Was July 4 Mars Landing Fake Or Facade?

Serious Questions Behind Slick Show

7/9/97 RAY BILGER

In the few weeks just prior to July 4th, 1997, Americans were slowly fed more and more bits of information from N.A.S.A. regarding the scheduled landing on the surface of the planet Mars of a United States spacecraft. N.A.S.A.'s own Internet Website reports: "On July 4, 1997, N.A.S.A.'s Mars Pathfinder landed on Mars and the next day the Sojourner rover rolled off the lander to conduct the first mobile geological soil studies of Mars." But are we to believe what we are being shown and fed on our television screens, especially with all the "special effects" technical resources available these days from the simulated-image masters in Hollywood and elsewhere?

Suddenly, on July 4th, with all the hype and fanfare one would expect for a premier screening of a new Hollywood movie, America was deluged with a spectacularly FLAWLESS display of the latest success story in America's so-called "space" program. The day before, July 3rd, we had few, if any, clues as to what we would soon be seeing. It was immediately obvious, however, on the 4th, that a great deal of rehearsing, writing of stories, creation of TV logos and special headlines, and overall planning had been coordinated

GLOBAL PLANTATION APPROVES BAIL OUT

Bilderbergers speak with forked tongues, as reports from inside the secret enclave reveal.

Excerpted from THE SPOTLIGHT, by Martin Mann, 6/30/97, [quoting:]

There is at least one good reason for the Bilderberg Group's insistence on surrounding its annual reunion with steel blinds of secrecy more tightly shuttered than a Pentagon war room; some of the agenda and quite a few of the deals struck here have more explosive potential than an average nuclear warhead.

That is the observation of a young French political scientist and university lecturer who attended the 45th Bilderberg meeting at this secluded island resort as a briefing aide to Dr. Thierry de Montbriand, director of the French Institute of International Affairs, and one of the conference's program coordinators.

Briefing aides are the anonymous but indispensable research assistants, note-takers, briefcase bearers and schedule keepers of the senior Bilderberg figures who set the meeting's themes and lead its working groups and discussion panels.

In the late afternoon of Sunday June 17, as the principal guests left and the security surrounding the conference site grew more relaxed, this SPOTLIGHT reporter met and interviewed several of the youthful Bilderberg aides. They proved, for the most part, willing to discuss their experiences on condition that nothing they said would be attributed directly or quoted by name—a basic rule of Bilderberg reunions.

In the consensus of these sources, the hermetically sealed conference setting did encourage some participants to cast off their cautious public persona and to reveal far more aggressive and even radical attitudes on the issues under discussion.

As an example of this sort of personality change these sources pointed to C. Fred Bergsten, director of the Institute for International Economics, a Washington, D.C. think tank.

Known generally as a moderate, scholarly, market-oriented policy analyst, Bergsten was revealed at the Bilderberg meeting as a fanatical advocate of global free trade and its inevitable concomitant, one-world government.

In discussion, Bergsten deplored the fact that most Western leaders—among them President Clinton, German Chancellor Helmut Kohl and French President Jaques Chirac—are still somewhat "queasy" about turning the citizens of their sovereign nations into the rootless subjects of grand transnational corporations.

But politicians can no longer halt or even delay the inexorable advance of globalism and international "market dynamics", and the financiers who understand these new forces now control the course of history, Bergsten assured his fellow Bilderbergers. The audience, which included a sizable sprinkling of bankers and currency speculators—among them two top executives of Goldman, Sachs, the giant Wall Street investment bank—was "enthusiastic", these sources recalled.

Along, with such declarations of one-world allegiance replacing traditional patriotism, the Bilderberg pow-wow occasionally demonstrates that what some of the world's most respected policymakers declare in public and what they say in private are two entirely different notions.

FREE TRADER

Dr. Jeffrey Garten, dean of Yale University's School of Management and a business economist, is as devoted a free-trader as Bergsten. As under secretary of commerce for international trade under the late Commerce Secretary Ron Brown, he was one of the architects of the nefarious North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) and a promoter of ever-larger U.S. investments in so-called "emerging markets", such as Mexico's loudly—and deceitfully—staged "repayment" of the bailout funds (some $15 billion of which it had received from the Clinton administration after NAFTA wrecked the Mexican economy). This payback was a heartening sign of Mexico's financial recovery, mainstream experts assured the public.

