose so and, therefore, where they list akas for Doris, I hope our attorney will substitute and explain that those are names used by Greens.

Since Ekkers and parties here are trying to finally raise enough extra money to cover that which Green STOLE and sort out the mess that his cult members made as to the taking of Corporations not their own—from the Agent in Nevada—that we must ask that this Cult of Green's and his members, cease and desist annoying us, harassing and calling us bad names, thieves, liars and cheats.

We are happy to note that we are accused of all sorts of misuse of Nevada Corporations to sneak in and steal all manners of money and produce fraud. I find that it is interesting to note that the major accusers, Leon Fort and Ann Beam, have carried the Corporation-handling a step further in bringing their own new entity into California under the shelter of Infinite Balance, Mr. Fort's personal corporation. What are they hiding?—as we are always interrogated under torture and being called "Evil". I personally find the name even more interesting than anything else. No business is stated but Gold seems to be the primary focus of these people, members of Green's cult. They advertised by publishing the aka: June 12, 19, 26 and July 3, 1996.

The public announcement for "Fictitious Business" name statement, File No. 96-1743-4 reads:

[QUOTING:]

The following person is doing business as:

FT. KNOX CO-OP [H: Is this a take-off on Fort and Knox or Gold Storage? They don't state the type of business, only that it is doing business under Infinite Balance, Inc., A Nevada Corporation. We are accused of using funny names and weird intentions—how about this turn-about? And, how many cult members do they have? We already know that Ann stated she was an agent for Green. It is simply not alright for the pots to call the kettles smutty, is it? So let us see what else the announcement says:]

FT. KNOX CO-OP
333 S. Dennison Road, #61
Tehachapi, California 93561
3579 Highway 50 E, Suite C,
Carson City, Nevada 89701

THIS BUSINESS IS CONDUCTED BY: A CORPORATION.

The registrant commenced to transact business under the fictitious business name or names listed above on May 25, 1996.

INFINITE BALANCE, INC.
/s/ Ann Beam, President
Leon Fort, Vice President.

This statement filed with the County Clerk of Kern County on June 3, 1996. James A. Rhoades, County Clerk.

[END OF QUOTING]

I find myself wondering if Mr. Abbott paid the State of California fees for this transaction. (??)

We also want to welcome back Tammy Alley. It is nice to keep all our declared enemies, who have joined the cult of Green, close where we can watch them and check our backsides regularly. Is this a cult aka Corporation, or just a "shell"? The shoes pinch when they are on your own feet, don't they? Perhaps this is one of Green's "many, many" Nevada corporations? Watch the bouncing ball.

OLYMPIC MYTHS DEBUNKED

The New World Order boys are very big sports promoters, primarily because of the DISTRACTION it creates, diverting your attention from more of the significant freedom-robbing events treacheries they are perpetrating and keeping you too busy to oppose them. Golf, bowling, baseball, football—they don't care—as long as you and your family are involved. Does that mean athletic pursuits are "bad"? Of course not—it's a matter of perspective. From the June 27 issue of THE ORLANDO SENTINEL, [quoting:]

NEW YORK—Call him a spoilsport, but as a student of antiquity, David C. Young says he feels compelled to point out that the Olympic torch now heading to Atlanta is not a tradition dating to ancient Greece. In the July-August issue of Archaeology magazine, the University of Florida classics professor recalls that the long-distance torch relay originated 60 years ago, when Adolf Hitler tried to turn the 1936 Berlin Olympics into a celebration of the Third Reich. Not only that, but it was a Nazi propaganda film that also created the myth that the five-ring Olympic symbol is from ancient Greece—a mistake that numerous books and other publications have repeated over the years. [The Big Boys DON'T MAKE MISTAKES!]

As the torch neared New York City last week, most people questioned along the route had never heard of a Nazi connection. "I always thought it was from the third century, or was it the fifth century?" said Andrew Bauer, a Greenwich Village writer and philosophy teacher. Young's second book on the games, The Modern Olympics: A Struggle for Revival, is about to be published by Johns Hopkins University Press. He says the torch relay was invented by Carl Diem, a German who had been planning the 1916 Olympic Games at Berlin when they were canceled because of World War I. Twenty years later, Diem was back—organizing the 1936 games under Hitler. "Diem, seeking to glamorize them with an ancient aura, staged the first lighting of the Olympic flame, now a hallowed ritual in which millions delight," Young writes. [Yes, we do love our little rituals, don't we!] When the torches were lighted at Berlin—ostensibly to signify unity among nations—they carried the logo of the manufacturer, Krupp, the huge munitions company that armed Germany for two world wars, Young says.

Olympic officials don't deny the torch ceremony's origins. "It began in Berlin in 1936; that's true," Francois Carrard, director-general of the International Olympic Committee, said by telephone. The interlocking circles were designed in 1913 by France's Baron Pierre de Coubertin, founder of the IOC [International Olympic Committee], for a 1914 World Olympic Congress in Paris. The congress broke up when Archduke Ferdinand of Austria was assassinated in Sarajevo, triggering World War I [or so we are told]. Revived for the 1920 games at Antwerp, Belgium, and used at all later Olympiads, the ring logo came to symbolize the "five continents", Young says. [Don't you smell a bigger story behind this symbolism!?]

The myth of their ancient origin began with Leni Riefenstahl, the German cinematographer who chronicled Hitler's rise to power in the documentary Triumph of the Will and extolled the 1936 Games in the 12-hour film Olympia. For the latter film, Young says, Riefenstahl had the rings carved into a rock at Delphi, Greece, as a backdrop for the torch bearers circling the ruins of the ancient stadium. [Do you feel "had"?]

HEEEEEERE'S REAGAN!

Or a reasonable facsimile—it could be a cardboard cutout! Or more likely, a cloned replica. Anyway, this photo gives Dole new vigor—he's the young kid on the right! From July 4 issue of THE ORLANDO SENTINEL, [quoting:]

LOS ANGELES (AP)—White House hopeful Bob Dole, who last year promised Republicans he could be another Ronald Reagan [oh, no!], met privately with the former president Wednesday and pronounced the visit "a shot in the arm" for his campaign. "It reminded me of the great things that President Reagan had done for America—tax cuts, a good economy, strong defense," Dole said as he emerged from the 40-minute meeting. [Funny, my recollection is a bit different!]

ASSOCIATED PRESS

HEALTH AND WEALTH-FARE

From the Summer 1996 issue of the Canadian Naturopathic Association newsletter Vital Link, [quoting:]

Vitamin C a prescription drug? Vitamin E powder an illegal substance? Sound like science fiction? Check again: Radical changes in the availability of natural medicines around the world are tearing apart the concept of freedom of choice in health care. In Norway, health food stores cannot carry vitamins, minerals or even trace minerals. In 1992 the Norwegian FDA redefined vitamin C and E powder as drugs. In France, people have been indicted for selling vitamin C. Similarly, the Jamaican Government is cracking down on the unregulated sale of vitamins, minerals and herbs. Is it conspiracy, coincidence or international cooperation? Maybe none—or maybe a little bit of each. Basically these events are driven by International Trade Regulations.

A fundamental part of world trade is governance by GATT. Under the UN, member states meet standards for trade in food, food stuffs, labeling, content and even manufacturing. Of course most states have internal mechanisms which enforce similar controls—the FDA in the US and Health Protections Branch in Canada. But many states, despite internal mechanisms, are heavily influenced by rules and regulations imposed at the international level. If an international delegation changes standards which limit freedom of choice, there is often very little which can be done at the national or local level. Indeed, countries which oppose decisions under GATT are often penalized by the World Trade Organization. In a sense, decisions reached by GATT delegations can result in a domino effect, rippling across member states, causing radical change and upheaval to common trade practices. Given that, how does the delegation process work, and why is it not working in the public's favor? GATT has under it many delegations which perform various tasks. One such delegation is the Codex Commission. The Codex Alimentarius Committee on Nutrition and Foods for Special Supplements (CAC) has in its jurisdiction the task of economic analysis and risk assessment of natural medicines. 18 delegates make up the CAC. The problem with this process is that 90% of CAC delegates represent multinational pharmaceutical corporations. At present, the only US delegate is a representative from the FDA [likely a "pharmaceutical flunky"]. But with the deck stacked against us, health freedom often loses out to limitations, controls, and constraints. One proposal, called "Draft Guidelines for Dietary Supplements" was put forward by the German delegation; it passed 16-2, with the sole American representative being one of the two dissenting voices. This proposal includes radical changes to the sale and possession of natural remedies, enforcing doctor prescriptions and contains the following points:

- (1) No dietary supplement can be sold for preventative or therapeutic use;
- (2) no dietary supplement sold as a food can exceed potency levels set by the commission;
- (3) Codex regulations for dietary supplements would become binding (this means that the clause within GATT which allows a nation to set its own standards would be eliminated). Admittedly, these standards severely restrict health choice and cater almost exclusively to multinational interests.

The shortfalls of GATT are too great to detail here, but in brief, GATT has been labeled "a rich man's club", and its agenda tends to favor the interests of multinational corporations.

NEW FUEL IS SUGAR-BASED

From the June 26 issue of THE GAZETTE, MONTREAL, [quoting:]

LONDON (Reuters)—British and American scientists said yesterday they have discovered a way to make a clean fuel from sugar, which could revolutionize the energy industry. The process uses enzymes from bacteria that live near hot underwater vents to convert glucose into hydrogen and water. A clean and cheap way to produce pure hydrogen has been a major objective for energy researchers, who are seeking ways to replace pollution-creating fossil fuels and atomic reactors. [This is a lot like saying it is a major objective for researchers to find a safe effective cure for cancer, AIDS, etc. It's just window dressing. What is wanted is the status quo—cartel-controlled, high priced, polluting petroleum products and death and disease.]

Michael Danson, a biochemist at the University of Bath, Western England, said the process could also use simple cellulose—the basic component of plants including grass. "What we have done is taken glucose and we have oxidized it with an enzyme," Danson said in a telephone interview. "It produced molecular hydrogen." "Hydrogen is the fuel of the 21st Century," said Jonathan Woodward of the Oak Ridge National Laboratory in Tennessee, co-author of the research. "The ultimate goal is to convert renewable resources into hydrogen gas." [This is NOT the goal of the globalists, who will squelch this concept by buying up the rights to it and sitting on it.] Woodward, an expert in enzymes at the laboratory, run by Lockheed Martin Energy Research Corp. for the U.S. Department of Energy, said hydrogen could one day be used to fuel cars. ["Could", yes, but not likely.] The findings will be published in the July issue of the journal Nature Biotechnology.

IN THE HOLE

From the July 4 issue of THE ORLANDO SENTINEL, [quoting:]

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States, already the world's largest net debtor country, saw its debt position jump by 40 percent last year while Britain retained its No. 1 spot as the country with the biggest holdings in U.S. companies. In its annual look at America's international balance sheet, the Commerce Department said Tuesday that America's net debtor position rose to $814 billion, up from $580.1 billion in 1994. The net debtor position is the shortfall between what foreigners own in U.S. assets—corporations, real estate, stocks and bonds—compared with what Americans own in overseas assets. In direct investments, defined as ownership of at least 10 percent of a company, Britain retained its hold on the No. 1 spot in U.S. holdings for the second straight year. It had displaced Japan in 1995.

Until the mid-80s, the United States enjoyed the title as the world's largest creditor country, a position now held by Japan, as the amount of American-owned assets abroad dwarfed the foreign-owned assets in this country. In 1986, the United States became a net debtor for the first time since early in this century, and that position has grown every year since as Americans transferred billions of dollars overseas to pay for imported cars, oil and other products. The net debtor figure is not a debt in a classic sense since it includes not only bank loans but all forms of investment. [Although you perform all sorts of tricks with statistics, the secret is getting out that the U.S. is and has long been bankrupt and owned, lock-stock-and-proverbial-barrel, by the international bankers.]

CIA HUMAN RIGHTS ABUSES IN SOUTH AMERICA

From the June 29 issue of the JOHNSON CITY PRESS, [quoting:]

WASHINGTON (AP)—Credible evidence suggests that several CIA agents in Guatemala ordered, planned or took part in human rights abuses, including assassination, since 1984, a presidential panel said Friday. The panel said the CIA was aware of many of the allegations at about the time they occurred. It also found that the CIA did not keep Congress adequately informed of its activities in Guatemala and was insensitive to human rights abuses there. The findings were contained in a 53-page report by Intelligence Oversight Board. President Clinton ordered the panel to undertake an investigation following allegations last year that the CIA may have engaged in improper activities in Guatemala. [Congressional investigations are a sick joke—more window dressing to beguile the gullible.]

The CIA inspector general had undertaken an earlier probe and, like the intelligence board, also found fault with CIA communications to Congress and with its attention to human rights questions. Commenting on the board report, CIA Director John Deutch said in a statement, "I take these findings extremely seriously, and last year directed the CIA to put corrective measures in place. The CIA has done this, and I note the IOB report recognizes this fact." [More CIA humor!]

The board said in its report that it had learned that since 1984, "several CIA assets were credibly alleged to have ordered, planned, or participated in serious human rights violations such as assassination, extrajudicial execution, torture or kidnaping while they were assets—and that the CIA was contemporaneously aware of many of the allegations."

'FILEGATE' LINKED TO FOSTER

From the July 8 issue of SPOTLIGHT by Mike Blair, [quoting:]

A dirty trickster in charge of Clinton Administration security has been linked to the mysterious death in 1993 of key Clinton aide Vincent Foster, Jr.

Craig Livingstone, former director of White House personnel security operations, was one of several individuals seen removing files from the office of Foster after his death on July 20, 1993.

Livingstone resigned in disgrace June 26. "With an infinitely more distinguished public record than yours, Admiral [Jeremy] Boorda committed suicide when he may have committed a minor mistake," Rep. Tom Lantos (D-CA) said, leaving Livingstone teary-eyed.

Livingstone also retrieved FBI personal files on 480 former Republican White House officials and staffers.

The requests were made to the FBI for the files under the name of White House chief counsel Bernard Nussbaum, Foster's immediate supervisor at the White House.

When the files and other contents of Foster's office were searched after his death, Nussbaum was in charge of reviewing and sorting the material.

The FBI was present, but the agents were forced to sit on the other side of the room from where Nussbaum was working. FBI agents were unable to see the documents.

This, of course, raises the possibility that secret FBI files may have been among those found in Foster's office and removed by Livingstone and others.

The cause of Foster's death, officially declared a suicide, is still under investigation by Whitewater special counsel Kenneth Starr.

The body of the deputy White House counsel was found in a remote section of Fort Marcy Park, across the Potomac River from Washington in Virginia, with a single bullet wound to the head.

WHAT FILES?

The question now arises as to just what files were taken from Foster's office. It has generally been assumed that they were files related to the Clintons' links with the Whitewater land deals.

Members of the Senate Judiciary Committee investigating the White House effort to delve into the FBI's personal files of former Republican staffers are convinced Livingstone was "digging for dirt" on the Republicans.

In what FBI general counsel Howard Shapiro has described as "a massive invasion of privacy," 480 requests were made to the FBI for the personal files of the former Reagan and Bush staff members. Of that total 33 files were actually dispatched to the White House security office.

VERY PERSONAL

During committee hearings, Sen. Alan Simpson (R-WY) revealed the files contained such personal information as very private details of the individuals' lives. These facts included answers to questions as to their sexual lives, including details of any extra-material affairs of either them or their spouses.

In many instances the files contain federal income tax returns and other tax information. Releasing tax information is a felony.

When the information was provided to the FBI the individuals were assured that it would be held in the strictest of confidence. Copies kept in the personnel files at the White House were supposed to go to the secret archives of outgoing presidents after their White House service was completed.

How many copies of the more than 300 files turned over to the Clinton security office exist is not known. Pink slips found in empty file folders by the FBI reveal the documents to be signed out by security staffers.

WHO HAD ACCESS?

Former White House staffers appearing before the Senate Judiciary Committee to testify about what has become known as "Filegate" say they are concerned how widespread the files were circulated, read and copied after the White House got hold of them. Some files had been signed out and were not among those returned to the bureau.

The sordid episode is an embarrassment for the FBI, particularly after recent congressional investigations of FBI wrongdoing in its handling of the now famous Randy Weaver case in Idaho and the holocaust that resulted from the confrontation between federal agents and members of the Branch Davidian religious sect at Waco.

FBI Director Louis Freeh, who has angrily denounced the White House snoop effort, has called for a complete internal investigation of how the bureau handles personal files. He ordered new guidelines and regulations to prevent violations of privacy in the future.

It has been reported that the ability of the White House to retrieve the files with just a simple written request was established during the administration of the late Lyndon B. Johnson.

Johnson reportedly enjoyed reading the files of the personal sexual peccadilloes of both friends and opponents.

Olympics Bad For Your Health!

7/11/96 #1 HATONN

I appreciate Eustace Mullins' observation that he is older now and would like to work 24 hours a day but has to restrict the load to perhaps 16 hours a day. Us too! And at this point, doing some business on the opposite side of the globe—we are hitting the 24 hours a day and praying the Copper colloid keeps the parasites out of the joints—especially the finger-joints. Then we have to pray the Titanium colloid will knock out the viruses carried by those specialized parasites.

YOU have to also, just like us, deal with those two-legged parasites who have taken your world—while you deal with their offspring microbes. The time during the Atlanta Olympics will be the test of mankind. The Elite Controllers don't call themselves the Olympians for nothing. The troops have already been moved in—and by the way—troops have been brought in and off-loaded in the South through Texas and are being brought and placed in strategic places along the West Coast and immediately in areas of such as Sacramento, California and bases around major coastal cities—on BOTH COASTS. I just thought you Inquiring Minds would WANT TO KNOW. YOU ARE GOING TO WANT THOSE COPPER AND TITANIUM COLLOIDS SO, TEAM, GET ON WITH THE PACKAGING—WE HAVE THE COLLOIDS WAITING TO BE BOTTLED.

To the readers: I suggest you get a supply of these two colloids ASAP as New Gaia has it packaged. The Colloids are ready for packaging except for the labels. We must do what is necessary to get the product to you so be especially gentle and kind to the people involved here for they are working so short of help as to be very painful when I toss in a new one onto their shoulders. We have targeted the higher frequency in the colloidalizing process—unnecessary for ordinary colloids but mandatory for use as a anti-microbial, anti-parasitic BULLET.

The intent is to intentionally infect the people attending the 'Games' with that which is spread by insects and later airborne carriers. The temperatures are scheduled to be intensely hot and HUMID—allowing optimum incubation of both parasites and microbes. The intent is to get the incubation period started and the full-blown infection will present after the visitors return to their various habitats. The infecting organism will be mutations of prior recognized organisms and will be out of hand before the medical profession can "find a fix". YOU DO NOT HAVE TO GET THESE FATAL DISEASES—BUT YOU DO HAVE TO TAKE YOUR OWN RESPONSIBILITY INTO YOUR OWN HANDS.

We are not, and never shall be, in any medical business. We know this works and share it, no more and no less. Do NOT stop your intake of GaiaCol Silver, the GaiaGold, or OxySol (especially OxySol) because the OxySol is a specifically programmable crystal solution which is carbon based and holds human DNA transfer capability. Then you must have the Gaiandriana for that offers the LIVING CELLS with their natural living crystalline structure—to merge with the body's own cellular structure.

Most of you will have used a lot of your supplies with the early Summer flu—DO NOT RUN OUT; YOU ARE GOING TO HAVE TO HAVE BUNCHES TO GET THROUGH THESE NEXT ASSAULTS.

The financial losses here were great during the last "stock-up" sales and some dealers bought a lot and did not give the sale price to customers. We can't do that again because the paper and other industry here depends on those products' income. Perhaps there can be a four-for-three price or something similar—that is up to New Gaia as to how much they can manage and how much they can do with the mandatory cut-backs in help. Some of the helpers are away on vacation but will be back in a couple of weeks so it might work out alright. We, like all of you, have to LIVE LIFE AS IT HAPPENS TO US.

I would ask that some information on these products BE IN THIS ISSUE OF THE PAPER! [We are working on getting these new products to you by the first week of August 1996. Please see box on this page. Thank you, the staff at NEW GAIA.] I repeat, those games start in a week—and a couple of weeks after that all HELL is going to cut loose if "their" plan goes according to schedule. You will get a world-scatter on the carriers. This will be worse than an Ebola outbreak. READ YOUR TV PROGRAMS—THEY ARE TELLING YOU EXACTLY WHAT THEY PLAN TO DO—INCLUDING "INDEPENDENCE DAY" TYPES OF ACTIVITIES—WHILE YOU ARE SICK AND DOWN.