But in a briefing paper restricted to the small private audience of the Bilderberg encounter, Garten sounded a very different tune. To be able to pretend it was paying back the Clinton administration, Mexico has gone deeper into hock than ever before, the Yale dean admitted. The country's external debt, which stood at 35 percent of gross domestic product (GDP) in 1992—an already ruinous level of borrowing—almost doubled to a crushing 68 percent by the end of last year, Garten revealed.

Moreover, all these bailouts and borrowings had gone the way of all money in present-day Mexico: They disappeared into the pockets of thieving bankers and grafting politicians. After scooping up well over $30 billion in bailout cash, "the [Mexican] banking system still teeters on the brink of insolvency," Garten concluded.

ANOTHER DISASTER

The meeting of the Bilderberg working group on Growth and Trade ended with a poignant new break, according to a Turkish aide who took copious notes of Garten's findings and subsequently made them available to this reporter.

Andre Levy-Lang, chairman of giant Paribas financial conglomerate, announced he had been informed moments earlier that Vietnam's banking system had just collapsed.

After weeks of alarming reports that several Vietnamese banks were in trouble, the country's central bank Vietcombank, had notified a number of European and U.S. banks on June 13 that it would be unable to service its outstanding obligations, bank jargon for "We're broke".

A collective groan of "Another Mexico!" went up as the Bilderbergers summoned aides with portable telephones to begin yet another bailout battle. [End quoting]

It's nice to have someone do a little exposing of a sample of what takes place behind those closed doors.

I read somewhere (I don't recall where) that Colin Powell was given a big boost for president in 2000 at the meeting.

HANG THE JURY

Excerpted from THE SPOTLIGHT, 6/16/97, [quoting:]

In 1995, Laura Kriho was seated on a jury in a Colorado drug case. She held out for acquittal. Her fellow jurors told the court Miss Kriho said she questioned the validity of drug laws. The judge declared a mistrial and charged the juror with "perjury", "disobedience to an order of the court", and "obstruction of justice". Miss Kriho was denied a jury trial and not permitted to subpoena important witnesses, like the judge and prosecutor. She was convicted of the obstruction charge. "She was found guilty of the newly minted offense of 'not volunteering information which she knows the courts and attorneys would have wanted to know,'" said her attorney. [End quoting]

Making laws from the bench is the prerogative of any judge today, since they no longer give heed to the Constitution—and it won't change until we get together and change the situation. They are picking us off one by one.

RECYCLED TOXICS DISCOVERED IN FERTILIZERS

Excerpted from THE DAILY NEWS, Los Angeles, 7/7/97, [quoting:]

Toxic heavy metals, chemicals and radioactive wastes are being recycled as fertilizer and spread over farmers' fields nationwide—and there is no federal law requiring that they be listed as ingredients, The Seattle Times reported.

The issue came to light in the central Washington town of Quincy, population 4,000, when mayor Patty Martin led an investigation by local farmers concerned about poor yields and sickly cattle.

"It's really unbelievable what's happening, but it's true," Martin told the newspaper, which published a two-part series about the practice last week.

Until now, the state Department of Agriculture sampled fertilizers only to see if they contained advertised levels of beneficial substances.

But the state is testing a cross-section of fertilizer products to see if they threaten crops, livestock or people, the Seattle Post-Intelligencer reported Friday.

"The key question is what toxics are, as it were, along-for-the-ride in fertilizers," said Tom Fitzsimmons, director of the state Department of Ecology.

Use of industrial waste as a fertilizer ingredient is a growing national phenomenon, The Times reported.

In Gore, Okla., a uranium-processing plant gets rid of low-level radioactive waste by licensing it as a liquid fertilizer and spraying it over 9,000 acres of grazing land.

The Bilderberg Group criticized French President Jaques Chirac (left) and German Chancellor Helmut Kohl (right) for not giving up more sovereignty.

At Camas, Wash. lead-laced waste from a pulp mill is hauled to farms and spread over crops destined for livestock feed.

In Moxee City, Wash. dark powder from two Oregon steel mills is poured from rail cars into silos at Bay Zinc Co. under a federal hazardous waste storage permit. Then it is emptied from the silos for use as fertilizer. The newspaper called the powder a toxic byproduct of steel-making but did not identify it.

"When it goes into our silo, it's a hazardous waste," said Bay Zinc's president, Dick Camp. "When it comes out of the silo, it's no longer regulated. The exact same material."

Federal and state governments encourage the recycling, which saves money for industry and conserves space in hazardous-waste landfills [and helps them to feed new patients to the doctors—many of whom are of the Elite—and feed their drug and medical corporations before helping them to depopulate the world].

The substances found in recycled fertilizers include cadmium, lead, arsenic, radioactive materials and dioxins, the Times reported. The wastes come from incineration of medical and municipal wastes, and from heavy industries including mining, smelting, cement kilns and wood products.

Mixed and handled correctly, some industrial wastes can help crops grow, but beneficial materials such as nitrogen and magnesium often are accompanied by dangerous heavy metals such as cadmium and lead, the Times said.

"Nowhere in the country has a law that says if certain levels of heavy metals are exceeded, it can't be a fertilizer," said Ali Kashani, who directs fertilizer regulation in Washington state.

Unlike many other industrialized nations, the United States does not regulate fertilizers. That makes it virtually impossible to figure out how much fertilizer contains recycled hazardous wastes. [End quoting]

The Elite plans are very devious in their methods of getting your money before killing you under their depopulation programs.

HELMSLEY TO SELL OFF $5 BILLION REAL ESTATE HOLDINGS

Excerpted from THE DAILY NEWS, Los Angeles, 6/19/97, [quoting:]

After a turbulent decade at the head of New York City's largest real estate empire, Leona Helmsley said Wednesday that she intended to sell most or perhaps all of the properties, valued at close to $4 billion.

The Helmsley empire, assembled over a lifetime by her now-deceased husband, Harry Helmsley, regarded as one of the shrewdest deal-makers in the real estate industry, includes 125 properties in several cities, concentrated most heavily in New York, where it includes dozens of Manhattan apartment houses, the Graybar Building and more than 10 other midtown office towers, hotels and an assortment of properties ranging from warehouses in Queens to lofts in Manhattan's garment district.

Helmsley's decision comes amid a bitter falling out with business associations of her husband, who died in January after a 10-year illness, during which he effectively retired and left the management of his holdings to his wife.

The timing of Wednesday's announcement may reflect a keen sense of market timing on the part of Helmsley, because investor interest in many of the properties held in the Helmsley portfolio is considered stronger than at any time since the early 1980s., particularly in New York City.

"She has plenty of money, and this is not a liquidation," said Benjamin Lambert, the chairman of Eastdil Realty Inc. who has been hired by Helmsley as broker and coordinator for the property sales. "But strong markets don't last forever, and I think we will be moving quickly."

Other real estate executives said Helmsley's announcement would provoke a torrent of offers, particularly from real estate investment trusts and Wall Street investment houses that have emerged over the past decade as the nation's most aggressive investors in large properties, superseding individual entrepreneurs of the past, like Helmsley.

Although the precise value of the holdings could not be determined, Lambert's firm estimated that all the Helmsley properties across the nation had a combined value of $5 billion. Other executives said that would make it one of the largest privately held real estate empires in the nation. [End quoting]

What a waste if she doesn't invest some of these funds into projects for truly helping humanity.

WOODY HE'S NO DOPE

Excerpted from THE DAILY NEWS, Los Angeles, 7/4/97, [quoting:]

Woody Harrelson and his mother, Diane, greet fans as they leave the courthouse in Irvine, Kentucky. A judge ruled in favor of the actor who argued that his arrest for planting four seeds of industrial-grade hemp was unconstitutional.

Hemp is related to marijuana but is not psychoactive. [End quoting]

An article was published in the News Desk a few months back about the extraordinary value of this type of hemp plant. This appears to be a small victory, but the Elite act as though they do not want this to be grown as a commercial crop in the U.S. I would guess they don't want to upset the status-quo-control of products this would replace. The Elite consistently prevent the introduction of better and cheaper products. [see pic-

SOME SERVICE

Excerpted from THE SPOTLIGHT, 6/16/97, [quoting:]

Nevadans are fed up with poor service from Wells Fargo Bank and they ain't going to take it any more. Once the banking institution gobbled up First Interstate Bancorp last year, the bank closed branches and cut jobs. The result was long lines and fleeing customers. For example, the state of Nevada pulled its $1.3 billion workers' compensation account. "The biggest issue was service," said Nevada Treasurer Bob Seale. "They are a legend in our state—long lines and poor service." [End quoting]

It's about time people start protesting with their pocketbooks. If enough would stick together we could change the world with this method alone.