Next will come the realization of food shortages and contaminated grain. Be blind if you choose, as well as deaf and dumb—but, remember, someone has to attend the sick—hopefully without becoming dead in the process.

DO NOT BUY INTO THIS "TOO MANY EMPLOYED...", "RUNAWAY ECONOMY" AND ALL THAT GARBAGE THEY FEED YOU ON THE FINANCIAL PAGES. WHO EVER HEARD OF A DROP IN THE MARKET BECAUSE OF GOOD EMPLOYMENT AND GROWING ECONOMY? READ MY LIPS, MY FINGERS AND MY MIND: YOU ARE INTO THE SERIOUS, SERIOUS TIMES AND YOU ARE GOING TO HAVE TO HELP YOURSELVES. Keep those little pulse boxes going and if you don't have one—get one and USE IT REGULARLY. Keep up your intake of all these things we offer—YOU NEED THEM. THERE ARE NONE LIKE THEM ELSEWHERE ON ANY MARKET—NONE!! You must have an immune system that can handle these invaders. You WILL be hit but you can survive—but not with what is available in your medical annals for use at present. Your body is your business and we cannot, nor even desire to, offer medicines or drugs—so you are on your own for boosting and keeping a good, sound IMMUNE system. Even that doesn't mean you won't get sick—it is planned that you get sick—and depopulation of the globe is STILL IN THE STRATEGIC PLANNING of the One World Order. Your future is up to you, READERS; not ME, not US—YOU.

COMING SOON—

Colloidal DHEA (GAIA W.M.Y.)

CALVIN C. BURGIN

In my experience on your place I have found many, many negative individuals who dare not, speak up not—just a whole lot of “not”. Dharma calls them “lots nots”. However, when you find the few who dare, speak up, research, write, share, go out of their way to help, and honor God, Country and Fellowman—I am overwhelmed with appreciation.

In order to not put any spin on this tale, as we are often called by our adversaries, “spin doctors”, I will offer Cal’s letter as we move to offer his most recent compilation of writings.

There will be sufficient information for you Inquiring Minds who cannot wait for me to get back to The Hoax Of Judeo-Christianity. Calvin always sends a disc in these more recent writings which would save untold amounts of time for ones who simply want to reprint the words. We appreciate that convenience—but I don’t handle it that way. We are not in the general publishing business—YET—for that comes in a day when we have wherewithal to handle the load—then we may well have the biggest publishing company, outside the Controllers, ever known to man. At present we must not.

Mary Snell reprinted and copied the book above mentioned and now that Calvin has referred to same—please, if impatience denies you rest—you can get the entire volume from her. [See box on this page] It is worth every cent and one day MUST have publication. Remember, we who become too impatient—God blesses us in our wise patience.

In the overall tale of lives, past and present, that book is far more important than the more recently received document from Mr. Burgin—BUT, for this moment in sequence, the more recent takes current affairs a bit further and for the moment becomes more important for this moment in passing. Perhaps Mary will have opportunity to print this also, and you who are, again, impatient, will find a resource without waiting on our chaotic schedule and paper limitations. Perhaps our dream is: no limitations on the paper size for we have no prospect of diminishing information. When we are the only one of perhaps two or three others who print TRUTH and dare to speak out, there is certainly PLENTIFUL information begging to be told. However, until the public is willing to support us, and you don’t have to subscribe if you get papers otherwise—you can send a few dollars to CONTACT and every little bitty bit helps. Remember the importance of the “Widow’s mite”. We are having to cut out the relief team just to continue the paper—and that always makes the enemy happy because often those involved become the enemy. Everybody wants to bash Ekkers—but the facts are, Ekkers have to figure a way to attend it ALL as to pay. The products pay the way during sales but can’t even pay their own people during regular times. This will change for it is God’s PROMISE that it shall be so. This does not mean that we don’t have difficult and lean times in the interim.

I am asked why we don’t hear more from Dr. Young, for he is such a skilled writer? I can’t answer that for we who attend our own business and do our own work, accept that each one here does what he can—according to his instructions regarding that task. I will tell you this, however: he works with a couple of “receivers” who are blossoming brilliantly and that in turn will relieve our load tremendously without leaving either a blank spot in Spiritual contact and/or be caused to totally neglect such as Geophysical phenomena, Natural or Manmade, immediate warnings for preparation OR allow you to forget the purpose of our communications in the FIRST place.

Some say, “...but you could go back to those lessons...!” No, I won’t, because I also have a mission—to see the remnant through, lay infrastructure for not just survival but movement into radiance and living possibilities right on your old battered world. Writing for journals or the paper is the LEAST of our work load.

I am going to now turn to a “cover-letter” from Calvin C. Burgin, 404 Gate Tree Lane, Austin, TX 78745. Phone: 512-443-9129, Day: 512-454-3003, FAX: 512-452-4770, e-mail: wrldline@texas.net.

[QUOTING:]

Dear Friends, June 30, 1996

Enclosed is Part 6 of Fire From The Sky (my numbering system) [CONTACT's Part 31 and onward]. Some of the material in it has been covered by CONTACT, but there are some important items in it that CONTACT has not covered.

If it is of any interest to you, feel free to use it, or not, any way you like. The information needs to get out.

Originally I asked Wayne (Richard) Snell not to use my name so that the focus would be on him, not me. I was only the compiler, anyway. Now I don't see any reason not to use my name (the government certainly knows all they want to know about me), so that people can contact me if they wish. Feel free to use my name and address unless you know some reason why you shouldn't.

Mary Snell has published The Hoax of Judeo-Christianity in book form, anybody that wants the complete book can contact her at: Mary Snell, P.O. Box 6708, Texarkana, TX 75505-6708. It is $24.00, postage and all. Send check or Money Order to Mary Snell.

There is a bumper sticker which says "Kill 'em all, let God sort 'em out." I like your way better, "Expose 'em all, let the people sort 'em out."

Sincerely,
Calvin

[END OF QUOTING]

I don't believe I need to further comment; let us just move right on, Dharma, and see how far we can get before the meeting today with Wally Gentleman.

[QUOTING, FIRE FROM THE SKY, PART 31:]

THE KILLING CONTINUES

Plane crashes, mass suicides, bombs and mad cows—what a crazy world we live in! THESE THINGS ARE ALL RELATED! Let's see HOW they are related.

The Canadian Press World News Digest issued a summary of the four top world news events on Wednesday, April 3, 1996, which stated [quoting:]

A SUMMARY OF TOP WORLD NEWS WEDNESDAY:

AUTHORITIES SAY PARANOIA LED TO 1994 CULT DEATHS

FRIBOURG, Switzerland—a power-crazy, paranoid old man who was the mastermind of a doomsday cult was responsible for the deaths of 53 members of the Order of the Solar Temple in Canada and Switzerland, investigators say. The deaths began in October 1994 with the ritual slaying of a three-month-old boy in Quebec, investigating magistrate Andre Piller said after an 18-month investigation. Documents dating to early 1993 indicated the cult was already preparing its "transit" into a better world, Piller said. "The madness of a power-crazy man with many faces" was responsible for the carnage, Piller concluded. That man was cult mastermind Joseph di Mambro, a 70-year-old from Quebec. Di Mambro was in failing health and was worried about being uncovered as a fraud by cult members who had invested fortunes to finance the group's extensive travel and properties, Piller said. Di Mambro was also egged on by "paranoia" that the cult was being hunted by police.

BRITISH BEEF FARMERS WORRY OVER MAD COW PLAN

GREAT HALLINGBURY, England—Dairy farmer Andy Streeter was a happy man after the European Union agreed to pay him for each animal destroyed under a plan to eradicate mad cow disease. "I am encouraged. They are doing something to restore public confidence and get the British beef industry back on its feet," said Streeter. He has had 16 cases of the brain-wasting bovine spongiform encephalopathy in his herd of cows since the disease began in 1986. Farmers with beef cattle, however, are still wondering what the government will do to cushion them from plummeting prices, hostile consumers and a world-wide ban on beef exports imposed by the European Union. Britain has agreed with its EU partners that it will no longer allow cattle older than 30 months to be slaughtered for meat. Instead, as many as 15,000 carcasses a week—mainly old dairy cows—will have to be incinerated or otherwise disposed of, and farmers will receive compensation.

HOPE FADES FOR U.S. COMMERCE SECRETARY AFTER CRASH

WASHINGTON—A military plane carrying U.S. Commerce Secretary Ron Brown crashed in Croatia and hope faded that he could have survived. U.S. President Bill Clinton told Commerce Department employees that he didn't yet know for sure what had happened to Brown. But, referring to his friend in the past tense, he eulogized Brown as if he were dead. "Ron Brown walked and ran and flew through life and he was a magnificent life force and those of us who loved him will always be grateful for his friendship and his warmth," Clinton said, fighting emotion. [H: Remember that "croc"??] He then called for a moment of silence, before leaving the auditorium. Thirty-three people, 27 passengers and six crew, were aboard the T-43A, a military version of the Boeing 737, when it went down in bad weather near the city of Dubrovnik, said Gen. Howell Estes, operations director at the Joint Chiefs of Staff. The passengers included senior military officials and leading business executives, he said.

FBI MOVING AGAINST FORMER TEACHER SUSPECTED AS UNABOMBER

WASHINGTON—FBI agents searched the Montana home of a former college teacher turned in by his family as a possible suspect in the Unabomber killings, federal law enforcement officials said. The man under suspicion was described as a Harvard graduate and a former professor or instructor at the University of California at Berkeley, said two federal officials, who requested anonymity. One federal law enforcement official said the man has been under surveillance for "a short period of time". The search took place Wednesday afternoon at the man's home in Lincoln, Mont., this official said. A member of the Unabomb task force, demanding anonymity, said the suspect was named Ted John Kaczynski and had been using many aliases. ABC News said Kaczynski was taken into custody when he resisted having his home searched. END OF QUOTE. (I often use QUOTE and END QUOTE instead of or in addition to quote marks, to aid in keeping track of quotes when the material gets translated through computer bulletin board files and internet computers.)

[H: By the way, to answer all the bunches of inquiries about putting journal or CONTACT material on the Internet or whatever—PRINT ANYTHING YOU WISH—WE ENCOURAGE SHARING AND THE MORE PEOPLE WHO KNOW THIS MATERIAL—THE MORE CHANCE THERE IS TO CHANGE A WHOLE BUNCH OF BAD THINGS. NO ONE HERE HAS THE TIME TO ARRANGE FOR SUCH PUBLICATIONS.]

What will not be obvious to most readers is the fact that those four headline items are related to each other!

SOLAR TEMPLE "CULT"

Let's first look at the Solar Temple Cult that was "suicided" in October, 1994, [quoting:]

INTERNATIONAL CULT MURDERS

While "cult experts" initially labeled the autumn deaths of fifty members of the order of the Solar Temple in Switzerland and Canada the result of a "suicide pact", it's now clear that it was a case of mass murder. Salvan, Switzerland police chief Bernard Geiger has stated, "It would be more proper to talk of a collective murder than a suicide..." and police said that most of the shots that killed the victims were not fired by the three rifles found near the dead.

Like Lee Harvey Oswald, cult founder Luc Jouret had a confusing mix of left- and right-wing political associations in his past. From 1964 to 1975, Jouret was an active member of a Belgian Communist youth league, but prior to establishing his cult, he had belonged to the New Order of the Temple, a cult founded by a French right-wing extremist in 1968. He has also been connected to Chinese and Peruvian Marxist groups. Meanwhile, Jouret associate Joseph di Mambro is said to have been connected to Nazis during World War II.

Another odd aspect of the case is the fact that the interior of the cult Temple contained images (an Egyptian sphinx, a rose and cross, a grail) that suggest links to a secretive and ancient religious sect known as the Cathars. [H: Also KNOW AS THE CHAZARS-KHAZARS.] The Cathars, similar in philosophy to the Knights Templar, were severely persecuted and massacred by the Catholic Church. The Cathars and/or the Knights Templar are thought by some to have possessed powerful secrets relating to the life of Christ and perhaps the Holy Grail itself.

Perhaps most significant in this case is the fact that both Jouret and de Mambro had been under investigation by the RCMP in Canada for arms running and money laundering. While a recent CNN report did mention that the cult may have been involved with international money laundering, this angle has not been widely reported or investigated. (Paranoia, The Conspiracy Reader, article Paranotes, p. 14, winter 1994/95. Paranoia, PO Box 3570, Cranston, RI 02910).

[END QUOTING OF PART 31:]

Sorry, just as this was really picking up—we have to leave it. We ARE going to run this in entirety in CONTACT if CONTACT can manage to stay in press. However, I would hope that Mary Snell is also working on a compiled copy. When we get funding we fully intend to do what we promised Richard, and that is to help Mary Snell. All of you readers will note that it has happened in Arkansas, exactly as Snell said it would—while they continue to kill off those who know too much—JUST AS THEY DID RICHARD SNELL. Well, good old Guy Tucker is in more trouble than he can handle—as he is having to resign in disgrace AND is dying of liver problems for which, if he gets no donor, he will pay that ultimate price. He might do well to share his input with the world and perhaps God might look more kindly on his soul journey!

So be it, we must make an appointment. Please stay tuned AND INTERESTED—this is going to get ever so much better as it unfolds.

Thank you, Calvin Burgin, for doing the tedious job of compiling all this information so we can “cut to the chase”.

Wally Gentleman and George Van Noy, you don't have to concern too much over Sipapu—there are a zillion stories needing to be told even worse than that one! We'll get there! Salu.

IMPORTANCE

One of the reasons this particular brief segment [following] on the “cult” operation and burning relates to news JUST YESTERDAY, is because Janet Reno, Attorney General of the United States, but an employee of the United Nations and paid by the International Monetary Fund, was censured for her criminal actions in the authorizing of the burning of the Davidians in Waco, Texas. Interestingly enough, the only thing the press had to report was that it was apparently an action simply put forth by the Republicans to embarrass an already harassed President Clinton. Your world IS SICK, readers.

You are going to read about accidents and “suicides” until you are sickened by the blatant misfit lies—BUT, perhaps you should pay attention—for among the “suicided” are the ones who KNOW TOO MUCH.

Let us consider a news-breaking story hot off the South African Press rollers:

[QUOTING:]

AMSCHEL ROTHSCHILD HANGED HIMSELF

Friday, July 12, 1996

PARIS—Amschel Rothschild, the heir to the British BANKING DYNASTY who was discovered hanged in a Paris hotel room, took his own life, the NM Rothschild Sons BANK confirmed yesterday.

Initial inquiries by French police indicated that he seemed depressed shortly before his death, but that he had left no note to explain why he might have taken his life. A post mortem was being carried out....

...The banking dynasty was founded in the early 19th Century (1800s) by Mayer Amschel Rothschild [H: Red Shield of the Khazarians], who told his five sons to form banks in Frankfurt, London, Naples, Paris and Venice.

...He worked as a personal assistant to his cousin and in 1990 was made chief executive of Rothschild Asset Management. It was losing money then and still was at the time of his death. [H: Thank you, Mr. Bush! Those bogus certificates really got around, didn't they?]

[END OF QUOTING]

[QUOTING, FIRE FROM THE SKY, PART 32:]

* October 10—One of cult's leaders reportedly is among dead.

CHEIRY, Switzerland—The mystery surrounding the macabre deaths of dozens of cult members in Switzerland deepened on Sunday with the assertion that a presumed ringleader of the Order of the Solar Temple, for whom a murder warrant had been issued, had been identified among the dead.

But there was still no clue as to the whereabouts of Luc Jouret, the 46-year-old Belgian founder and head of the sect, who also is wanted on murder charges. It has not been established whether he was also among those who died in Switzerland in a deadly scene that apparently was coordinated with five other deaths on property owned by the cult leaders in Canada.

Swiss television reported Sunday that several family members had identified the body of Joseph di Mambro, 70, a French-Canadian reputed to be the financial mastermind of the cult, and that of his wife, Jocelyn, among 25 burned bodies recovered from three chalets at the Alpine ski hamlet of Granges-sur-Salvan, 100 miles from Cheiry... Di Mambro's name also figures in another baffling twist: his passport and his wife's arrived at the Interior Ministry in Paris over the weekend in a package addressed to Interior Minister Charles Pasqua, the ministry said.

That was not the only French connection. Police investigating an empty farmhouse in D'Augignan, in southern France, discovered Saturday that it had been booby-trapped to explode on the same night as the fires at the farmhouse in Cheiry, 48 miles north of Geneva, and in Granges-sur-Salvan. The farmhouse had been used by the sect last August. The Canadian police have said that three of the five people found in Morin Heights, 50 miles northwest of Montreal, were killed several days before fire destroyed the building around the same period as the fires broke out in the Swiss villages. Canadian bankers also have spoken of suspiciously large amounts of money passing through a cult member's bank account. There also has been a report of an Australian farm being the headquarters of the money-laundering operation. (Austin American Statesman, A4.)

EXPERTS DOUBT VALIDITY OF CULT SUICIDE THEORY

* October 14—New York Times News Service. GRANGES-SUR-SALVAN, Switzerland—Swiss investigators raised doubts Thursday as to whether 48 members of an esoteric sect who were found dead Wednesday in two Swiss villages had taken part in a collective suicide, noting that some of them were administered a powerful drug before they died.

Andre Pillar, a judge investigating the deaths of 23 members of the sect at a farmhouse in the village of Cheiry, said some elements supported the idea of a collective suicide, “but others make us think of an execution.”

He said it was possible some members of the Order of the Solar Temple chose to die by taking the drug, “a powerful, violent substance” that he said was administered “by injection and/or intravenous drip”. But he noted that 20 of the 23 bodies at Cheiry had bullet wounds, 10 had sealed plastic bags over their heads and several were found with their hands tied behind their backs. [H: Isn't it amazing what great efforts some people will make to commit SUICIDE? By golly, it appears Kevorkian might have the most merciful suicide offering after all.]

Bernard Geiger, the police chief of the region that includes the hamlet Granges-sur-Salvan, where 25 bodies were found Wednesday, also questioned Thursday whether all 48 people chose to die, particularly since at least five children were among the dead.

CONTACT: The Phoenix Project

CONTACT is a unique and inspired newspaper for concerned citizens everywhere, though it particularly focuses on the United States because of this country's special mission in the affairs of the world. That is, “As goes the United States, so goes the world.”

CONTACT is a vehicle for Commander Gyeorgos Ceres Hatonn's most recent writings on important current affairs, plus those from other enlightening sources, on matters critical to a responsible and informed public at this time of planetary transition and final days of battle between the Forces of Light and the “Evil Empire” forces of darkness.

CONTACT exists to counteract the manipulating lies and clever half-truths put out (on purpose) by the regular print and broadcast media prostitutes of the Satanic Elite controllers—parasites who are in the process of economically, physically, and spiritually collapsing this once great country (and actually the entire planet) down to a slave-state level of existence under their diabolical control plan called The New World Order.

This newspaper, CONTACT, began life on March 30, 1993, risen, like the mythical bird, with great determination “up from the ashes” of its internationally acclaimed predecessor called THE PHOENIX LIBERATOR.

THE PHOENIX LIBERATOR, in turn, began life in mid-October of 1991, having evolved from an earlier newsletter called the PHOENIX JOURNAL EXPRESS, which itself came into existence as a faster way to get THE TRUTH out to you readers than was possible with the more substantial “book” format of the PHOENIX JOURNALS. Much incredible ground has been covered so far in that mission.

While the PHOENIX LIBERATOR's motto reminded all that “The Truth Will Set You Free”, the CONTACT's motto, displayed prominently in the masthead, takes that thought another important step forward and proclaims: “Ye Shall Know The Truth And The Truth Shall Make You Mad!”

The “Phoenix Project” is about those preparations needed—at body, mind and soul levels—to both understand and survive the great healing changes which are beginning to energize this beautiful little planet, now so frazzled and tortured from abuses of all kinds. We look forward, with great expectations, to the *CONTACT*ing with all of you—a coming together that is rapidly taking place as the entire Phoenix Project “ground crew” continues to connect, solidify, and gain strength through becoming informed of THE TRUTH. Indeed, welcome aboard, friends!

[H: I must remind you readers that SOUL is eternal and because SOUL is eternal, the method of death of the body is extremely and urgently important. THE SOUL WILL BEAR THE MEMORY OF SUCH TORMENT AND TORTURE FOREVER. This is KNOWN by the mind-warpers and thus a terrorized death is chosen to keep the soul from its return by choice, protect themselves should the soul return with a vendetta and this will produce major problems of balanced life-flow when triggered in subsequent living experiences. Some of the prior life expressions mark and mar the next many experiences.]

"We are still reeling from what we found," he said after inspecting the underground chapel. "When we first walked in, it looked like a wax museum. The bodies were lying in a circle with their heads outward." On the wall of the chapel was a picture of a long-haired, bearded man with a cape and a rose.

A cassette tape attached to the door of the chapel explained some of the group's spiritual beliefs, Pillar said, but gave no reason for the killings.

Police said they also found literature referring to a sect called the Crois and Rose, believed to be an offshoot of the same group. The farmhouse, perched on a wooded hill over the village of Cheiry, 45 miles north of Geneva, was sealed off from reporters.

Twenty-five bodies, including several children lying next to each other, were found in three chalets in a ski area at Granges-sur-Salvan in Valais canton, about 45 miles southeast of Geneva. Police said they found 15 bodies at one chalet and two at another. Later in the morning, they found eight more bodies in a third chalet, which was destroyed by fire [started by sophisticated remote-controlled bombs]. Police called off the search of the third chalet late Wednesday, fearing the structure would collapse. Valais police spokesman Carlo Kuonen told Swiss radio there was no sign of force or violence at the chalets.

"Apparently they were somehow put to sleep," he said. Police said the victims may have been given an overdose of some type of drug. Police in Canada said the bodies found there Tuesday in a rural area outside Montreal had not yet been identified.

Const. Michel Brunet of the Quebec provincial police said the man and woman were wearing medallions engraved with double-headed eagles and Latin inscriptions invoking the fabled Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse.

[H: Please stop the nonsense about double-headed eagles for that symbol means anything anyone wants it to mean. It is in Austrian logos, Indian logos, Pleiadian logos, Masonic logos—you name it. It has simply evolved into a confusing and overused bit of distraction. It was the symbol of the House of the Czar of Russia, Romanoff—but also the House of Fabrizia who later moved to Paris, France and was sold to a Khazarian Jew. The original trademark on art and sculpture was from the JEWELER who served the Czar of Russia. The real meaning of the symbol itself is as the Thunderbird-Phoenix, which represents the "Overlord" or "Master-Lord". It is simply a corrupted sign in current use—usually popping up greatly in modern cults—who have no idea of any meaning so they take it from whatever fits their fancy.]

Pillar said he was concerned that although many of the bodies discovered in the farmhouse also had bullet wounds, no weapons were found near the bodies. [H: Miracles never cease!!] Police said earlier that the 25 other bodies found in three ski chalets in Valais, about 45 miles from the farmhouse, showed no signs of violence and appeared to "have been put to sleep".

Twenty of them had .22-caliber bullet holes in the head. Some were suffocated with gray plastic trash bags tied over their heads. Some had their hands bound, but there were no signs of struggle. "Everything was peaceful," said investigating Judge Andre Piller. Whatever happened, someone meant to hide the evidence by burning the bodies. But two elaborate bombs failed to explode, possibly because the phone system was out of service most of the day. The bombs—containers of gasoline and butane gas linked together—were wired to a device so that they could be triggered by a telephone call or a timer. At least one other bomb did explode in an upper floor. But the resulting fire that destroyed the farmhouse didn't reach the basement, where 19 bodies, some clad in ceremonial robes, lay in a ritual circle.

Three others, including a 10-year-old boy, lay dead in an adjacent room. Giacobino himself was dead in his bedroom in the gutted farmhouse. Some 45 miles east of Geneva, in the canton of Valais, another fire three hours later destroyed three chalets. Twenty-five bodies were found in them, and Giacobino's car was parked nearby. The victims in Cheiry were Swiss, French and Canadian. By late Wednesday, Giacobino was the only body identified.

"One person had two bullet holes in the head but no holes in the plastic bag on the head. Another had three bullet holes in the head and one bullet hole in the plastic bag," Piller said. One body had eight bullet wounds to the head. [H: Some suicide attempts just don't seem to work the first or second (or seventh) time attempted.] "That was certainly homicide," he said. Another body containing large amounts of carbon monoxide indicated the person was still alive when the fire was set and breathed in the combustion byproduct. "There's a real disarray. We don't understand any more just how the drama took place," Piller said. "We have a lot of work to do." Asked if all those found at the farm were murdered, he said: "We can't exclude that." He left open the possibility that some members may have committed suicide. [H: What a brilliant and utterly incredible conclusion.]

What do YOU think, was it suicide or murder? The authorities even (reluctantly) admit it was murder, yet most papers, talk show hosts, preachers, etc., insist on calling it SUICIDE. How many of you remember that there were TWO mass "suicides" by the same Solar Temple "cult"? Fourteen months after the first deaths of around 50 or more (depending on whose count you accept), just before Christmas in 1995 there were 14 (others say 16) more "suicides". "Investigators at the [later] scene also found two 9 mm guns, carried by two French police officers who were members of the sect and are believed to have been among the victims, and two .22-caliber weapons. Police said .22-caliber bullets were found in the skulls of the victims, while 9 mm bullets were found in some of the bodies as well." Just as in the earlier "suicides", the bodies put plastic garbage bags over their heads AFTER they had shot themselves. I guess they were trying to do a thorough job of killing themselves.

This "suicide" occurred on the same day that 164 people died in a plane crash in Colombia. The day before, a Boeing 747 skidded off a runway and crashed into a tower at JFK International Airport in New York, and the papers reported "After a day of partisan debate, the Senate on Wednesday night approved a resolution to ask a federal judge to order President Clinton to comply with subpoenas and turn over Whitewater material that the White House has said is protected by lawyer-client privilege."

RON BROWN PLANE CRASH

[Please also refer to the full-writing on this plane crash on p. 10 in the 7/9/96 CONTACT.]

The plane carrying Secretary of Commerce Ron Brown and others crashed on April 3, 1996.

As soon as Brown's plane crashed, we were shown wreckage in the ocean on CNN TV. Later the wreckage site was shifted to a mountain, and a piece of the tail section was shown. Dr. Richard Frager wrote: "Less than 24 hours after the crash of the plane carrying Commerce Secretary Ron Brown, the story of how his plane crashed has changed no less than 5 times." [H:

Well, some of those passengers couldn't make up their minds just how to commit suicide!]

Croatian Prime Minister Vlatko Matasa and air traffic controller Miljenko Radic announced in Croatian news that both the flight and data "black box" recorders were recovered intact. Later our authorities said there were no recorders on this particular airplane. Radic then "committed suicide", and one of the mechanics committed suicide ("Niko Junic, 46, killed himself at his home on Saturday. He was the airport maintenance chief whose navigation system was guiding Ron Brown's plane when it crashed."). To crash into the mountain as reported, the plane had to be flying AWAY from the airport, not towards it.

Others spelled the name Niko Jerkic, and said he shot himself in the chest about an hour after the bodies of Brown and the others were flown out of the airport. The U.S. immediately said it was a suicide (our intelligence services must really be great, to determine so quickly that it was a suicide. Yet, they seem to have trouble finding planes falling out of the air). The Associated Press on April 8 said: "The airport maintenance chief whose navigation system was guiding Commerce Secretary Ron Brown's plane when it crashed has committed suicide, authorities said Sunday... Croatia's aviation inspector has said all navigational instruments at Dubrovnik's Cilipi Airport were operating normally when the T-43 hit a hilltop as it came in for a landing."

Five days earlier, Lt. Col. James Albright, commander of the Air Force unit in Germany which included Brown's Ramstein-based plane, was fired "for safety concerns". A senior U.S. defense official hastened to point out that "the U.S. and NATO have the entire region covered with aerial surveillance and detected no hostile action against the plane nor explosion aboard." The plane was scattered over a roughly 15 square mile area, including parts in the ocean, obviously as the result of a BIG explosion. Later Brig. Gen. William Stevens (who is black), commander of the 86th Airlift Wing at Ramstein Air Base in Germany (Brown's crashed plane was assigned to the 86th) and his two deputies, Col. Roger Hansen and Col. John Mazurowski, were relieved of command and transferred. No reasons were given. "The Air Force said it was unable to provide telephone numbers or other means of contacting Stevens, Hansen and Mazurowski for comment on their removal from their posts."

We were told (by Lt. General Howell Estes) that the plane went down because of unusually bad weather, but two pilots who landed immediately ahead of Brown's flight said visibility was good. Radic said that five aircraft landed before the 737 and pilots experienced no problems with the nav aids or weather (AW&ST, 4/8/96, p. 26). This was of course before he "committed suicide". Before Estes' disinformation "took", "The Pentagon finally told that old fart to shut up." Later Estes' version was accepted as official. The control tower tape was determined to be missing, and the backup cylinder is also missing. "The missing backup cylinder shows that this was a professional job," said an intelligence community source. We are told the plane made its approach to the airport from Tuzla in the northeast, but part of the plane ended up on the mountainside about 10 miles southeast of Dubrovnik, while part was about 18 miles away in the Adriatic. CIA TRAWLERS found part of the wreckage in the water. Although the plane was called a T-43A, the "T" means trainer and this plane was NOT a trainer, it was military version of the Boeing 737-200. Aviation Week & Space Technology called it a CT-43.

Joe Jordan, with the National Vietnam P.O.W. Strike Force, who has Special Forces and Delta Team friends and contacts, reported: "Cadavers from the Ron Brown shutdown have arrived at Dover AFB, Delaware. All have chemical traces of Thermite, a chemical used in bombs to blow safes and bunker doors. Also the stewardess who was alive on the ground, Shelly Kelly, was helped into the rescue helicopter with minor cuts and bruises. On arrival at the hospital she had bled to death from a neat 3" incision over the femoral artery. Necropsy shows that the wounds are three hours apart. Clinton has ordered all cadavers cremated and others are trying to block the order."

In a news briefing, Gen. Estes announced that Gen. Canavan had arrived on the scene of the crash to take charge of the situation. I wonder what his actual orders were? Joe Jordan also wrote: "In the Lear jet crash in Alabama, a two-star Air Force General was on the scene within 30 minutes. His job: execute any survivors." This refers to a crash at Alexander City, Alabama, on April 18, 1995, the day before the execution of Richard Wayne Snell in Arkansas and the Oklahoma City federal building bombing. The plane carried Assistant Secretary of the Air Force Clark Fiester, Maj. Gen. Glenn Profit; Col. Jack Clark II; Maj. Hubert Fisher; AF Maj. James Horne, Army Sgt. Padro Mercado, and pilot 1st. Lt. Paul Bowers and pilot Capt. Paul Carley. According to Sherman Skolnick and others, Hillary Clinton had been indicted two days earlier and the plane carried military investigators enroute to Oklahoma City to obtain evidence from the Federal Building, evidence that was to be used in an indictment and possible arrest of President Clinton. Skolnick can be contacted by listening to his hot-line recording, 312-731-1100.

[H: It's all OK, voters—the Republicans aren't any better—just the suicided entities are different—the cover-up is different in cause—but dead is dead is dead is dead—even by SUICIDE.]

Defense Secretary Perry said he had known Fiester (who died in the Alabama crash) for 38 years. The plane supposedly crashed because its fuel had become "unbalanced", but according to some, it was shot out of the air by a Delta Team.

WHO WAS ON BROWN'S PLANE

Look at who was on Ron Brown's plane:

Ronald Harmon Brown: The Armed Forces Information Service carried headlines saying "Perry Loses Another Friend to Bosnian War". The article stated: "Bill Perry has now lost two friends to the war in Bosnia 'Secretary Brown was a good personal friend of mine' Perry said." The first friend was Deputy Assistant Secretary Joe Kruzel who died in a "road accident" near Sarajevo in August 1995.

Whittaker was design engineer at General Electric's Knolls Atomic Power Laboratory in Niskayuna, New York, and later manager of the GE gas turbine manufacturing facility in Schenectady. He became general manager of steam turbine products before joining FWC in 1992. Foster Wheeler will design and build six 350-MW steam generators with auxiliary equipment for the Yangcheng No. 1 power plant, southwest of Beijing, China. FWC is also building a 480,000 metric tons MSW "waste-to-energy" complex 37 miles from Moscow. FWC also bought Intergraph Computer Systems which is the "world's largest company dedicated to supplying interactive computer graphics systems for the technical desktop" which uses stereo imaging to design and control power, heating and ventilation systems.

Scheduled to fly with Brown, but not on the plane, were Ronald Woodard, president of Boeing Commercial Airplane Group in Renton, Wash.; Joseph Sutton, president of Enron Development in Houston, and Alfred Checchi, co-chairman of Northwest Airlines. Daniel Bannister of DynCorp in Reston, Virginia, cancelled his trip shortly before takeoff and there were rumors on the Internet that he had intelligence sources and perhaps foreknowledge of the event. DynCorp says, "We're a billion-dollar company with 22,000 employees and no [computer] mainframes." They specialize in client/server networks for desktop computers, and until recently owned a bunch of small airlines of the Air America type. [H: Well now, that last sentence says a WHOLE LOT, doesn't it?]

And the crew:

Captain Ashley Davis, pilot

Captain Tim Schafer, pilot

Staff Sergeant Gerald Aldrich, flight mechanic

Staff Sergeant Robert Farrington, steward

Sergeant Cheryl Turnege, steward (others spelled Turnage)

Sergeant Shelly Kelly, steward (most say "stewardness").

[H: What an incredible windfall to be able to take so many important people—TO BOTH PARTIES—in one swoop! And yet, how much have you heard about this? Do you readers, think a moment, know anything about these people—before now? How many "croc" tears did Clinton shed over all the others murdered? Oh my, friends, this was a major "coup" for both major Party controllers.]

Kelly survived the crash and walked to the ambulance [or helicopter], where she died enroute to the hospital—from a fresh wound that occurred about three hours LATER than the crash wounds. See Joe Jordan's comments elsewhere in this article. In a Department of Defense news briefing, Thursday, April 4, 1996, 9:35 a.m., Lt. Gen. Howell Estes was asked about Kelly. Estes was also asked if the plane was tracked by AWACS, and he replied that yes, they had AWACS tapes and knew the exact route of the plane.

He was also asked about the black boxes. Here is the transcript of that portion of the DoD News Briefing of April 3, 1996, 5 p.m. (EST):

Q: Was this plane carrying a flight data recorder or a cockpit voice recorder that will help you figure out what happened?

ESTES: It would be a standard thing to have that in this type of aircraft. I think you can assume that that sort of thing—a flight data recorder, a cockpit voice recorder as there are in commercial airliners—also is in this aircraft. [end quote]

The Croatian Prime Minister and the air traffic controller announced that both recorders had been recovered. Miomir Zuzul, Croatian ambassador to the United States, on April 4, 1996, said, "One woman was brought from the crash site alive but died en route to hospital." The following is the complete DoD News Briefing of April 4, 1996, 9:35 a.m., in which Estes dealt with these questions:

This seems a good place to break this writing in order to keep it from being too lengthy for our Editors. We will take up with that news briefing next writing. Thank you.

[QUOTING, FIRE FROM THE SKY, PART 33:]

[Defenselink Transcript {quoting:}]

DoD News Briefing

Thursday, April 4, 1996 - 9:35 a.m.

Lt. Gen. Howell Estes, Director of Operations for the Joint Staff

General Estes: Well, good morning, ladies and gentlemen. You've just seen the U.S. Ambassador to Croatia and the Croatian prime minister with a press conference from the site. And what I will try to do is give some amplifying remarks, if I can, on the facts that we know from the search and rescue standpoint. The ambassador and the prime minister obviously covered a lot of the detail there, but I think I might be able to add a few more comments from the military's perspective to be of some help.

Let me just again use a couple of slides which I think might be useful in describing the overall incident again. Obviously, we have confirmed now where the crash site is. It is about three kilometers to the north-northwest on the top of a hill, as you heard Ambassador Galbraith describing. The photo that I showed you yesterday again pretty accurately describes the location.

I think with a picture of a T-43 here, I know there's a lot of questions—you heard questions asked of the people on the military side to ascertain whether this aircraft had flight data recorders or voice recorders on board, and the answer we get back continuously from people who are responsible for this aircraft is that it was not equipped with either. What the Croatian prime minister is describing as black boxes, I cannot tell you, but information we have is this aircraft was not equipped with what you would consider black boxes, the voice data recorder or the data recorder itself. The reason is that the aircraft was procured as a training aircraft originally, and so when it came it was not equipped with that from the factory as normal aircraft of this kind are used for commercial uses would come with those kinds of recorders.

If we get any definite information that changes what I've just told you, we'll get back to you as quick as we can. And I know this is an issue which seems to be a difference between what they're saying there and what I'm telling you standing here, but I want to let you know what I'm being told, and we've done everything humanly possible on the military side to be sure our information is accurate.

There are boxes on the aircraft, however, that could be instrumentation boxes that literally are black. They're shaped in the form of a box. It's navigation equipment and things of that kind that somebody might construe as being one of the type of black boxes. In fact, the black boxes that are on aircraft are actually orange cases, not black cases, and so that might be where the discrepancy is coming from. But we'll continue to pursue this, and if I have any additional information that I'm—is made available to me, I'll be sure to get it to you right away on that issue.

Okay. Next slide, please.

I've elected to use, again, a chart to describe where we are, where the search and rescue and the forces involved—in fact, we have U.S., Croatian, French, and Germans up there. We've had some help from the Spanish and the United Kingdom as well in assisting the Croatians and ourselves with the recovery operations.

I mentioned yesterday that Brigadier General Mike Canavan is the on-scene commander. He spent most of the night last night and the early part of today at the site. He has come down from the site now and is back down at Drubrovnik's airport. He has been replaced by another senior individual on-scene as the on-scene commander. We have in the neighborhood of 30 people at the crash site carrying out recovery operations.

The manifest issue—again, you heard this discussed with the ambassador and the Croatian prime minister. There is a slight discrepancy. We have confirmed that there are no survivors and recovery of remains is in progress. Thirty-three remains have been recovered. And so you look at the number of—saying 35 on the manifest versus 33 remains, there appears to be a discrepancy. We can only say that the search has been extensive. It has continued, as you know. A number of checks of the area have been made, and we'll continue until this issue is resolved one way or the other. [H: I wonder if any of those dudes know how to count heads? Or, did you have a couple of double-headed Eag—...er, ah, people?]

Q: Was the crew member a lady?

A: The crew member that survived the crash, that died enroute—I can confirm to you, was a member of the crew and it was a lady. She did die enroute to the hospital. They got her into an ambulance, got out of the crash site which is a very difficult process in and of itself, and did take her enroute to the hospital, but she died as you can see from the slide here, enroute.

Q: Do you know if she was in the tail section?

A: I don't have any additional information on that.

The interim accident investigation board, the mishap board is on its way. You heard the Croatian ambassador say it had just arrived. Again, he has better information than I because he's there at the scene. [H: Except for data boxes, of course, and live ladies.] We've been trying to get the team in since very early this morning. European time. They've had a number of weather problems at Dubrovnik, but it looks like the team is now on the ground and will very quickly move up to the site to begin the investigation. And we've already talked to the last issue about the flight data recorders and voice recorders.

I think with that, I'll go ahead and take your questions, and we'll go from there.

[H: You have to understand that they have to pause between each question to take the Kol Nidre.]

Q: Has Secretary Brown's body been recognized or otherwise positively identified?

A: I think what I need to say about that is that the recovery operations continue and we know that there are no survivors, and the objective is now to get that done. The issue of positively identifying remains is not something that's normally done on the scene. Those people are up there to do the recovery operations. And so once that process has been positively completed in terms of identification, the information will be made available.

Q: General, what did the air traffic controllers say when they realized that the plane was off-course?

A: I have no information. Again, this is something that the—this is something that the accident board will get copies of as to exactly what the conversation was that transpired between the tower and the aircraft. That's not been made available to me, obviously. Those things are what we would use the term "impounded" because they are protected so that nobody could tamper with them or lose them or whatever so that they could be made available to an accident investigation. And I, in my position, have not sought out that information. That's for the accident investigation to pursue, not for me. Yes, sir?

Q: Can you release the manifest now?

A: It's, again, not my position to release the manifest. This is obviously a very sensitive issue. They want to ensure that the families, the loved ones of the people who were on board the aircraft have been notified. Once that is complete for the series of people—obviously, Secretary Brown's family has been notified, but all of the dignitaries that were traveling with him, the members of the Commerce Department, the Croatian families involved, and the U.S. service members crews—once we are sure that is complete, I feel certain you'll see the transcript of the—list, released.

Q: [Inaudible] — from the State Department?