SENATOR WANTS TO END EXTRA ATM CHARGES

Excerpted from THE ORLANDO SENTINEL, 4/2/97, [quoting:]

Angered by rising ATM fees, the chairman of the Senate Banking Committee said Tuesday He'll renew his push to ban extra charges for consumers who use cash machines not owned by their banks.

A consumer group released a survey showing the number of automated teller machines that levy such charges has nearly doubled to 45 percent in the past six months.

At the same time, the average cost of the surcharges is up, with big banks likely to charge more for the service than small banks, the U.S. Public Interest Research Group said in its report. Tuesday was the first anniversary of the decision by the nation's two largest ATM networks, Plus and Cirrus, to allow machine owners to charge a second fee.

The surcharges, which are paid to the bank operating the ATM, come on top of fees many customers pay to their own banks when they use another bank's machine.

"More and more consumers are now forced to pay

Associated Press

twice for the privilege of gaining access to their own money. That's outrageous," said Sen. Alfonse D'Amato, R-N.Y., chairman of the Senate Banking Committee. [End quoting]

When the banks saved money by taking away tellers and replacing them with machines, they felt that they should put all of it into their pockets. Now they think they should be rewarded by putting in machines as replacements and charging you—in some cases double—for what you had been given as a service without extra charge. They complain about robbers??

This to me looks like the bankers are the robbers, and pretty slick ones at that, since it is legal.

THE $16-BILLION-PER-YEAR DRUG WAR—AND RISING

From THE WASHINGTON POST NATIONAL WEEKLY, 7/2/97, [quoting:]

"The drug war is the number one growth industry in federal funding, but we've spent most of the money on a policy that basically doesn't work." [all emphasis mine in this article] says Mathea Falco, former assistant secretary of State for international narcotics matters in the Carter administration and now president of Drug Strategies.

The old joke around the DEA went like this: What happens when you place three police dogs in a room with a gun and drugs? The DEA-trained dog comes out with the drugs, the dog trained by the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms (ATF) comes out with the gun, and the FBI-trained dog holds a press conference to announce, "The FBI has seized a gun and a kilo of drugs."

The DEA's critics argued that it was narrowly focused on short-term results, piling up impressive arrest and seizure numbers while making little dent in the big-time-criminal organizations behind the trade. "It was all buy and bust with the DEA," says Daniel F. Rinzel, former chief Republican counsel. "They lacked long-term strategic planning and intelligence. And there was a huge amount of wasted energy and internecine warfare."

Jim Moody moved from combating organized crime to helping oversee the FBI's narcotics work in the mid-1980s. He found the contrast dramatic. "I came from a very disciplined, targeted thing and here's everybody running all over the countryside seizing drugs," he says. "As an investigator it's a lot of fun. You get immediate gratification. But in the overall scheme of things you're not accomplishing very much."

FBI leaders contended that their focus was on destroying underlying structures of drug enterprises rather than merely arresting members and seizing drugs. But DEA agents complained that the bureau was deliberately tracking over the same drug intelligence, informants and cases. Senate investigators accused both agencies of letting their rivalry interfere with gathering long-term, strategic drug intelligence... [End quoting]

The drug war is the number one growth industry because the Elite are pulling a very big scam by telling you they are fighting the drug dealers when in reality they are having you pay them to fight off their competitors and tightening their monopoly on the drug trade. Competitors always try to arise when there are billions and billions of dollars to be made.

The DEA fails to make much dent in the big-time crime organizations because the Elite are the big-time crime organizations and you certainly wouldn't expect them to purposefully do themselves in—would you?

The Elite—not the DEA—are the ones who make the plans and the DEA, FBI and the ATF are nothing but the puppets that carry out the long-term plans, which are to protect the Elite from being uncovered as the ringleaders of the worldwide drug scam.

Wouldn't it be a safe bet to say probably most of the seized drugs are put back on the market? Thus they can collect the funds, the fines, the expropriation of properties, and the cash from their sales of the seized drugs. What a jackpot that can turn out to be.

The Elite have been getting away with this scam for centuries and it's time we do something to stop it.