A: It will be a simultaneous release. I would think, with the U.S. service members released here, the Croatians releasing the names of their lost members, and then the Commerce Department probably releasing the remainder of the names at the State Department.

Q: I would like to ask you a little bit about the approach, I don't want you to tell me what caused the crash. I understand you can't do that. He was flying an ADF approach or an NDB approach. NDBs in my understanding can be affected by weather, specifically lightning. Is that being considered as a factor in the investigation of what caused the crash?

A: Well, I think everything that you can come up with is going to be considered in trying to determine what caused this accident. That's the purpose of the accident investigation team. I can guarantee you that they will be extremely thorough in their analysis in trying to determine the causes of this accident.

Q: General, are you—first of all, are you standing by your statement yesterday that there was no communication prior to the crash indicating any difficulty whether it be off-course or any other problem? And secondly, one press report today referred to this beacon issue, that this is old technology, 40, 50-year-old technology and it's outdated. Can you speak to that?

A: Well, I think to answer your first question, yes, I stand by my statement. I have no conflicting information. You heard the Croatian ambassador—or the Croatian prime minister and our ambassador make virtually the same statement. They've been at the crash site. They saw no evidence that there was anything strange about it from the standpoint of the issues that you raise, and so, I have no conflicting information to what I told you yesterday.

In terms of the technology of the beacon, the NDB approach, it is a kind of an approach that's been around for awhile, there's no question about that. But, it's still a very valid approach. We have a very definite procedure we follow. It's a safe approach. Many aircraft have landed at the airport there at Dubrovnik with no difficulties. And in fact, as you know, some landed that morning and early afternoon prior to Secretary Brown's aircraft scheduled arrival.

So, we have no reason—if we thought it wasn't a safe approach, we wouldn't allow our aircraft to use it. I guess that's the easiest answer. David?

Q: Some may think they had a radar track for his plane. I mean, did you have this plane on your AWACS tapes? And if so, do we now know the exact route that plane flew?

A: David, to answer your question specifically, I have not seen that. I suspect that since we had AWACS flying, that there will be a tape available that they had, but I cannot guarantee you that. I don't know that for a fact. And I just—because of all of the other things going on and the concern for the recovery operation is where we've been focused. I haven't gotten into that issue, nor will I. That will be something for the accident investigation board. Mark?

[H: Interestingly enough, those AWACS followed the plane UNTIL IT WENT OFF COURSE AND—SUDDENLY—THEY JUST DIDN'T PAY ATTENTION!]

Q: Is it true that the remains will go from Dubrovnik directly back to Dover and then will the military fly the remains from Dover to individual states for families?

A: Mark, this is an issue—I think you know, there is some discussion and you all have heard it, that the remains will go from Dubrovnik back to Dover Air Force Base in Delaware. I think that that is a decision that is yet to be made. There are a lot of considerations that need to be taken into account, and once that decision is made we'll get the information to you.

One more—

Q: There were reports yesterday, General, suggesting that perhaps some navigational equipment, some radar or whatever, had been removed from the area of the airport by the Serbs during the war. Do you know if that's true or not?

A: Yes. I don't have any confirming evidence that that's the case. We know we had a navigation aid at Dubrovnik airport which is a valid navigation aid for which we have a published approach. And so, whether there were additional things there at a previous time I think is—I can't confirm or deny for you, but it's almost irrelevant because they did have a valid navigation aid which they were obviously using to land.

Q: There's been some report suggesting that the pilot was using some visual reckoning and identified the wrong ridge, one ridge over, went in the wrong valley. Is that a theory that seems plausible to you so far?

A: It doesn't seem plausible to me as a pilot. I mean, when you're flying an instrument approach, you fly an instrument approach until you have complete contact with the runway and are safe to land. Then you transition from your instruments to a visual approach. You don't come off your instruments until you have visual siting [sic] of the runway. So, I find it hard to believe that if they were flying the approach, were on course, that they would have been doing—trying to fly around visually. It's just not something an experienced pilot would do.

Thank you very much. [end of quoting]

STRANGE CONNECTIONS

[H: How much "stranger" does it have to get? What is going on in Bosnia? We can only focus on small parts at a time. I like Barry Lituchy's description: "It was payback day in the former Yugoslavia. This accident offers us a unique opportunity to view a highly important but not normally observed aspect of U.S. imperialism close up. U.S. military and political power is used to help U.S. multi-national corporations control and exploit the world economy and impose their economic and political power on the peoples of the world. Moreover, this power is used in the interests of a single, elite socio-economic class. It is used against the interests of the majority of Americans and against the interests of the human race in general. However, it is rare that the public gets to see in the media the direct connections between American military aggression and the economic interests driving it." [H: What I would like you to do is go back to Rick Martin's interview with Fletcher Prouty (last week's Front Page story) and remind yourself about the OIL DELIVERY SYSTEMS IN THAT AREA—SPECIFICALLY REFERENCED TO BOSNIA.]

Yugoslavia's greatest export before the war was construction. It could build, to equal or to better firms such as Bechtel, and at much lower costs. A Yugoslav firm, for instance, built Saddam Hussein's underground bunkers which survived the best that George Bush's Star Wars military shot at it. Yugoslavia built factories and refineries around the world. Kissinger went to Yugoslavia (remember the Yugo?) and things really started falling apart. It has now come out that Clinton was secretly shipping arms to Bosnia through Iran, something which makes no sense unless you understand the evil that was purposely being committed. The Richmond Times-Dispatch said: "While President Clinton was admonishing the world to adhere strictly to the Bosnian arms embargo, he was following a secret policy of allowing the opposite." Serbia was shooting down U.S. aircraft, which did not get reported in the Western media. The Western multi-nationals destroyed Yugoslavia, and then began moving in with Ron Brown to take over. Brown was leading a U.S. Development mission to Bosnia and Croatia with a $5.1 billion reconstruction assistance program, but the money was to go to the multinationals, not to the locals.

The following information leads to some strange connections and is a paragraph from the Doomsday Club News and Intelligence Report of May, 1978:

* "The Ontario area is a center for Russian subversion—have you ever noticed when political exiles come back from Cuba they stop off first in Canada? There was a newsletter called The Crusader (I haven't kept up with it and don't know its current status) published by Robert F. Williams, an American Negro in exile in Cuba, which taught American blacks how to commit sabotage to overthrow the U.S. Government. One of the main things they taught was how to wreck the power and utilities systems. The mailing address was Mrs. Anne Olson, 21 Ellis Gardens, Toronto, Ontario, Canada. They also had a radio program called 'Radio Free Dixie', coming from Cuba, at 690 on the dial, Friday 10-11 PM, Sunday and Tuesday 11-12 PM (EST). Mr. Verne Olson, Mrs. Olson's husband, went to Cuba and visited Castro in the summer of 1965. Three months later, on November 9, 1965, the Sir Adam Beck No. 2 Hydroelectric Plant near Toronto, Canada, experienced a monstrous power failure which shut down electricity from New York City to Canada—1/4th of the USA plus Canada! Mr. Olson was a key technician in the Electrical Research Division of the Ontario Hydro Power Commission, which operates the Sir Adam Beck Niagara Station #2—the source of the massive blackout. Mr. Olson was also former National Chairman of the Communists' Fair Play for Cuba Committee."

I will add that Lee Harvey Oswald, the alleged assassin of President John F. Kennedy, was also involved with the Fair Play for Cuba Committee, and was earlier part of the team involved with the U-2 flights over Russia, one of which was shot down (the Francis Gary Powers incident). Also note that the UFO literature tells of numerous UFO sightings that occurred over the local power plants during this blackout: Frank Edwards in Flying Saucers: Serious Business, also see books by Yurko Bondarchuk (UFO: Sightings and Abductions) and John G. Fuller (Aliens in the Skies: The New UFO Battle of the Scientists).

Earlier in the saga of Fire From The Sky you read: "Ruth Paine's husband Michael worked as an engineer at Bell Aerospace for the German ex-General Dornberger, head of research for Bell. Paine was part of the Gehlen operation.

"Werner von Braun became a close personal friend of J. Edgar Hoover and soon after he came to the U.S. he also became a close personal friend of Lyndon B. Johnson. Von Braun worked with Hoover in security projects at the Tennessee Valley Authority, the Redstone Arsenal and later in the National Space Agency. In 1958, Lyndon Johnson, majority leader of the Senate, helped push through the National Space Act, which gave funding to von Braun."

Werner von Braun worked on secret projects at the Tennessee Valley Authority (TVA). Who was first head of the TVA? The first head of the TVA was Joseph C. Swidler. (See Public Utilities Fortnightly, Sept. 15, 1991, p. 4, article "Raising Cane".) When the giant power blackout at the Sir Adam Beck power station (now called Ontario Hydro) on the Niagara River occurred, Swidler was Chairman of the U.S. Federal Power Commission. Swidler immediately investigated the event and sent a report to Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and Director of the Office of Emergency Planning (now called FEMA), Buford Elington. He said the cause was a broken relay. Swidler wrote an article in September, 1991, called "An Unthinkably Horrible Situation" in which he complained that the power companies were being taken over by people who did not have the community's best interests at heart, and in it he made the statement: "I have had close acquaintance with two of the worst blackouts in this country's history: The November 1965 blackout, which affected much of the Northeast and left New York City in darkness for many hours, and the Con Ed blackout of July 13, 1977." [H: Golly gee-whiz, and this only comes up to 1977—what about these jim-dandy ones lately—like last week: JULY, 1996??]

The Toronto Globe & Mail reported, on May 14, 1996, that Maurice Strong and Vice President Al Gore have been appointed co-chairmen of the White House Conference on Technology. Strong is special advisor to World Bank President James Wolfensohn. Strong organized the United Nations' 1992 conference in Rio de Janeiro to promote a global environmentalist dictatorship, and was the official secretary general to the event. "Immediately thereafter, given charge of Ontario Hydro, the largest public utility in North America, Strong fired 10,000 highly skilled workers within a year, and cancelled all nuclear and hydroelectric energy development projects."

Strong said: "I'm now working on a major project to 'green' private investment—to set up voluntary guidelines and criteria for private investment in various sectors, forestry, tourism, mining, oil and gas." [H: Anybody other than me ready to throw-up yet?]

A press release from the E-7 Network of Expertise for the Global Environment in Montreal said:

* Southern California Edison became the first U.S. utility to join the E-7 group of utilities. E-7 is an informal association of utility executives that was started in 1992 in preparation for the U.N. Conference on Environment and Development (UNCED) to develop a strategy and recommendations on power sector issues in developing countries. Members include representatives from Electricite de France, the Canadian utilities Hydro-Quebec and Ontario Hydro, Tokyo Electric Power Co. and Kansai Electric Power Co. of Japan, RWE AG of Germany and Ente Nazionale per l'Energia Elettrica of Italy.

The group focuses on energy related to the environment and development with an interest in influencing foreign aid investments in the power sector. The E-7 established a "Network of Expertise for the Global Environment" to work with financing institutions, the United Nations, and other organization to develop projects with an environment-development link.

E. Howard Hunt is an example of how some seemingly totally unrelated events such as the Bay of Pigs Invasion, the Kennedy Assassination, and Watergate, can actually be related (Hunt was involved in all three), because of the PEOPLE involved.

Hold the above information in mind as we return to more recent events:

* September 13, 1995—Fed up Quebec voters take step toward possible secession.

MONTREAL—Quebec voters took what could be their first step toward independence Monday by giving the separatist Parti Quebecois a solid majority in the provincial legislature. Official results showed Jacques Parizeau's Parti Quebecois winning 77 seats in the 125-seat legislature. Premier Daniel Johnson's Liberal Party won 46 seats and was leading in one district... (Austin American Statesman, [AAS] A-6)

* September 9—USAir jet crashed in Beaver County. PITTSBURGH—[The crash occurred just after 7:20 p.m. This article says:] ...by 11 p.m., FBI agents were on the scene. It was unclear why they were brought in. [It is unusual and curious that the FBI was on the scene so quickly.] (Pittsburgh Post-Gazette A4)

* September 10—Russian plane crashes. MOSCOW—A Russian passenger jet on a practice flight crashed near Moscow yesterday after colliding with a military plane, a news agency reported. At least five of the seven people aboard were killed. (Pittsburgh Post-Gazette)

* September 10—Recording of crew's final words gives few clues to cause of crash. ALIQUIPPA, Pa.—A blackened hillside crater yielded shattered body parts and shards of twisted metal but no answer Friday to the mystery of a jetliner that abruptly fell from the sky on a clear, still evening.

Federal investigators said Friday night that the "black box" instruments recording the last moments of USAir Flight 427 shed little light on why the Boeing 737 smashed nose-first into the ground Thursday night, killing all 132 people aboard. Initial reports had said

SHOE / By Jeff MacNelly

131 were on board. The crew radioed from six miles away as they came in on the final approach for landing at the Pittsburgh airport and gave no indication of any problem. It was 32 seconds after 7:02 p.m.

Thirty-eight seconds later, a crew member said: "Oh. (Unintelligible.) Oh God."

Six seconds after that, the crew said: (Unintelligible.) Traffic emergency. (Unintelligible.) Oh sh."

Eight seconds later, the air traffic controller tried to reach the plane, repeatedly calling, "USAir 427 Pittsburgh. USAir 427 Pittsburgh. USAir Pittsburgh..." USAir Chairman Seth Schofield said the airline had received no threats against Flight 427 and had "no reason to believe there was sabotage". (AASA1) [COMMENT: A sidebar to the article contains a list of all the passengers, by name, age where available, and hometown, in sections by state. The last section is "Other" and has two entries: "Olson, Paul, hometown withheld per family's request." and "Ramasamy, Sam, Montreal, Quebec." Olson's name was at first withheld, later it was revealed that he was a witness in an ongoing drug investigation. The media paid no attention to Ramasamy. The name caught my attention because there is or was a man named Sanjay Ramaswamy working for William Perry and John Deutch at Cambridge Research Associates, owned by Perry/Deutch. I will have more on CRA later.]

[END QUOTING OF PART 33]

The killings, etc., will continue.

[QUOTING, FIRE FROM THE SKY, PART 34:]

SHUTTLE FIRES LASER AT EARTH, HELPS TRACK DEADLY TROPICAL STORM

* September 11—CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla., [quoting]—Bright green laser pulses streamed from space shuttle Discovery on Saturday and bounced off the thick, high clouds of a killer storm in the first atmospheric study of its kind.

Ground controllers directed the lasers at Tropical Storm Debby in the Caribbean as the shuttle soared 160 miles overhead. The experiment was conducted in the early morning while it was dark. The $25 million laser machine used to study the storm is flying for the first time in space. Similar devices have been flown on planes to track pollutants, volcanic ash and desert dust in the atmosphere to improve scientists' understanding of global climate.

During Saturday's test of the machine, laser pulses began emanating from Discovery at a rate of 10 per second as the shuttle flew over the Western Hemisphere. ... (AAS A5) [end of quoting]

Planes were crashing, many going unreported in the national media (as is still the case), and the Shuttle was firing "green laser pulses" at "10 per second", a significant frequency. A magnitude 7.2 earthquake hit northern California and southern Oregon on September 2. On September 13 a strong (6.3) quake hit south of Lake Tahoe. On September 17 a "light blew out" in the White House not long after a Cessna airplane crashed into the White House, killing the pilot. The Russian nuclear missile command lost all electrical power "because of unpaid power bills". The Strategic Rocket Forces said electricity was disconnected by order of Pavel Sinyokov, a director of Moscow's power grid. In Siberia, a plane crashed killing 26 people. The article reporting the crash said, "More than a dozen planes have crashed in the past 18 months in the former Soviet Union..." supposedly because of lack of money for maintenance. A ferry sank after leaving Estonia, killing hundreds. Popular Mechanics magazine for September reported that Boeing was making new airplanes "modified with a hidden interior flight deck". A bomb killed a reporter in Moscow, a Russian pipeline ruptured spilling over 2 million barrels of oil at the time the article was written, and the Jewish Holy season was celebrated.

Did you take note above that it was stated that the Order of the Solar Temple was connected to "Peruvian Marxist groups", probably referring to the Shining Path group?

Here are some more connections: [quoting]

* The New World Order In Canada by Professor Robert O'Driscoll and Elizabeth Elliott, Section III: Ottawa: Occult Capital of the New World Order, page 255 says (bolding mine):

"Then in 1992, the Secret Brotherhood of the Illuminati made an even bolder step. At a War/Peace Conference in South America it was agreed that the New World Order take over one country totally. The country chosen was Canada. It was to be the staging ground for the New World Order Plan, even though the controlling mechanism for the whole operation was in the United States. It was further agreed that the Royal Bank of Canada would be the official bank of the New World Order—the Federal Reserve of the World, and in Quebec a secret society called L'Order du Temple Solaire [the Order of the Solar Temple] (a slight variation of the name of the reconstituted Templars) 'penetrated' Quebec Hydro with a 150 billion dollar 'scam' and simply took it over; just about all the vast reserves of Canadian electrical power were now in New World Order hands." [end of quoting]

The Order of the Solar Temple "took over" the largest power generator facility in Canada, Quebec Hydro? Hmmmnn.

HYDRO-QUEBEC

I opened this article with a quote from the Canadian press of April 3, 1996. The day earlier, April 2, the Canadian News Digest reported: [quoting:]

* HYDRO-QUEBEC PROBES SOLAR TEMPLE LINK

QUEBEC (CP)—Natural Resources Minister Guy Chevrette acknowledged Tuesday he's worried the Solar Temple cult may have influence in Hydro-Quebec. Chevrette said he has asked the public utility to investigate allegations by a former employee that he was fired because he wouldn't swear allegiance to his boss in a cult ceremony.

"I don't have any reason to believe there is a huge Solar Temple network at Hydro-Quebec," Chevrette said. The cult received worldwide attention in 1994, when 53 members of the Solar Temple died in mass suicides in Canada and Switzerland. The five who died in Canada were found in a burned house in Morin Heights, Que.

Swiss police are to release the report of their investigation into the deaths today. [end of quoting]

We should take a closer look at Hydro-Quebec. According to their own literature:

"Hydro-Quebec ranks among North America's largest electric utilities. It generates, transmits and distributes most of the electricity consumed in Quebec. Hydro-Quebec activities extend to energy-related research and promotion, energy transformation and conservation, and other areas connected with energy. Hydro-Quebec is a publicly owned electric utility with a single shareholder: the Quebec government."

"Hydro-Quebec is a publicly owned utility company that was created in 1944. It is one of North America's largest electric utilities and produces almost all the electricity consumed in Quebec. Hydro-Quebec trades electricity with certain Canadian provinces and the U.S. This utility company is often involved in research and marketing of its products and know-how as part of joint venture projects."

I wonder what kind of joint-venture research projects it is involved in? They say their facilities include a large research laboratory dedicated to researching "electro magnetic pulses". This would be a natural thing for a power company to research, and would make a natural cover for secret expanded research. Another Hmmmnn. [H: And what of major "BLACKOUTS" (controlled) all along the Eastern Seaboard?]

And then we read: [quoting]

* HYDRO-QUEBEC CHARGED WITH ALLEGED VIOLATIONS OF THE CANADIAN ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION ACT

MONTREAL—March 20, 1996—Environment Canada announced that charges were laid this week in Provincial Court, Shawinigan, Quebec against Hydro-Quebec.

Hydro-Quebec is alleged to have dumped 4,839 liters of PCB-contaminated oil in the Saint-Maurice River in June 1995, contrary to the PCB regulations under the Canadian Environmental Protection Act.

The charges were laid on the advice of the Department of Justice, following an investigation conducted in the Quebec Region of Environment Canada. The court date has been set for April 22, 1996.

* HYDRO-QUEBEC DEAL TAINTED, MNAs TOLD

Justice Minister confirms French firm bribed utility officials to get job.

By: Andre Picard, Quebec Bureau, GLOBE AND MAIL, PG a9a 1, Friday May 13, 1994.

QUEBEC—Hydro-Quebec awarded a $25 million dollar contract to a French technology company that carried out INDUSTRIAL ESPIONAGE and bribed senior officials in the Crown corporation to get the job, Quebec's Justice Minister confirmed in the National Assembly yesterday.

Quoting from a confidential Hydro-Quebec internal security report, the CBC reported yesterday that Mors Technologies Inc. obtained technical reports from other companies that were bidding on the contract in 1986, as well as internal memos and minutes of meetings from Hydro-Quebec officials who chose which company would build a remote-control switching system.

Mors paid a senior Hydro-Quebec official $200,000 to provide the inside information, according to a provincial police report obtained by the CBC. But, because there was no proof that the man received the money, allegedly deposited in a Swiss bank account, the Crown refused to lay criminal charges.

Instead, the manager was fired. He sued for wrongful dismissal, and Hydro-Quebec paid him $100,000 in an out-of-court settlement. In the National Assembly yesterday, Justice Minister Roger Lefebvre confirmed the story, but said, "There is no new information that warrants the case being reopened."

Parti Quebecois House Leader Guy Chevrette called it the latest in a series of scandals that shows there is an "absence of sound management of public finances".

A stream of revelations this week has cast doubt on the administrative practices in Quebec.

Yesterday the Liberal government tried to nip one of the scandals in the bud by announcing an investigation into the leasing, without tender, of two C-215 water bombers to Royal Aviation Inc., a deal that will garner about $100,000 a month of profit.

But, while promising to investigate the financial wisdom of the lease, Jean Leclerc, the junior minister for government services, insisted that bureaucrats who awarded the contract did not know that Royal Aviation's directors include former Liberal Minister Paul Gobeil and the former president of the party's constitutional committee, Raymond Langlois.

The issues raised involve allegations of conflict-of-interest by former Liberal cabinet ministers and senior party officials; there are suggestions that the information is being leaked to the Parti Quebecois by civil servants sympathetic to the opposition.

The government has already ordered an inquiry into a controversial stock-option plan for directors of M3i Systems Inc., a high-technology company whose directors have close ties to the ruling party.

Mario Bertrand, who was Chief of Staff to former Premier Robert Bourassa, is one of three prominent Liberals—along with Marcel Cote of Groupe Secor and former Air Canada president Pierre Jeannot—who stand to make about $2.3 million from their M3i stocks. Between them, they received $2,318 shares (half of them to Mr. Bertrand) and share options in 1990. Since then the value of each share has skyrocketed to $1,000 from $10. [H: Almost as good a deal as Hillary's insider trading.]

M3i, which designs computer systems that deal with the distribution of water and electricity, was founded by two former Hydro-Quebec employees. The Crown Corporation paid for all the initial research, but set to scrap the computer-systems technology as risky and unprofitable.

The conflict-of-interest allegations arise from the fact that Mr. Bertrand was a board member of both M3i and Hydro-Quebec (he resigned this week), and that Mr. Cote's consulting firm was called in to advise Hydro-Quebec on how to privatize its high-tech subsidiary.

The CBC reported yesterday that in its early stages the M3i venture was a failure that cost the Crown Corporation $42 million.

In a statement yesterday, Hydro-Quebec president Armand Couture confirmed that half of its regional distribution centers will be shut down, but said that it was a result of advances in the technological field rather than poor decision making in the 1980s. [end of quoting]

Hydro-Quebec has been involved in an ongoing battle with the native Cree and Inuit people who claim it is destroying their homelands and hunting/fishing grounds. Here are more quotes taken from the Internet: [quoting:]

 GRASSROOTS VICTORIES, LOBBYIST GRIDLOCK
by Brian Tokar

On an unusually balmy November morning, eco-activists in the northeast awoke to some long-awaited but entirely unexpected news. In the immediate aftermath of the 1994 elections, any good news would be unexpected, but this one would be an occasion for celebration in any season. The new nationalist Prime Minister of Quebec, Jacques Parizeau, had announced the indefinite postponement of the hotly contested Great Whale hydroelectric project in the James Bay region of northern Quebec. The project, Parizeau said, was "sur la glace", on ice, and for a long time to come.

Opposition to Quebec's hydroelectric megaprojects was the last major environmental issue uniting activists from different sectors of the community with varying political outlooks in the northeastern U.S. and Canada. Hydro-Quebec, the province-owned utility that had for two decades staked its future on damming all of the major wilderness river systems in the James Bay region, had become an international symbol of ecologically devastating development, injustice toward traditional native populations, and high stakes financial and political manipulations. Grassroots coalitions of environmentalists, native solidarity activists, and advocates of sustainable energy and fiscal responsibility pressured electric utilities and regulatory boards throughout the northeast to reject or reduce the power contracts with Hydro Quebec.

The Great Whale project was to be the next major leap in Hydro Quebec's expansive development plan. [H: Now, readers, can't you just picture the voters of Quebec going to the polls to vote on "saving the Great Whale project" and noting that MOST would think there was an effort afoot to "save the great whales". The policriminals don't miss a thing.] The planned series of dams along the Great Whale River [H: See how easy? They had to call it the Great Whale River for some reason long ago.] would have flooded some 1,800 square miles of forests and wetlands and severely disrupted hydrological cycles in a heretofore undisturbed region larger than New England. It would have destroyed the habitat of caribou and freshwater seals, and the major feeding grounds of migratory birds important throughout the northeast. The devastation would have affected the thousands of native Cree and Inuit people living in the Great Whale watershed, near where the shallow, nutrient-rich waters and coastal marshes of James Bay meet the frigid deep waters of Hudson Bay to the north. By 1994, utilities in Vermont that had purchased Hydro-Quebec power, despite widespread opposition, were selling back more of that power to Quebec at a substantial financial loss.

GRASSROOTS STRATEGIES

Tying together all these issues and more, activists throughout the region developed campaigns against these power purchases that were more diverse, colorful and decentralized than anything the region has seen for some time. There were demonstrations in the streets of the state capitals. Students at major universities initiated divestment campaigns. Maine was the first state to turn down Hydro-Quebec power, requiring utilities to strengthen conservation plans instead. The Vermont contracts were reduced by about a third (due to declining electric demand and to successful referendum drives in Burlington and other communities), and then railroaded through by a Democratic governor with close political ties to both the utilities and to Wall Street. Probably the most decisive blow was the cancellation in the spring of 1992 of a $13 billion contract with the New York State Power Authority. ... Hydro-Quebec suffered an additional political embarrassment when some 15 executives and former executives of the utility were TIED TO THE SOLAR TEMPLE CULT

AFTER THE MYSTERIOUS MASS KILLING OF ITS MEMBERS IN SWITZERLAND LAST FALL. Cree representatives made it widely known that if Quebec were to secede from Canada, then the native peoples of the region were ready to take steps to secede from Quebec.

A little further research reveals that there is a coalition of "Greens" political parties (Lyndon LaRouche calls them "eco-terrorists") such as the Raritan-Brunswick Greens and the Tuft's University student environmental group "ECO", and others which have formed an alliance called the North East Alliance to Save James Bay. The Dartmouth group, Dartmouth Divest Hydro-Quebec (DDHQ), achieved: "After months of discussion and debate, the Trustees of Dartmouth College announced today their decision to divest from Hydro-Quebec (HQ). The decision follows sustained pressure from students, faculty and alumni, who argue that the provincial utility's James Bay hydroelectric projects are environmentally and culturally destructive" (Dec. 18, 1992). Another headline says: "Tufts ECO wins Divestment from Hydro-Quebec." And then the biggie, "New York Cancels Hydro-Quebec Power Contract—In a dramatic move, New York Gov. Mario Cuomo canceled the state's $17 billion contract with Hydro-Quebec for electricity that would have been generated by the Great Whale project the Canadian utility wants to build in the James Bay region of northern Quebec." [end of quoting]

To connect this with recent events, a press release on April 9, 1996, states: [quoting]

 FORMER HYDRO-QUEBEC CHAIRMAN AND CEO ACCEPTS SEAT ON ASC BOARD

WESTBOROUGH, Mass., April 9, 1996—American Superconductor Corporation (Nasdaq: AMSC) is pleased to announce that Richard Drouin, former chairman and CEO of Hydro-Quebec and a global authority on the electric utility industry, has accepted a seat on the company's Board of Directors.

Drouin served as chairman and CEO of Hydro-Quebec, the sixth largest utility in the world and largest in North America, from 1988 through 1995...

In 1989, Drouin was Honorary Chairman of the World Energy Congress. He also was a driving force in focusing the resources of the world's largest economies—the "G-7" countries—on energy issues. Known as the "E-7", the organization was created in 1991 and is devoted to protecting the global environment by promoting the judicious generation and use of electricity.

"A guiding principle throughout my career has been the sustainable use of energy.", Drouin said. "Serving as a director of American Superconductor allows me to continue working toward that goal because the company's core product, high-temperature superconducting wire, has immediate and enormous potential for revolutionizing the way the world manages energy. I am honored and eager to help American Superconductor continue turning that potential into a commercial reality..." High-temperature superconductors (HTS) transmit electricity with zero resistance.

In addition to applying its HTS technology to power-quality equipment (power converters, current limiters and energy storage devices), American Superconductor is developing power transmission cables with Pirelli Cables, electric motors with Reliance Electric, and transformers with Asea Brown Boveri. A foundation for all commercial applications is a joint research and development program with Inco Alloys International to work on advanced generations of HTS wire based on American Superconductor's proprietary "metallic precursor" process.

"American Superconductor has mapped out a timetable to develop commercial applications with industry leaders like Pirelli, Reliance, ABB and Inco as well as the Electric Power Research Institute, which represents more than 7800 U.S. utilities," he said. "From its inception, the company has met or exceeded these benchmarks. In addition to its entrepreneurial vision, American Superconductor has demonstrated that it can and will deliver on the promise of HTS."

....Drouin, 64, also sits on the boards of Coca-Cola Beverages, Provigo, CT Financial Services (Canada Trust), Abitibi Price, Tele-Metropole, The Conference Board of Canada and the Quebec Wildlife Foundation. Prior to joining Hydro-Quebec, he was in private practice as an attorney and specialized in commercial and corporate law and industrial relations.

American Superconductor is the leader in developing commercial applications of high temperature superconductor technology for the global electric power industry. With world-class expertise in electromagnetics, cryogenic integration, power semiconductors and power engineering as well as high temperature superconductors, the company is driving the evolving market for advanced electric power equipment and power quality products. [end of quoting]

Take note that this former head of Hydro-Quebec, now on the Board of American Superconductor Corporation, is developing transformers with Asea Brown Boveri (ABB). ABB is a major Bilderberger organization, and New World Order leader.

Drouin quit Hydro-Quebec SIX DAYS AFTER SECRETARY RON BROWN'S PLANE CRASHED IN CROATIA (on April 3), and became head of a project to build transformers with ABB. So why bring up ABB?

 ABB PRESIDENT ROBERT DONOVAN AMONG THOSE ON BROWN'S PLANE

By Chuck Hutchcraft, Chicago Tribune, Web-Posted: Thursday, April 4, 1996, [quoting].

"Robert E. Donovan, 54, was president and chief executive officer of ABB Inc. of Norwalk, Conn. In addition, he was executive vice president of ABB Asea Brown Boveri Ltd., Zurich, the parent of ABB and the world's leading electrical engineering joint venture.

"ABB Asea Brown Boveri engineers products and services for power generation, transmission and distribution, industrial and building systems, and rail transportation. The company reported a net income of $760 million on sales of $29.7 billion in 1994, the last year for which figures are available. Donovan is a graduate of the U.S. Military Academy at West Point and spent 10 years in the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, serving in the U.S., Thailand and Vietnam..."

"ABB, in partnership with Raytheon (builder of the Patriot Missile) [H: You know, that one with almost 199% NON-accuracy.], has a contract with NASA to build a wind tunnel. Donovan was succeeded by Howard Pierce, an American citizen. ABB is working with Daimler-Benz in making high-speed rail systems and automobiles that do not use gasoline. They also specialize in underground trains. ABB's board of directors include world leaders Peter and Marcus Wallenberg.

"Percy Barnevik, now President of ABB, attended the Bilderberger Meeting in Canada, May 30, 1996." [end of quoting]

In the meantime, many other airplane crashes were and are occurring. One day the Associated Press carried the headline: "MARINE COPTERS COLLIDE; 14 DEAD. CAMPLEJEUNE, N.C.—Two Marine Corps helicopters collided in the dark early today during the largest U.S.-British war games in decades, apparently killing 14 people. Two Marines were rescued." You probably heard about that story, as it was headline news for a couple of days. I'll bet you did not hear about this one, which was an AP headline ON THE SAME DAY but was soon pulled: "CRASHED COPTER WAS FOR WHITE HOUSE. STRATFORD, Conn. (AP)—As dozens of people watched in horror, a 25$ million military helicopter that was to provide cargo service for the White House lost its blades, flipped backward and slammed into the ground, sending flames hundreds of feet into the air."

Another AP story was: "Marine aviation deaths this year far exceed recent totals. Associated Press, WASHINGTON—More than twice as many Marines have died in aviation accidents in the past eight months as were killed in the previous two years." There have been far too many aircraft crashes recently for me to list, as it would take a book to describe them all.

MORE STRANGENESS

On the front page of the April 5, 1996, Austin American Statesman newspaper are headlines which state: "Bomb parts may be link—Authorities say chemicals, other evidence in Montana cabin match deadly devices used by Unabomber." Under this article is an article headlined: "Bad instrumentation suggested as cause of Brown airplane crash," and under that article is an article headlined: "Clinton backed covert Iran arms link to Bosnia." Ask yourself, is it just possible that these three headline events are linked and are related stories? Of course it is and they are!

News reports said that about a week earlier First Lady Hillary Clinton and daughter Chelsea traveled on the same T-43 during their recent trip to Bosnia, as did Secretary of State Warren Christopher in March. What most did not tell was that the plane carried Secretary of Defense William Perry and 24 of his staff and eight press people, two days before the Brown crash, from Zagreb, Croatia, to stops in Tirana, Albania, to Egypt. The Intelligence World Report (#095) said: "Defense Secretary William Perry shared IMINT and other intelligence on the Tarhunah underground chemical weapons plant being built by Libya with Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak on Wednesday in Cairo. The investigation found no evidence of any laws being broken." (The Big Boys seem to be very interested in holes in the ground these days, but that is another subject.) Once the jet left Perry and party in Cairo, it had a one hour routine maintenance turnaround then flew to Tuzla and picked up Ron Brown and crashed (my source is Linda Kozaryn, American Forces Press Service, report #96179). What would you think about, if you were in Perry's shoes? But then, while those who believe the crash was no accident wonder why Ron Brown was targeted, I have to wonder if Brown was, in fact, the target. Could Perry have been the target? Was he targeter, or targetee, or just extremely LUCKY?

Here is part of a transcript of Perry's remarks upon arrival from Egypt at Andrews Air Force Base: [quoting]

Q: And you flew on that same plane in Bosnia. Can you tell us about your own experience aboard the plane?

PERRY: I flew in the plane from Zagreb to Tuzla, and from—and we also went to Sarajevo and to Albania and then finally to Egypt. The plane turned around after it dropped us off in Cairo and then went back to Zagreb to pick up Ron Brown. So we were flying the plane the day before it went down. The plane seemed fine while we were on it. We saw no indication of any problems in the airplane.

Q: Flying over Bosnia, did you ever feel in any peril aboard the plane?

PERRY: No. The weather was bad in Bosnia the day we were there, too, but not bad enough to prevent a safe landing." [end of quote]

Of course, Brown had connections that would have made him a target. According to Newsweek (10/11/93), Nguyen Van Hao, confidant of the prime minister of Vietnam, "wanted Brown's help in easing the American ban against trade with his country." Hao's former business partner, Ly Thank Binh, claimed that Brown agreed to "work for lifting the trade ban in exchange for $700,000 to be deposited offshore, and secretly paid out of any development deals Hao and Binh obtained." The Washington Times, the New York Times, Spotlight, the Associated Press and others had articles about Brown's possible embarrassment to Clinton and Brown's son's involvement in some investigations in Oklahoma (into dealings with Dynamic Energy Resources). During the time Brown was the Democratic National Committee chairman, he was also a partner in the law firm Patton, Boggs, and Blow which represented BCCI, and was on the board of directors of Chemfix Technologies, a sewage disposal company (Brown arranged for Chemfix to get a sewage disposal contract with New York City, and purchased 5,000 shares of stock of this company just before New York was chosen as the site of the 1992 Democratic convention). A federal investigation into Brown in Miami was sidetracked by Janet Reno. Brown and Reno are both considered to be "ours" by Communists, and Ken Maginnis, of the Ulster Unionist Party, who knew Brown from his efforts to encourage U.S. investment in Ulster, said: "Northern Ireland has lost a faithful ally." Brown was a highly paid Washington lobbyist for Haiti's "Baby Doc" Duvalier. [H: And note that almost EVERY party to these doings, even in the military—ARE ALSO ATTORNEYS! Holy Bible: Matthew 5:20: "For I tell you that unless your righteousness surpasses that of the Pharisees and the teachers of the law, you will certainly not enter the kingdom of heaven." And how many of you realize that in the Bible of the New Testament the terms are virtually interchangeable: Pharisees and "lawyers" as well as Pharisees being interchangeable with Khazars and Zionists? I can't help what "you thought."]

Brown's law partner at Patton, Boggs, and Blow was murdered in South Africa within one hour of Brown's plane crash (so I've heard, but I haven't found the details). The "Boggs" name comes from a connection to Congressman Hale Boggs of Louisiana who was killed in a mysterious plane crash in Alaska. The government located the wreckage but kept it secret. Boggs was refusing to sign the final version of the Warren Commission Report, because he did not believe in the "Magic Bullet" of Arlen Specter; neither did anyone else on the Warren Commission except, it was claimed, Gerald Ford. After Boggs' death, the others decided to go along with the "Magic Bullet" theory. TV's Cokie Roberts is Bogg's daughter. The book High Treason by Groden and Livingstone, about the Kennedy assassination, said Boggs "...disappeared without a trace on a flight in Alaska". Speaking of the "magic bullet" theory just before his mysterious death, he said, "I had strong doubts about it." The fact that Boggs' plane simply disappeared makes it a little strange. Especially since Boggs had been the recipient of damaging material on the lives of critics of the Warren Report and the FBI investigation of the President's death, given to him by J. Edgar Hoover just prior to his death, leading Boggs to mount an attack on the FBI and accuse them of "Gestapo tactics". Boggs' plane crashed in 1972 and also killed on that plane was Representative Nick Begich, D-Alaska, who was the father of Nick Begich Jr., who wrote ANGELS DON'T PLAY THIS HAARP. [This book can be purchased from Earthpulse Press, % Nick Begich Jr. at P.O. Box 201393, Anchorage, AK 99520 or by phoning 907-249-9111 (voicemail) or 907-696-1277 (fax) for $17.95.] [H: Try to get that book as it is one of the very best on the HAARP SYSTEM. A JFK assassination researcher has a CD entitled "Encyclopedia of the JFK Assassination". A question posed in the CD is, "Who drove Hale Boggs to the airport that day in his limousine?" Answer: William Jefferson Clinton.

On November 30, 1963, new President Lyndon Johnson issued Executive Order No. 11130 appointing a Special Commission to investigate the assassination of JFK, consisting of Earl Warren, Sen. Richard Russell (former Governor of Georgia), Sen. John Sherman Cooper (advisor to Secretary of State and NATO and Ambassador to India), Congressman Hale Boggs, Congressman Gerald Ford, Allen Dulles, and John McCloy (president of the World Bank, officially in charge of disarming the U.S. since 1961). [H: Yes, please, take the time to go back and re-read that paragraph.]

Patton, Boggs & Blow are very much involved in eco-activist activities; one of the textbooks of activists is the Environmental Law Handbook by Patton, Boggs & Blow, "the premier environmental law guide" (actually written by Timothy A. Vanderver).

In his 1992 book The Lobbyist, Jeffrey Birnbaum tells how Williams and Jensen (lobbyist for Tyson foods) and lobbyist Thomas Hale Boggs, Cokie's brother, helped in what appears to be a money-laundering deal with a fishing and hunting club. There are discussions on the Internet about the fact that the gun that was found with Vince Foster was kept at this hunting club (on Lake Millwood, in southwest Arkansas). THE FIFTH COLUMN AND THE NORMAN THESIS

This information is abstracted from Conspiracy Nation—Vol. 7, #2, #3, #4. Conspiracy Nation encourages distribution of the material, [quoting:]

Back around March 4th, 1995, Mr. Sherman Skolnick of the Citizens' Committee to Clean Up the Courts came out with a story about a company called Systematics and alleged high-tech spying being done on foreign banks. (This was covered in CN 4.22 and, so far as I can tell, Skolnick's phone message, Hotline News at 312:731-1100, was first to break the story.)