OTTAWA INVESTS IN CANCER PROJECT

Excerpted from THE TORONTO STAR, 6/26/97, [quoting:]

The federal government is joining with a multinational drug manufacturer in North York to invest in a $350 million cancer vaccine project.

The project—described by Prime Minister Jean Chrétien as the largest biotechnology investment ever made in Canada—will create 300 new jobs in the Greater Toronto Area (GTA).

Chrétien's government is pumping $60 million into the Pasteur Merieux Connaught Canada venture and expects to recoup the money and to share in the multi-billion-dollar profits once the 10-year project is complete and sales begin.

"It's an investment in the future," Chrétien said yesterday after making the announcement at company headquarters in North York.

"It is an investment we are making with a group of people who have been successful and are determined to be successful in the future."

The firm is a subsidiary of Pasteur Merieux Serums et Vaccins of France, a world leader in the development and manufacture of vaccines, used to inoculate more than 400 million people each year throughout the world. In addition to the 300 new jobs in the GTA, the project is expected to create 250 spin-off jobs at research centres, hospitals, universities and small- and medium-sized businesses throughout the country.

The research aims to develop a series of vaccines to treat bladder, lung, prostate, cervical, breast, ovarian, colon and skin cancer, which together account for two-thirds of all cancer cases in Canada.

"This is not only an investment in cancer research but is an investment in Canada, in high-skilled jobs, in the development of products and technologies which will go on to be used in many other fields of endeavor," Bertrand said. [When the Mafia—excuse me, the government—is allowed to invest in drugs—excuse me, vaccines—you can be sure they'll make laws to force you to use them—on a regular basis (boosters)—and then they'll make more money from the treatment you will need for the diseases—excuse me, side effects—of planted bugs in the vaccines. AND AGAIN MORE MONEY FOR BURYING YOU—AS PART OF THE DEPOPULATION PLAN.]

Industry Minister John Manley called the project "good for Toronto" and "very good for Canada". [End quoting]

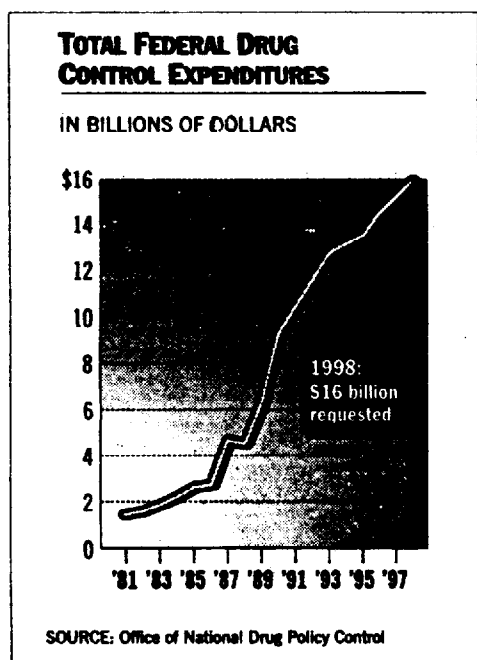

From the tone of this article it sounds as though the priority is not to help cancer patients as much as it is to cook up another big moneymaking scam!

At the same time—knowing what we know about the New World Order bunch and their vaccines—it appears that millions of innocent people will become sickly and dead from all of the vaccines they will be mandated to take.

In another article in the paper it stated (paraphrasing) that they were "doctoring" the whooping cough vaccine to boost the resistance to the disease and reduce side-effects from the shots.

Remember the Elite's goal of reducing the world's population by billions in the next several years?

I'll leave it to your imagination to decide what they really did to that whooping cough vaccine.

WIRELESS AT HOME

From POPULAR SCIENCE magazine, June 97, [quoting:]

AT&T is developing a technology that may allow you to use the same phone at home and on the road. At the core of Project Angel is a transceiver, about the size of a pizza box, that is attached to the side of your house. The transceiver is linked wirelessly (using the 10MHz band) to larger neighborhood antennas that can service as many as 2,000 customers each. This antenna is connected to a digital switching center that routes your call.

The technology is expected to be available in two years; each customer will initially have two phone lines and the capability for Internet access at a very fast 128,000 bits per second. Existing touch-tone phones can still be used with this service. Mobile phones can be used as in-house extensions, giving them extra versatility. Or you can dispense with the wired phone and simply use wireless for both home and travel.

This "fixed wireless" system was actually being developed by McCaw