Here is how Skolnick's story appeared in Conspiracy Nation:

* A telephone company in Arkansas is called ALLTEL. They have a subsidiary called Systematics which is a proprietary espionage operation of the National Security Agency [NSA]. Developed was a highly refined version of the Inslaw software called PROMIS. Originally designed to keep track of the caseloads of federal prosecutors, it was adapted to be used by spy agencies to track people worldwide, by satellite. The software has a "trapdoor" built into it. So, the NSA arranged to sell it or give it to supposedly friendly or other spy agencies: France, Sweden, Israel, and others. The "trapdoor" was a sort of "Trojan Horse", enabling U.S. espionage to spy on other spy shops. Systematics [allegedly] adapted it to be used through low-orbit satellites, to spy on the computers of central banks...[end of quoting]

Perhaps a better word than "trapdoor" would be "backdoor". The software sold or given to the unsuspecting banks is said to have had a hidden "door" through which prying eyes could enter unannounced. This is worth emphasizing, because some have said it would be impossible for a hacker or group of hackers to get into, for example, a Swiss bank. What these critics are neglecting to factor in is this "backdoor" through which electronic burglars possessing the "key" could easily enter. This last has not, to my knowledge, been refuted.

The late White House aide Vince Foster is said to have had about $2.73 million stashed away in a Swiss bank account. CIA hackers, perhaps taking advantage of a "backdoor" in the bank's software, are said to have stumbled across not only Foster's hidden account but also hidden accounts belonging to members of Congress and other high government officials. This, it seems, is where these "public servants" were hiding bribe money they had illegally received.

But apparently it was feared that breaking such a huge scandal publicly would cause Grandpa and Grandma USA to fall out of their rocking chairs. Yet something had to be done. These congresspersons and others could not be allowed to get away with their crookedness. While the CIA hackers, known as the "Fifth Column", ["Fifth Column" radio interview by Jeff Rense dated 2/4/96 is available on tape from The Word call 1-805-822-4176 to order] are said to have cleared out the accounts of the offenders, still it was obvious that some punishment was in order. Then too, you can't just leave these bribe-takers in office—what's to stop them from accepting more bribes?

So it is reported by several independent sources that these bribe-takers are being told to leave their jobs, or else have their alleged rottenness revealed. As former Forbes senior editor James R. Norman put it in the December 1995 issue of Media Bypass magazine (1-800-4-Bypass): [quoting]

There has been an unusually large number of veteran congressmen and senators announcing their resignations, retirements or switching parties. The official explanation: It's no fun now that the Republicans control Congress. But sources claim the real reason is that some of these departees have been quietly confronted with evidence that they took bribes or payoffs through Swiss or other offshore bank accounts. Rumor has it that about 30 current members of the House and Senate have been identified as having such foreign slush-fund accounts.

Richard L. Franklin, writing in his monthly newsletter, Franklin's Focus (Focus Press, 1820 Palisades Drive, Appleton, WI 54915), confirms the charges. He reports that he has checked with several of his sources and that, "as they say in the trade, the story now has legs." According to Franklin, a so-called "Angel of Death" is visiting the various congressional representatives and informing them that they have just 24 hours to announce their retirement.

It is beyond dispute that a record number of Senators and Representatives are suddenly announcing their respective retirements from public office. What is more, the Norman article which appeared in the December 1995 Media Bypass is on record as predicting many of these retirements before they actually occurred. If Norman's name was Jean Dixon or Irene Hughes, he would be everywhere on the talk shows by now, hailed for his amazing "psychic" abilities. Yet we hear nary a word of this remarkable story in our "free" press. To me, the very fact that this story is not being allowed into the public dialogue—that, in itself, says something. Aren't the networks at least hungry for ratings? Why won't they draw in viewers with these intriguing and widely-believed allegations? Why too aren't members of Congress furiously demanding the opportunity to defend their impugned "honor"? The silence is deafening.

Reporting on the phenomena of the disappearing Congress critters, the Washington Times, National Weekly Edition (Jan. 8-14, 1996) declares that "Congress is going through a shakeout". There have been, says the Times, 49 announced retirements or resignations since the November 1994 elections. And, it adds, a dozen of them have bowed out just recently, since Thanksgiving. Well, Times, here are two more names to add to your "trickle that has grown into a stream" of retirements: Associated Press reports ("Clinger to Retire", Jan. 15, 1996) and Rep. William Clinger, "said Monday he will leave Congress after serving 18 years." The AP story adds, as if it is an afterthought, that Rep. Pat Williams, Montana Democrat, announced retirement plans on Saturday, Jan. 13th. Clinger says, "It's probably time for me to move on." Says Williams, "he's homesick". The AP article also notes that the high number of congressional retirements is the "most in a century". [H: And of course, a really biggie is Dole himself, and the Mrs.! We KNOW of at least $50 million EACH received in those neat "bribe-type" funds from Switzerland, that "they" got. And when old Billy Boy cries the blues and Hillary, Billiary and Crookery cries her tears about how bad it is—remember they were on the very top of the "receiving" list for hidden bank accounts, money laundering and "drug blindness". So, perhaps taking the "Fifth" to new meanings—is it possible some of it vanished into the Treasury Return pit? Certainly we do hope so, don't we?] [end of quoting]

So that's the story thus far. Now, thanks to an East Coast source whom I will call "Mr. Mercedes", I have received an audio tape of Jim Norman's recent appearance on New York radio station WBAI, marked on the cassette as having been January 10, 1996.

Says Mr. Norman: "This country is in a major political crisis." According to the ex-Forbes senior editor, it is "unfolding right before our eyes".

"For many years," he says, "[Vince Foster] had been a behind-the-scenes go-between between the NSA, the National Security Agency, and a company in Arkansas called Systematics—a bank and data processing company now owned or controlled by a telephone conglomerate called ALLTEL. He may have had access to very high-level code, encryption [and] other kinds of computer intelligence systems."

According to Norman, "More important than that: when [Foster] arrived in the White House he—according to sworn testimony by his executive assistant, Deborah Gorham (phonetically spelled)—somehow or other, he came to have possession of at least two inch-thick ring binders from the NSA, from the White House offices, which my sources tell me would have been extremely sensitive code materials—probably the codes, and more important than that, the protocols, by which the President authenticates himself when he calls up the Pentagon and says, 'Let's go nuke somebody'."

"Plus the fact," adds the controversial but respected journalist, "that we have documented evidence of Foster making periodic, one-day trips to Geneva. Over every 6 or 8 months he had been making a one-day trip to Geneva. And multiple sources have confirmed that he had at least one, if not several Swiss bank accounts."

Mr. Norman charges that Vince Foster, and Hillary Clinton, were both under surveillance for espionage at the time of Foster's so-called "suicide". Norman wonders, "Where would Foster have gotten access to these very sensitive documents [e.g. the ring binders with the authentication codes] within the White House?"

This last rings true when it is recalled that Foster and Mrs. Clinton had been widely reported as being lovers.

According to Mr. Norman, significant national security issues are lurking beneath the surface of the otherwise dropsical Whitewater hearings. "Vince Foster, as problematic as his death is, it's small potatoes compared to what we discovered. ... In fact, former intelligence people who have been involved in computer surveillance of foreign accounts have found hundreds of Swiss, [Grand] Cayman [and] other off-shore bank accounts, coded bank accounts, maintained on behalf of high-level U.S. political figures. Both parties. Many members of Congress, Elected officials, Appointed officials, Military officers, Intelligence community big-shots, Wall-streeters, BANKERS... are involved."

"There's a massive scandal here, about to blow up. And, in fact, we're already starting to see it." [quoting:]

JAMES NORMAN: "[Hillary] had actually been an attorney of record for Systematics which at the time was owned by the Arkansas billionaire Jackson Stephens, who tried to take over a Washington bank holding company on behalf of the BCCI [Bank of Credit and Commerce International] crowd and install Systematics as the data processing manager of that entire operation. Which is extremely curious, because BCCI itself was essentially a huge money-laundering, arms-finance and drug-finance/drug-money laundering operation.

In the process of going through all this, I actually came across what turned out to be a Swiss bank account number: it was a 10-digit, encrypted series of letters. When I turned it over to some of the intelligence sources who I'd been using on this story, they ran it through their system. And, actually a couple of months later, when I asked them: "Gee. Is it possible [that] Cap Weinberger might have money in these accounts?" They said, "Well, yeah. Don't you know? That account number you gave us was Cap's!" In fact, they mentioned that a relative of Howard Metzenbaum, former Senator from Ohio, was another co-signatory to that account; that Weinberger had multiple accounts—not implausible to me at all.

I mean, here was Weinberger, Secretary of Defense throughout the Reagan era, during which we had one of the biggest defense build-ups in history. We also participated in the massive illicit arming of Iraq with high-technology weapons systems capabilities, plus the armaments themselves. It was an environment fertile for kickbacks. Payola. Corruption. And, in fact, Weinberger was eventually indicted by Iran-Contra prosecutor Lawrence Walsh for lying to Congress, for failing to turn over his dairies. He was pardoned by George Bush just as Bush was leaving office. And so he never had to stand trial—which was probably a merciful reprieve for Colin Powell, who was Weinberger's chief assistant at that time, chief advisor.

Weinberger had basically elevated Powell to a high-level advisory position, and Powell would have been effecting a lot of the orders that Weinberger was giving him—about moving arms here, and drugs there. [H: Could this possibly all be WHY Sir Powell decided not to run for President? Bully-ho!]

And in fact, Weinberger's name has come up in connection with a Costa Rican legislative investigation, a two-volume report down there that identifies Weinberger, as well as Ollie North, our former Ambassador to Costa Rica, and various others as being personas non grata for helping facilitate a massive drug and arms operation which helped corrupt that country's society. If those people set foot down there again, they're getting arrested.

So suddenly it starts to make a lot of sense. And when you think in terms of Swiss bank accounts and massive amounts of money—kickbacks—it explains a lot of stuff that's going on right now.

[H: I wonder if any of you have considered offering Mistert Tilton & Brinkerhoff of Financial Corporation of Santa Barbara and Santa Barbara Savings and Loan, an opportunity to consider funding one of OUR CONTRACTS—you know the little 10 package? I think they might even enjoy knowing WHO controls that little package and possibly might even consider shushing the bull-dog lizard, HORN. Do you think they want all those connections with such as the "White House" gang to be recognized for all the world to see—HOW they brought people down and stole their property? "Somebody" might like to go visit Mr. Tilton and share and tell a few things. He would be EASY to locate—and moreover, it is KNOWN that SBS would like to come out of Chapter 11—if they could ever just get rid of the Ekker case! Well, they are NOT going to get rid of Ekkers and they might enjoy knowing as much. The investigation of SBS is about as interesting, readers, as is the above mentioned cases. How nice for us that Green, Abbott, Horton, et al., have joined the "conspiracy" with Horn over this property—because they will all end up in the same stew-pot. Now Mr. Fort has hooked his own corporation to the Corporation Pot-Plot as well. I am amazed at what information can be gained by never leaving home!]

What we're looking at here is massive, endemic, high-level corruption of the federal government; Bipartisan, Democrats and Republicans. It's been going on for years, particularly since the early 1980s. The dollars involved have grown exponentially, I believe from arms and drugs trading. There are huge amounts of money sloshing around here. And it has corrupted the government in a fundamental way. The government cannot police itself. The normal enforcement mechanisms have been compromised: The Justice Department, the IRS, Customs, and the Intelligence community.

And what has happened is that there are a lot of good people in our government who have watched this happen, have been powerless to stop it—their protests would go nowhere. There's been no effective investigation by anybody of this stuff. And finally, what had happened was, a small handful of guys—they call themselves the Fifth Column, retired Intelligence people—have done something. One is a former CIA contractor. Another is a former National Security Agency person. I know they're assisted by a variety of other people of the intelligence community. They were able to acquire their own used Cray supercomputer from Clark Air Force Base [in the Philippines]. It's apparently an air-cooled and generator-driven machine that can actually be packed into the back of, I think, what looks like a refrigerated semi-trailer truck with a satellite uplink. And they've got his thing rollin' around the country so it doesn't get nailed.

And so for the last 5 years, they have been downloading, systematically, tapping into foreign bank databases and pulling down reams and reams of account data. [end of quoting]

[James Norman goes on to describe how this Fifth Column allegedly raided the secret bank accounts of corrupt government officials, transferring the money into U.S. government accounts. "For two years they've been raiding these accounts. Now they're into Phase II. Phase I: 'Take the marbles.' Phase II: 'Get them out of government.'"]

[END QUOTING OF PART 35]

This is so provocative as to cause us not to want to interrupt by writing changes but unfortunately Dharma is NOT a computer. And, I am often reminded of the placard on her door: "NOTICE: Due to the shortage of robots, some of our workers are human, and will react unpredictably when abused." Good afternoon.

Microwater™

Turn Your Tap Into A Fountain Of Wellness.

The Microwater™ Series One machine produces a healthful and refreshing high-altitude, electron-rich, free radical scavenging, alkaline water. It also breaks up larger-clustered water. It is actually "wetter", and therefore able to go to more places in the body, nurturing the organs, while removing acid wastes, one of the causes of numerous diseases. This type of water is usually found only in high-altitude mountain streams, twisting and turning, bubbling over rocks, where it picks up its electrons. Microwater is alive, and it functions as a powerful antioxidant. In Japan, this water has been successfully used to treat high blood pressure, diabetes mellitus, constipation and diarrhea, acidosis, and a wide variety of skin conditions. Although we make no medical claims, try the water for yourself and see what happens.

the account of James Norman regarding the Fifth Column and how the 5th raided the secret bank accounts of corrupt government officials, etc. The important connection here is that "For two years they've been raiding these accounts. Now they're into Phase II. Phase I: "Take the marbles." Phase II: "Get them out of government."]

[Continuing on with James Norman's on-radio interview:]

Now, how do you do that? How do you get these people out of government in the most time-efficient and cost-efficient manner? Apparently they've (Fifth Column) been hand-delivering brown manila envelopes to people in Congress with actual copies of the transaction records of these Swiss and other off-shore accounts. The people get about a day to read these things, and then they get a call from one of these guys who I have referred to as the "Angel of Death". And then the "elected official" gets a choice: You can either announce your retirement immediately, or you can face immediate prosecution for tax evasion and various other crimes—the minimum penalty for which, if you are convicted, is 10 years in prison.

Now when a congressman goes to prison, you lose your federal pension benefits. And the pensions on these people are significant. (For instance, Pat Schroeder, congresswoman from Colorado, relatively young, she's been there a long time so she's got, over her expected lifetime, more than 4 million bucks coming to her.) Now I think the implication here is that if you just shut up, go away, get out of the line of fire—maybe you'll get lucky and get to keep your pension down the road. There's no guarantee that you won't be prosecuted.

But what's happened so far: all of these people have taken the retirement option. And what you have seen is an unprecedented, record number of retirements of powerful people from Congress. These are not "back benchers"! Since the end of the last election, until now, more than 50 Senators and Congressmen have announced their retirement. In fact, there were two more in just the last couple of days: a 30-year Republican from Indiana, and a two-term Democrat from Arkansas [H: And don't forget Bob Dole!]

The excuses they give? Utterly bogus, frankly. "Oh, we can't stand the nasty politics." "Oh, I want to spend more time with my family." [H: While the wife and kids are standing by weeping without consolation. Do they not want the old-boy home to spend more time or are they just sorry to lose the "benefit packages"? What an interesting thing to watch, however.] "Oh, it's just time to go." It strains credulity. It just does not make sense—until you realize there's something else going on here.

CALLER #2: How is it exactly? I remember when I heard this story first and I was talking to somebody about it and they said, "Well how can they possibly get into these bank accounts?"

DR. MICHIO KAKU (Host, author of Hyper-space, A Scientific Odyssey Through Parallel Universes, Time Warps, and The Tenth Dimension [H: Well, I'd say this is a heavy dreamer! And no, he doesn't know of that which he writes but it is an interesting volume. We are here because nobody running around on two legs in your dimension—remembers enough to tell the story.]: OK Mr. Norman, how do you get into another person's bank account?

JAMES NORMAN: Let me begin by saying that bank computer systems are nowhere near as secure as the banks would like you to believe. Granted, there are many security features built into bank communications and software systems. But in most large software systems there are what you call "service entrances" or "back doors" by which software maintenance people would get in routinely to fix "bugs" and so forth. If you take that concept, and then consider the idea that our intelligence agencies, which have an extremely highpriority collection of financial information, would somehow or other see to it that they have perhaps their own "back doors" plugged into these various bank data systems.

That's how I got onto the story, actually, was the proliferation of a customized version of what was called the PROMIS software. This was, it was designed for tracking legal cases, originally, then customized for use in tracking wire transfers, sold and promulgated around most of the world's banking system, had "back doors" in it that would allow, if you knew where the "back door" was, it would allow you to basically dial into a computer system and not leave an audit trail: go in, snoop around, pull down information, and then leave.

DR. K: I think the key thing, at least from my point of view, is that we're not dealing with high school "hackers" who, by trial and error, and guile, try to get into somebody's bank account. We're talking about former intelligence agents.

JN: Right. But let me point this out, a couple of months ago, Citibank... there were published stories about how a "hacker" in Russia, armed with no more than a personal computer, apparently had gotten into Citibank accounts and was doing, essentially... exactly the same thing. He was wire-transferring money out of corporate accounts... to banks in Argentina and Finland. These were always in small amounts so that it would not set off the internal alarm system. What I am told is that, somehow or other, this guy got hold of the "back door" address at Citibank and was able to use it.

[H: The Bush Boys took this a step further and grabbed a whole corporation, took the assets if they were in valuable certificates, foreign debt instruments, validated them through their own cronies in the Treasury Department and, instead of simply transferring computer funds (which they also did), they drew against these instruments under the guise of owning the corporation. HOWEVER, THE BIGGEST HEIST DIDN'T PAY OFF FOREVER—AND THE CORPORATION WAS RECLAIMED, the documents reaffirmed and verified AND FILED PUBLICLY—and when payoff time to the banks came—oops! This has become a really ugly circumstance for the Perpe-TRAITORS. They ARE having a bit of difficulty handling the "brown envelopes", however, because the plan was so massive and, now, too many murders have been committed and too many people KNOW—around the globe—in very high places! No, this is NOT the Fifth Column—it is from that old Tenth Column! You know—"checkmate". Now, reader, wouldn't you think it would be a whole lot easier to simply keep your agreements and commitments to Higher Command? We shall see.]

CALLER #3: Mr. Norman, outside of WBAI, has word of this gone out?

JN: Actually, this story has become a classic case study in "guerrilla journalism". Because I think it's too hot for any mainstream media to deal with. I mean, it's just loaded with too many problems: first of all, it deals with a lot of background, "deep throat" kind of sources; the attribution, the documents are kind of non-existent at this point—although I think they'll eventually come out. And you're dealing with a lot of big names and nobody really wants to rock the boat in a big-deal publication.

Media Bypass, this little magazine in Indiana, they came to me and asked me if they could run the story, because they had heard that Forbes (magazine) wouldn't run it; that the Wall Street Journal and New York Times and everybody else I'd talked to about it was scared of it. They [Media Bypass] managed to corroborate a key element of it for themselves. One of their investigative reporters knew a guy who used to train IRS agents, who was talking with one of his former students who was assigned to surveil Vince Foster at the time he "died". And the guy actually read him some of the surveillance report, off the computer screen, over the telephone. And it's not that big of a secret, apparently, within the intelligence community. There was a massive counter-intelligence effort going on regarding Foster. It apparently began just after the '92 election, but before the inauguration in January '93. And for about the 6 months until he died, Foster was under pretty intense surveillance.

There's a French intelligence newsletter which has also corroborated the fact that Foster was under counter-intelligence surveillance at the time he died. There's Sarah McClendon who has written about it. (She's an old "war horse" Washington correspondent.)

But the story is just too—it's like the media cannot deal with this. And ultimately I think the media will be on trial as much as the government for not dealing with this story. Instead, we've got Media Bypass, we've got talk radio... Actually the Internet has become a rather successful outlet for this kind of stuff. And in fact, it's amazing; it has brought a whole bunch of other people out of the woodwork, talking about this, including a lot of very literate computer people—financial people.

And I know, particularly, a former Wharton finance professor, Orlin Grabbe, who has posted a series of his own rather revealing exposés on this stuff. [CN—Archived at ftp.shout.netpub/users/bigred/of] He, after leaving Wharton, started his own software company, making software for pricing derivatives. And the intelligence community came to him! and said: "Hey, can we use your company to help spy on brokerage houses and banks too? We want some way to insinuate our people into these computer rooms." That's what sent him up the wall. He said, "Holy smokes, we're dealin' with the Surveillance State here." And I think he became a renegade ever since.

Particularly, I think he's also angry about the government's tirade here on money laundering: it's used, basically, as a tax raising measure. I mean, they want to go after every little guy for any kind of cash transaction. But we have, you know, what is so outrageous about this is, you have a two-tier system; you have rampant money laundering, drug dealing and kickbacks for the privileged Elite and you have the government's boot on the neck of everybody else.

So there's significant grass-roots rage brewing over all this stuff, and it's gonna find an outlet somehow or other—even if it's just WBAI, you and me!

DR. K: OK, well, let's hope it gets beyond WBAI.

CALLER #5: It's obvious that Iran-Contra never stopped. But my question is, driving along the interstate I noticed that "Next Six Exits, the NSA". WHO are the people at the top of the NSA? Who runs the

NON SEQUITUR / By Wiley

NSA? Who are they, where do they come from, and how far-reaching is their power?

JN: That's a good question. You call up Washington and they say, "NSA"? 'No such Agency.'" That's their nickname.

It's a HUGE bureaucracy. It's based at Fort Meade, Maryland. Their budget is bigger than the CIA and the FBI combined. Their job was originally signal surveillance.

CALLER #5: Do we know who the people are, though?

JN: When you look it up... I tried to find out, actually, "Who runs the NSA?" They have a list in this two-inch-thick book on federal offices, that I've got. They merit about a two-inch thing that only has about six names associated with it. And I forget the top guy's name there. I think he's an Admiral who's on assignment to the NSA.

CALLER #5: But aren't G.E. and Westinghouse and all the networks part of it?

JN: Well, of course the government contracts out vast amounts of work to other countries. But the NSA, for sure, they do a lot of their work through "cut-out"—front companies. In fact, that's what this Systematics was—which is now called ALLTEL Information Systems. (The CEO [Chief Executive Officer] of which just retired, mysteriously, at age 56, last week, and announced plans to go spend more time with his family.) That thing is about to blow up, because I think Systematics, in addition to helping the NSA plant "bugged" software in foreign banks also functioned, I'm told (and this is corroborated by various good intelligence sources), for many years they functioned as sort of a "cyber bank" for covert funds.

CALLER #5: What part did the major corporations play?

JN: Well, let's put it this way: One of Inslaw's partners was AT&T. IBM was involved in this, too. Apparently IBM does lots of business with the government and there's, I'm told, one of the applications of this PROMIS software is it was customized to track submarine sounds—maritime sounds—catalog the stuff, develop files on foreign ships. IBM was a prime contractor on that system.

CALLER #5: Ed Meese and Nichols had actually taken away from the owner, and that's who this [unclear vocal] suing.

JN: Well, Inslaw is suing the Justice Department for damages.

CALLER #5: 'Cuz the owner was a competitor with Nichols, who was a friend of Ed Meese. [CN—Meese was Attorney General under President Reagan.] when they got to power, that was the deal: to try to get it away from him. Nichols, who worked for Wackenhut.

JN: Robert Booth Nichols, I think you're talkin' about, right?

CALLER #5: And he was a friend of Ed Meese. And he was competing to put this system in for tracking criminals in Los Angeles. I believe this guy's name was "Campbell" or something like that, the one with Inslaw.

JN: Bill Hamilton and his wife own Inslaw.

CALLER #5: Hamilton! That's it.

JN: They... What happened was, the government was desperate to get hold of that source code so they could customize it and re-sell it, with the profits going into private pockets—like cronies of Ed Meese. Particularly, there's a guy named Earl Brian who has this company called Hadron... Infotechnology. He owned UPI [United Press International] for a while. He's actually under indictment in L.A. right now. He was [unclear vocal] SEC [Securities and Exchange Commission] charges for financial manipulation.

This stuff got customized and sold all over the place. Robert Maxwell was re-selling it, on behalf of the Israelis [Robert Maxwell also sold Israeli suitcase nuclear bombs, according to some. Maxwell's real name was Abraham Leib Hoch; then he used the name Ivan du Maurier during WW-II; then changed it again after the war]. Again, the object was to get this software planted into foreign intelligence agencies and particularly into foreign banks. It was basically a version of this software that went into Guatemala. Maxwell's front company sold this software to Guatemala, and basically it was used to help assassinate 30,000 civilians down there, catalogue 'em and find out who is an "enemy of the state" and [If they can do it in Guatemala, they can do it here!] [H: Moreover, it is now within the entire satellite tracking system globally.]

CALLER #5: We of the WBAI audience are quite familiar with this, but I am much more interested in the players with the NSA who I think are really running the country.

JN: I think you're right. I wish I knew who the bad guys were.

[H: Why doesn't somebody ask, and then listen, TO GRANDMA!?!]

DR. K: Let me also say, for those of you who tuned in late: the NSA [National Security Agency] is a very large organization whose budget is reputed to be something on the order of 10 times the size of the CIA budget. And they're historically involved with surveilling the Soviet Union. The CIA was mainly interested in spies on the ground and analyzing information. However, it takes an enormous body simply to monitor what was happening in the Soviet Union at the height of the Cold War, and that's where the NSA was set up. It's basically a surveillance organization.

[H: Oh good grief, this is why I suggest you don't take Dr. Kaku's novel as gospel—there are more Soviets/Mossad/Mishpucka in the NSA than any teams of U.S. intelligence. People, you have to catch up with the world changes or you are going down the primrose path—AGAIN AND AGAIN. You no longer have a localized intelligence agency—you have fragments trying to recover some measure of identity here and there—but the NEW WORLD ORDER (remember that old dog?) is all integrated. NSA and others were working the banking systems through other CIA corporations and entities all the while the integration was taking place. It is amazing that this should even mention such as Guatemala, that is so "old hat". There is no "IF"—it HAS HAPPENED, RIGHT WHEREVER YOU ARE! GLOBALLY—WHEREVER YOU ARE! STOP PLAYING AT CHARADES AND GUESSING GAMES—IT HAS HAPPENED TO YOU!]

However, many people claim that it has since taken a life of its own and it is also part of some kind of secret government.

JN: The CIA reports directly to the President. It's a civilian entity. The NSA reports to the Director of Central Intelligence through the Pentagon. It's essentially a military function. And, in fact, it was made up of various elements of the Army, Air Force and Navy—their intelligence, signal gathering entities ultimately became NSA-type entities.

NSA is also responsible for all of the government's activity in terms of encryption. And they're the guys who are behind all the Clipper chip and all that other kind of stuff... There's a healthy debate goin' on about this stuff. Everybody needs to talk about it... [end of Norman interview]

Conspiracy Nation—Vol. 7 Num. 05

[end of quoting]

The Editor-In-Chief of Conspiracy Nation is Brian Redman at 217:356-4418.

According to discussions on the Internet, the Fifth Column consisted of people like a former head of the CIA (William Colby), a head of the Navy (Admiral Boorda), and "The Angel of Doom", the man delivering the "bad news" to the crooked politicians, Charles Hayes (he missed his plane flight in Florida). I give you these names so you will think about what you are reading, as we go along. We will have more information on these people. And now, here is a story as reported by Sherman Skolnick (used with permission). [H: Do "I" know about these things? I take the "Fifth"!]

[END QUOTING OF PART 36]

This, readers, is the way information MUST FLOW. You don't need psychics, revelation, prophets and other magical distractors. You must have information gleaned FROM WHAT IS. There are massive piles and piles of information out there if you will open your minds and realize how to sort truth from deliberate lies. The lies ALWAYS have an indication (clue) as to their validity. Truth will never change—although there may have to be several bits of information woven into the tapestry to have a proper final picture. And yes, you DO need papers such as CONTACT because MOST of the citizens of the world HAVE NO IDEA HOW TO USE A COMPUTER—MUCH THE LESS AN INTERNET AND PAY FOR THE HOOKUPS, ETC. There will be as much garbage on the Internet as there is bad data poured into anything—especially with no controls and with the misinformation guides available. BE CAREFUL and just because a thing is on the Internet does NOT TRUTH MAKE—JUST AS MOST OF THE CONTACTS FROM "OUTER SPACE" ARE NOT FROM LIGHTED SOURCE. MOST, IN-FACT, WHO INFECT THE BRAIN-WAVES ARE NOT OF GOD!

The Fire from the Sky is already falling upon you—you simply expect "flames" and overlook the invisible waves from that wondrous invisible universe—beyond your ability to see and hear as human experiences. It is all there, it is all very REAL—you simply cannot get it within your senses as is the limitation of sensing man in the electric universe of unseen waves and pulses spiraling ever without ceasing in the breathing in and out of God Creator upon a stage of manifest illusion—ALL IS LIGHT! The senses, however, perceive through those senses, all that is fabricated into the beingness of your sensing world. I like the saying: "Nothing is closed to an open mind," but indeed, everything worthy of transition shall remain closed to a mind who pretends to be open—but is solidly locked from within, for nothing can access that lock and only that ONE holds the key. Not even God will unlock that lock unless invited within. Ignorance is a most painful way to live—refusal to learn is even more terrible.

May the Fire in the Sky this day—simply light your way to insight—not burn you into Fear and Terror. Create that which you shall be—and nothing can be denied your petition. BUT YOU MUST DO IT, CREATE IT—AND BECOME "IT"! As an Angel of Light I shall only walk WITH you!

We shall take up with a discussion by Skolnick regarding the Oklahoma bombing when we next write. Thank you. Salu.

Midnight For America As The Bell Tolls For Thee

and the man who gave me your number didn't give me much to go on.

JA: Well, actually, I'm not sure but that we're losing our freedom even while we talk, here in America. Some things are going on that should never happen. They are unconstitutional and they are guided by people who believe in the downfall of America. And they believe in a One World Government, and to go to that you have to lose the sovereignty of these United States.

See, I spent over 26 years on active duty wearing the uniform of this country through three wars. And I served in so many various places. I started out with the Navy. I later was in the Army, and I served as a Green Beret and worked with the CIA. And I recognize some of the signs of what's happening. First of all, you need to know that right now they're practicing a Multi-Jurisdictional Task Force, and these people have all been trained down at Ft. Polk, Louisiana. They are comprised of several different nations, not only our own troops, but from CIS nations; former USSR people, as well as FBI and CIA—CIA is not allowed to operate within the limits of the United States but they do, and this is contrary to their charter by the government.

RM: That's right.

JA: And then, the FBI and the police from several cities who have already been trained and are identified as being under the jurisdiction of the FBI when the FBI so decides. And they, right now, are practicing the cover-story of "No Terrorism" in the Olympics in Atlanta, and practicing "population control" of a major, one of the top 10 cities in population, of the United States. Right before our eyes, and nobody is saying a word.

RM: And you're talking about Atlanta?

JA: Atlanta, Georgia. And right now, and of course it's been going on for over two weeks, before the games even start, if someone lives outside the loop and they work inside the loop, they have to have a "special pass". Now all of this makes a nice story and people swallow it, and all that, but at the same time, 10 days ago, 10 and 9 days ago, they pulled off a house-to-house search in Pittsburgh, PA. until finally the populace got so stirred up, and they got the mayor and the city fathers stirred up, and they began to call other people in Washington and got it stopped. The whole thing was unconstitutional. I lived in the military, my best years. And if you're going to exercise some kind of a maneuver off the military reservation, you always notify the leaders. You always notify the police and the county sheriffs and people know what's going on. And if you want to search a house, you have to have a search warrant, in these United States, if we still have the Bill of Rights.

Well, all these things are going under right while we're talking. Now, additionally, out in New Mexico there is an exercise going on called "Rolling Sands" and there are over 30,000 troops involved in that. And again, they're multi-national troops. And all of this is a practice for controlling the United States in a military, police take-over. And they are assembling people now out in Miramar Naval Station (CA), and the basis of that is that there may be some disturbances in August concerning the Republican Convention. That doesn't take place until later in August. And so they're already doing that, and of course, on the basis that some "wet-backs" may cause trouble, or something like that. The thing is, they're practicing controlling from north of L.A. to south of the Mexican border. And from the Pacific Ocean, clear on through to where "Rolling Sands" is going on in New Mexico. So that is a regional operation there.

All this ties in, and I think the order has come from the Bilderberger's meeting of three to four weeks ago, up in Canada—which, at the same time, the same week, the Illuminati meeting was going on. And those two are overlapping groups. I think the signal was given by the world power-brokers—and they're basically headed up by David Rockefeller—and said it's time to bring America down. And, of course, there will be a One World Government, unless we are stronger than anything the United Nations can bring to bear against us. And we are, no longer, that strong.

Now, there are a lot of other things contingent to this going on.

RM: Feel free to just speak. Tell me what you know, because this is a truly free press and we will publish it.

JA: Right now they are trying to control the population in homes and everything else to include, down at Roswell, New Mexico, both military and the civilian planes coming in. A friend of mine called and said that "I was unable to pick up a man that I was to meet at the airport because I couldn't enter the civilian side of the airport." You know, this is supposed to be a free country. We're losing, fast, everything our founding fathers and everyone since then who was a red-blooded American have lived and died for. Somehow we need to get it stopped. But, you see, these actions are approved at the highest level and beyond the highest level of the U.S. Government.

RM: That's right.

JA: And I know that no one can sit in the oval office today unless he has sold out to the Bilderbergers and globalists and the traitors to America. And that's what is happening, right now. And I guess we shouldn't expect much different when we have a draft-dodging guy who loathes the military as a Commander and Chief. And all of these are a matter of record. I'm not saying anything people shouldn't know and realize.

RM: You're not going to get any argument on this end.

JA: No, but we have people letting party loyalty sink our country. And they ought to say, "We're gonna fight for what is right and vote for it, and who is right and vote for them." But, of course, many of the elections—we should insist on no electronic devices connected to the voting booth.

RM: It's just vote-scam, completely controlled.

JA: That means that we have basically lost our free country.

RM: Now, you spent many years in the military and you had exposure to the CIA, and you're aware of what is going on and the scope of which is going on—do you see, or do you have any sense of whether or not there is a consciousness among the leaders within the American military that this is taking place, one, and that there would be a rallying, if push came to shove, at any point in our future?

JA: I have some senior military people who are in command positions who have said, "Remember our oaths as officers. That we will support and defend the Constitution of the United States against all enemies...

RM: Foreign and domestic.

JA: ...foreign and domestic." Now they're not worried about the foreign ones so much, they're worried about the domestic ones. But the domestic ones are letting the foreign ones in. And, of course, about a third of the people who work in the White House can't get a security clearance. Yet they are handling the secrets of this nation. There is a saying in the military—people of that quality, if they were in the military, we wouldn't give clearance to read the morning newspaper. They're not trustworthy. And you may quote me on this. The problem with America is, in the White House the crooks and the queers are running our country. They are running and ruining our country. And I'm not politically correct, so don't expect me to be.

RM: We're a politically incorrect newspaper.

JA: Well, good for you. And I hope that we haven't started sounding the alarm too late, but I'm afraid maybe we have. We have let foreign officers and men go into every military installation, including the most top-secret place that we have U.S. forces in Europe. Down at Stuttgart at Patch Barracks, where the EuCon commander and the U.S. Army commander, one n an is wearing two 4-star hats there—and he has one deputy who is American, and one who is Russian, both 3-star generals, under him. That is the most top-secret place that we have in our U.S. forces in Europe. And so, here is someone who knows everything we have. It's a VERY classified place. I had a top-secret clearance, was still on active duty, went to see my son-in-law who was an infantry colonel there and he had to sign for me to enter the building and that I would be in his sight at all times while I was there. Now that's how top-secret it is. I will say one thing for that general, while I was in Germany just recently, about a month ago, he said openly in the Stars & Stripes, which is a military newspaper for Europe, he said, "Our military is not as strong as we've said and we could not fight two regional wars at one time." Of course the administration says, "Oh, yes we can." And this general, who must be getting ready to retire, said that we could not redo ONE again like Desert Storm, unless they gave us six months lead time to get ready to fight it.

RM: Makes sense.

JA: He must figure that he's at the end of his career or maybe he is just bold enough as a patriot to go ahead and tell the truth. But I take my hat off to a man like him.

Now, our American people are also deceived about what's going on in Bosnia and Macedonia, both parts of the former Yugoslavia.

You see, when medical army specialist Michael New refused to serve in his outfit, he had not refused when they went to Kuwait. He had not refused any previous duty. But what happened was, a Finnish general was put in command of the troops down in Macedonia. And I have read the newspaper, which at that time was at the headquarters of the division, and the division is still headquartered there, but they've changed the number of the infantry division. But the division that was there was Third Infantry. They go clear back to World War I, and they were real heroes, and they were called the Marn Division (named after a medal in France), and so their newspaper was called the Marn Crusader. And in there was a story, and this is the official newspaper of that division—how this Finnish general had said that when he assumed command of American troops under a United Nations flag, with United Nations add-ons to our uniforms (which can only be authorized by Congress and it was not)—and he said we have made history now with me assuming command. And so, at that point, Michael New, who had been home-schooled and taught the U.S. Constitution, as well as the fact that he understand his oath of enlistment, which was to support and defend the Constitution of the United States, not the Charter of the United Nations.

RM: Right.

JA: And he refused to do it because it was a totally illegal, unconstitutional order. That same headquarters, convened by a general officer, he was given a court martial and he was found guilty of disobeying a legal order. Well, it wasn't a legal order. Now I have talked with his attorney, who is a retired Colonel, Marine, and who had served as an undersecretary of defense—I spoke with him in Washington and he purposely did not read all of Presidential Directive 25, because if he had he could not talk about it in court because it's classified. But, they had a military attorney helping him and the military attorney DID read it, and if I was an attorney working on the case, I'd sure share with my partner everything he needed to know. But formally and officially, Colonel Ray said, "I did not read it." And I think he is a very fine man of integrity and he's a patriot. But here is a young soldier that shouldn't have ever had to raise the issue. Senior officers, generals should have said, "Wait a minute!" But I have a copy of a speech given by former Chief of Naval Operations of the Navy, named Crow, who, a year ago this past month, spoke to the graduates at Annapolis and said, "In the future our allegiance will be to a One World Government, not to the United States." And so this thing is being taught to our future officers and leaders of the military. And these things concern me.

RM: As well they should.

JA: Yes, they should, because I see what's down the road and it's happening so quick that—you know, when people ask me how long do you think we'll be a free nation? I say, "Well, maybe until Thanksgiving. Maybe until the end of July. I do not know. But I'll tell you, it's not for our lifetime." And, at the most, at the very, very most, it would be four years. But I don't think it will be longer than four months.

RM: Now, are you a retired Colonel?

JA: I'm a retired Colonel, I still carry an I.D. card, and I can still be court-martialed under the Universal Code of Military Justice, and I KNOW that.

RM: And what was your service?

JA: I served, first of all, in the Navy when I was a teenager. I finished high school before I was 16, joined the Navy when I was 17, in 1942, and went off to World War II. I came back in from the fleet under a fleet competitive arrangement and I became a naval aviator. I finished up down in Pensacola and the war ended and I got out on combat points. I went to college in seminary and pastored a while, then entered the U.S. Army as a chaplain and served for a quarter of a century there. And, I served with the Green Berets, and that's the reason I recognize some things in the news that other people read over and either don't understand or are confused by it, such as population control devices.

RM: I just completed a several-part series on population control in CONTACT, so I'm very aware of the subject.

JA: Listen: Ted Turner, with his "not-so-Fonda", Jane wife, who should have been executed publicly not later than 1975 as a traitor, which she is; which she was. But, of course, you'd have to stand in line behind the guy named Bill Clinton, so you couldn't do that.

Well, let's get on back—when they began to talk about population control out of Cairo a couple of years ago, they first said we need to reduce the population of the world by twenty-five percent in the next twenty years. Although the Pope had sent a commission down there that said that they had done their study and you could put all of the people in the world in the state of Texas—remember, I'm sitting right here in Dallas, Texas, tonight. And it would be no more crowded than the average American city. Now, you couldn't raise all the food and supply all of the water, but as far as living "space", it could be done. And yet, our official representative who is the Vice-President, Al Gore, that famous "tree-hugger" guy, you know, so he came back and he went along with all of that. In fact, as they began to do their follow-on reports, they upped the figure to forty percent of the world's population needs to be desiccated in the next twenty years. You can't do all of that by birth control, even if you practice abortions, partial-birth abortions, because there are more than that that would be alive that are already here now. So you're going to have to kill off the population. Ted Turner stated, some two months ago, and this is almost a direct quote, "We need to reduce the population of the world in the next twenty years, to around 250 million to 350 million people." That means that 19 out of every 20 people alive tonight have to be done away with in the next twenty years.

RM: That's right.

JA: Well, I'm sure my name, being Ammerman, is, alphabetically, pretty high on the list. They won't just march me in as a lamb to the slaughter. I believe in standing and defending this free country, this great country that we have, that our founding fathers and others have hazarded their fortunes and lives for, as have I. And I will do so as long as I am alive, because I believe in this country and, in fact, I believe that God raised up this country for His very own special purposes and now the enemy is trying to destroy it.

RM: Well, I think God may have His hand in before all is said and done, as well.

JA: Yes. God is still on the throne. And I want all our listeners, your readers, to know that I am not a pessimist. I just simply believe that I am a realist and that we need to wake-up our good Americans, many of whom are oblivious to what's happening. And we could turn this nation around, throw out all the crooks, and again have a free country. But it's not going to be easy, now, because we've let it progress so far.

RM: Well you realize that part of the problem we have in this country is that the America population has not been educated for several decades now, and the dumbing-down of the country has been so well planned and so well thought out that there is, through the mesmerization by the media, newspapers, television, in particular, movies, there is almost a lack of will within the American people to have the fortitude and the courage and the stamina to really, one, want to know what's going on and, two, really give a damn to actually do something about it. And, I would say that the drive has gone out of the country, through the dumbing-down of the American people.

JA: Well, you see, the Socialists and the Communists, and they're almost interchangeable in every case, have gotten hold of the major news media. They've gotten hold of the major entertainment, and if anybody says to me that what happens on TV doesn't influence your conduct, I have one standard answer and they always shut their mouth, swallow, and do an about-face and leave.

RM: (Laughter.)

JA: And here's my answer: If TV does not effect your conduct, then the greatest fraud perpetrated in America is selling advertising time on TV. And our big companies aren't that dumb, because it DOES change your conduct and what you buy and who you buy from.

RM: Sure it does.

JA: If it does that, it does it with entertainment and it does it in the news media.

RM: Yep.

JA: And so, the Socialists who would destroy this country and they want all of us, except the Elite, to be the "little people" and the only ones to pay taxes because the big people don't pay taxes, they have some smart lawyer getting them out of the tax-paying business. I'm sure that David Rockefeller doesn't pay as many taxes as I do, and I don't have a very big income. But, you see, I don't have somebody taking care of all the details so I can avoid paying taxes. And those people plan to do away with the free population.

Now what they haven't figured out—Ted Turner is supposed to be a smart man. He is a RICH man and he's a mogul in the news industry, but what he hasn't figured out is, if that is all the people who are left, who is going to take care of all the things that he wants to have with all his millions and billions of dollars? Somewhere along the way you have to have the worker-bee.

RM: What good is an empire without slaves. Right?

JA: Yeah. And so, if they want to make slaves out of us and then still live, as did some of the kings of olden days with serfs—and they're rapidly taking care of us owning property. I just talked to a man who lives in the suburbs of San Francisco, I'm talking about last week. And he said, "I can no longer do anything with most of my land because once a year there are a few little special flowers that bloom there, so I can't use that part of it. And they think that, maybe, a neighbor saw some kind of a little old toad on another piece of my land, so I'm not allowed to touch it. "But," he said, "I still have to pay taxes on all of it."

So they'll tax him out of ownership of his own property.

RM: Well, if you're paying taxes, there is no ownership.

JA: That's right, exactly. And, of course, we haven't really been under the Constitution since March 1933.

RM: That's right.

JA: And all these dictatorial Executive Orders, now are fast grabbing the remaining tenets of our freedom.

RM: The Multi-Jurisdictional Task Force is not something new, or something that has come about overnight, it's been in the planning stages for a very long time. What do you see happening next, over the next month or two? Obviously they are really gearing-up for the Olympic Games. Do you see a series of staged events?

JA: Well, yes I do. And they could immediately, and a very easy one to do, because we're due for a stockmarket "adjustment", which I spell c-o-l-l-a-p-s-e. But, if that happened, the streets would be filled with people who would come in and kill you for your last can of food. And at that point you could declare Martial Law and most of the people would say we had to have it. Or the President's plane could crash, like Ron Brown's was caused to crash, or get him to commit suicide by shooting himself through the heart twice, like the Chief of Naval Operations. You know, what's wrong with our—I used to trust the FBI. I asked a retired FBI man with over thirty years service, I said, "What percent of our FBI can we trust?"

And he thought a while and he said, "Well, maybe ten percent, now." There was a time when it was a very trustworthy organization, but not any more. And I know that there are military people who sold their soul for one more promotion, but there are some very good people in these organizations, they're just outnumbered so many times, anymore. But I believe that part of the strength of America is our military and our former military people.

RM: That's right.

JA: And so, I'm hearing, and I can not prove this—I'll probably get some notification—by the 17th of this current month of July, 1996 they're going to have a national muster. That's a role-call of anyone who ever wore the uniform. And I guess they need to identify all of us because they know that we were trained to fight and we're not afraid to stand up for what's right. And maybe we're the enemy. The fact is, the enemy are those who would come against us. You know, we should remember our oath and say, "I will defend, not only against foreign but against domestic."

And I am having officers in key places who are commanders to say, "How bad do things get before my oath kicks-in to the domestic side?" So, they're not thoughtless people out there who just take orders. And I don't know how this thing will play itself out, but I'm sure that we have National Guard units that are pretty well equipped who would say, "We're more citizen than we are soldier, and so we are going to stand up for we-the-people."

Now, I don't think the people in Washington have really stayed in touch with us out here in the hinterland. I don't think they understand the heart of great Americans, men and women, who would gladly, if need be, sacrifice their life to keep this. The home of the brave and the land of the free. And I think that they are missing that. But so many of them have sold themselves out a little bit at a time that, like the frog in the water that got hot and cooked him—they haven't realized that they've changed their colors and they don't know what has been done in Washington.

Of course, part of the problem are the Federal Judges who have become dictators. They not only write Public Law—there's one here in Dallas who says, "Don't mention the Constitution to me. My court's not under the "Constitution". And when I first heard that, I thought this man ought to be impeached and put off the bench. But the fact is...

RM: Well, it's Admiralty Law.

JA: He is right. We have been out from under the Constitution since 1933, and any president could declare the emergency over and get us out from under that—but he would lose his dictatorial powers if he did that. Don't count on any president being that strong in this day and time.

RM: You mentioned that you were with the Green

Berets for a while, have you had any contact with Bo Gritz?

JA: Oh, yes, I've met him and I've followed events about him in the news and all. He's a very brave and courageous man. He's probably too strong willed and too much of a patriot to ever be elected to public office, which, of course, he ran for the presidency. He probably did that to have a platform to be heard more than on the hopes of being elected. But we have other men who are brave and courageous who will stand up and be counted, when the time comes. The only thing that bothers me is, do we have enough interface between all the patriots that we could fight the enemy from within, which is aided and abetted by the enemy from without—from the CIS nations and so forth.

You know, we've just given one Air Force base to the Germans, so we have that there now. For a number of years, the Germans have had part of Ft. Bliss, Texas out of El Paso, where they train their air defense officers because they don't have enough air space to train them back on the continent of Europe. And I've been out there. I speak some German. The signs are in German. They have so many people there, they have two German Army chaplains with them. One German Lutheran, and one Roman Catholic, plus schools for the dependent children, and on and on. And all the signs are in German. So, you're really in little Germany when you're in part of Ft. Bliss. But now, we've given them an Air Force base as well. But that doesn't bother me as much as giving part of a famous old defense of the harbor there in San Francisco, called the Presidio of San Francisco—we gave one of the finest administration buildings, brought it up to better than new and gave it to old Gorbie, as his presidential library. And that picture from an aerial view was very clear. It was in the Dallas Morning News and a story, about a third of a page about it, and I have yet to talk to anyone in Dallas who even saw it. If they're that blind, how in the world are we gonna get them to open their eyes?

RM: That's the ten-thousand-dollar question, isn't it?

JA: Yes. And, of course, they gave him the finest set of quarters that the Coast Guard Admiral used to live in there, who was in charge of the West Coast—and brought it up to better than new, and that's now Gorbachev's palace, paid for by the tax-payer of America who is paying the enemy to come and abide on our shores. We need to do something about this and I hope you'll spread the word as far as you can.

RM: Any other closing remarks?

JA: I think our religious people should be aware of what's happening. There is a bill, it's a treaty, waiting over at the Senate and has been for close to a year. It came out of Rio de Janeiro, where the other meeting was on bio-diversity. And that treaty has already been sent over by our sitting president and the Senate, and I checked the last time I was in Washington—and they're just letting it collect dust. If anyone wants to ask about it, ask your congressman or senator, it's S103-20. And what it's about is ten major points on having this world—some of these people are calling Nature, Mother God Nature—and that doesn't make me too comfortable. But point number nine of the ten says that if this is enacted, the state religion for these United States—see, our Constitution said, "separation of church and state". No religious group can have priority over another. And here they are saying that if that is approved, number nine of the sections of that treaty would be that Nature worship would become the national state religion in America.

RM: (Whistle.)

JA: Now it's about time the Christians stood up on their hind legs and acted like people, not like sheep. Because if that happens to us, there goes your religious faith.

RM: Do you see the Christian Coalition as being a divisive force within America or a uniting force?

JA: Well, things have gone so far toward the persecution of Christians that they're a divisive force now. You see, when any group of people are not treated fairly by the major news media, which Christians have not been for at least ten years, then other people and other bureaucrats—whether it's the law or the IRS or whatever—can say, well we don't have to treat them fair because everyone knows that they are the whipping boy and the news won't give them a fair shake if we do mistreat them. And so, Christians are being persecuted and it's getting more severe all the time.

You know, Al Capone got eleven years for all his crimes. I have a minister friend whose son was employed by a man who ran a land scam in Florida. This man was on salary. He was making no money out of the scam other than an average salary for that position. You know, by the fact that he took his father's retirement money, $150,000 was all he had to look forward to living off of, and invested that in this program and then it was all lost when there was a land bust down in Florida—just a few years ago. That trial just finished recently. Now, compared to Al Capone, how long do you think that this man—by the way, the other man turned state's evidence to hang the people who worked for him and he got away with a probated sentence, but this minister's son—they began to run in the newspaper, "Noted Minister's Son Engaged In Fraud", cheats the widows out of their money, and on and on. He got forty-five years. He should have done like Al Capone and he'd have gotten off much better, but because he was a Christian, then they gave him more than if he had committed murder. Now that's persecution of Christians.

I also know a fine Christian man that the IRS in Kansas City—he's in a federal prison there, as is his wife, and have been for nine months, without a trial, because they would not produce records beyond three years to the IRS. When they were audited for one year, zero was found wrong. The man is a CPA, he knows how to keep records. Then, two more years back, and nothing wrong. They asked for clear back seven years and he said, "I don't have to present that because there is no indication of fraud."

And they said, "Well, we want them anyway."

And he said, "Well, I know your regulations and laws. You have given me a letter in advance saying that if you don't find anything I'm not held responsible for it that long back."

They refused to do it and had him brought into federal court. The judge asked if he was going to present them and he cited the existing regulations on it and the judge turned to two U.S. constables and said, "Take him to federal prison and hold him until I tell you to release him." No trial.

And the judge said, "Oh, his wife is in these papers, too. Take her." And both of them have been in federal prison for nine months without a trial.

Is this still a free America? I think it is a very valid, timely question.

RM: Do you know their names?

JA: Oh yes. Warren Black.

RM: And do you know where they are being held?

JA: They're being held in the federal penitentiary out at Leavenworth.

RM: Ok.

JA: And I keep in touch with them. Now, I went up there and I have quite a few connections there. I know the senior federal prison chaplain. I've known him for 23 years. I was the post chaplain at Leavenworth. I have credentials that I carry with me, and I could not get in to see that man. And his son, who keeps me informed on things, tells me what's going on with his father and mother. If it was me, I'd be calling for the militia or something to come and get me out of prison. But they're very law abiding, peaceable, Christian people, and they feel like justice will happen someday, sometime. I'm telling you, I would have every thing going in the world that I could get hold of, if that happened to me. I'm certainly not a pacifist in any sense. I guess you could tell that already.

RM: I was going to say, I got that feeling.

JA: (Laughter.)

RM: (Laughter.)

JA: Well, I killed my first Germans back before I was 18 years old. I was out at sea in a submarine, in the invasion of Sicily, which happened the week before I was 18. And I had to work through that. You know, sometimes it is the lesser of two evils and that's the best righteousness we can do. I believe we did the right thing when we dropped the bomb on Hiroshima, and later I was assigned to a unit in Japan that gave the support to the doctors and other scientists there. And I say we did a great thing because I've read Bruce Lee's book on The Untold Story of World War II, when, now, all the things that we broke the code on between Japan and Hitler, and then Stalin later on. The very words, statements by the Japanese Government was, that had we invaded Japan it would have cost them up to 10 million Japanese lives, and would have cost America a million lives. And I say it is a pretty fair Christian trait to trade a hundred and fifty thousand lives for 11 million. I think God would smile on that. And yet we have some people who say, "Oh, America was so bad." All these crying ninnies, you know. "America was so bad, they dropped the bomb." Well, I think that is one of the best choices a president ever made, to save 11 million lives. And he knew this. He had been told this, but the general public had not, because we didn't want them to know that we had broken their codes. But if you want to read an interesting book: Bruce Lee, Crown Publishers, The Untold Story of World War II.

RM: You mentioned you were in three wars.

JA: Yes. In Korea, and in Vietnam. And I had a son who was also in Vietnam, was almost wiped out. I went back over there to see him on emergency leave, and by that time, Spring of 1971—I was in much earlier over there—and he stayed too long. He was there two years, of his own choosing.

RM: I would imagine it tended to sour you a bit.

JA: It was a disgusting thing. And, of course, if you have seen Platoon, remember. All the bad that happened in ten years of war was compressed into a couple of hours. And, yes, those things happened. There was a shoot-out in my son's outfit and the Blacks and the Whites shot each other and some of their leaders. And he still wanted to go back, with a loyalty to his unit. And he did go back and I thought that he'd be killed. But he's still alive and well. And when that plane lifted off from Da Nang and I looked down over the wing there, toward where he was, I said if my son goes back to his outfit, I'll see him next in a pine box. And I did not tell his mother the impression I had after spending fifteen days over there, watching what was going on. But just remember, all the bad of Platoon did not happen every day, or every two hours. It happened in a composite of ten years. But it's disgraceful to say that it even happened.

RM: Our readers are going to get to this point in the interview and they'll probably be very depressed. How about a few closing words of encouragement.

JA: Well, first of all, let me say that God is still on the throne. And that's the most encouraging thing I can say.

I can also say that, due to various alternative news media, the word is beginning to get out about how we have been deceived by the major news media. And there are good Americans who want the truth, and they're beginning to hear the truth. At this point, many of them have armed themselves because they have come to understand what our Founding Fathers said, and what they believed in. And if anyone thinks that we are going to lay down and roll over here in America, they haven't come to know America very well. They may know their own twisted mind and perverted selves, if they are a leader in government, but I'll tell you, they don't know the people out here who vote for them—that they deceived into voting for them—and then, squander our money, our tax dollars. They don't know the American people. And I believe that all we have to do is get the truth out to the American people and we can stop all this evil. And I believe that Christian people alone can be the swing vote in any election nation wide, and well over half, probably two-thirds of the state elections across this nation. And then we can regain that which we've lost and God will help us do it. And I think that is a pretty encouraging word.

RM: Yes, it is. Thank you, Jim.

Planetary Rebalancing Imminent As Responsibilities Must Be Met

Editor's note: The following writing is by the Ascended Master known as El Morya, The Statesman, Elder of the First Ray among the seven "Rainbow Masters" communicating at this time to help us through Earth-Shan's planetary transition and rebalancing. See Journal #7 called THE RAINBOW MASTERS for more background on this important group of teachers. Refer to the Back Page for Journal ordering information.

7/14/96 EL MORYA

Greetings, I am El Morya, one of the Ascended Masters. I come in the One Light of Aton that is ALL. Thank you for receiving my energy this day. Be not distracted, else the opportunity will be lost.

Your planet is in great need for balance. She cannot continue much longer in her current state of crisis. She shall not be denied her balance within the Oneness of Creator's Light.

There shall be a massive cleansing cycle that she will undergo. This cleansing shall be quite devastating to those ones (humans, animals and plants, etc.) to whom she gives life. It is as if your planet has a fever and, before it breaks, her temperature will need to rise. She will need to excrete the poisons (toxic, radioactive wastes, etc.) which have been placed under her skin. She will, in the process, have to rearrange her waters and shift their healing properties to the places which need them the most.

You ones have been warned, over and over again. There was opportunity as caretakers of the planet to reverse the damage foisted off onto the life-giving entity that you ones erroneously call Earth. She is NOT DIRT! She (your planet) is a living, sentient being. You take for granted the gifts she freely gives.

The darkness of those who are destroying her and who suppress the masses has grown to epidemic proportions. The mentality of the average person is so filled with negative (non-Lighted) energy that such has made your planet so dizzy (off balance) that she even wobbles in an unnatural manner as she revolves around, trying to fulfill her purpose.

You ones need to learn to honor your planet and be thankful for the gifts she gives, not the least of which is life itself. Ones always seem to wake up too late. Many go around in their own self-centered world, not even thinking about how their actions (or IN-actions) will affect them tomorrow. Well, tomorrow is here! And that which you ones have neglected in the past will be brought around full circle for you ones to confront again—this time in a most direct and impacting manner.

When the "Earth" (as you call her) shakes you into an awakened state of realization that you are so truly small and cannot do anything to stop her massive quakings, maybe then you shall appreciate that which you take for granted.

EARTHQUAKES OF CATASTROPHIC MAGNITUDE (9.0 AND GREATER) ARE IMMINENT! INCREASED VOLCANIC ACTIVITY IN PLACES NOW SEEMINGLY DORMANT IS IMMINENT! THE SHIFTING OF YOUR OCEAN WATERS IS NOW IMMINENT!

You ones must come to realize the reasons why these things shall occur. It is because of the Universal Laws of Balance (the Laws of Cause & Effect). You ones must realize that you are responsible for that which you helped to create.

You may say, "But I did not pollute the waters or the skies!"

Do you drive or ride in an automobile? Do you not buy from, and thus support, the fuel companies which provide you ones with gas and electricity? They, in turn, pollute rivers and streams. The exhaust fumes from your cars, busses, trucks and airplanes—do not they pollute your air? Do you wash your clothes with chemical solutions? Where do you think the rinse water goes?

One person alone could not contaminate your planet by acting in this manner, but 5 billion (or more) people acting in this manner can and indeed have. Those things you ones do daily—usually without thinking of future, long-term consequences—are the things which are the most dangerous to your own survival.

Am I saying, "Do not drive your automobiles!?" NO! Am I telling you to stop washing your clothes? NO!

I am suggesting that you change the way you think regarding your non-caring attitude toward your planet. Some say that they care about the planet, but they are still unwilling to sacrifice their own personal comfort to REALLY do anything about your planet's current problems.

The first TRUE step in solving such a problem is educating people to the reality of the magnitude of the problem.

There are ones on your planet who are very sensitive to your planet's electromagnetic (emotional) shifts. These are the ones who get sick or exhibit some other physiological symptoms, such as a headache, prior to earthquakes, volcanic activity, etc. These ones innately know and respect the life form which sustains their existence. These are the ones who can help you to understand the needs of your planet. They have a direct link! Some don't even realize why they have this gift and, in fact, they often view it as a burden.

As I have said, you ones have been warned time and time again. There was an opportunity for reversing this current situation, but it is now long past. Now you ones shall be given to learn your lessons—once again—the hard way.

If you dislike this message, I suggest you ask yourself, "Why do I dislike this message?" Ones most often do not like to be made to feel responsible for that which befalls them. Most wish to blame their "sufferings" on another, and will go to great lengths to try to justify their position.

I shall tell you now: if something impacts you, whether it be good or bad, then you have helped in some way to create it. There are no victims.

When you can rise above your self-centered ME-ness and realize that YOU are responsible for everything that YOU do, then YOU will be able to begin to see a larger picture unfolding. With this shift in viewpoint, you will begin to realize that there are GREAT opportunities available to you for growth at this time. You will begin to stop making the same mistakes over and over again, lifetime after lifetime.

You will begin to realize that there is a reason for EVERYTHING that happens. There are no chance happenings—PERIOD!

When you ones can begin to understand the TRUE "whys" of these seemingly tragic events, then you will be ready to truly accept your responsibility in creating a better way of doing things—else you shall be destined to repeat these tragic horrors over and over again.

As always, the choice is YOURS!

I am El Morya, come in the One Light of the I AM presence. Thank you.
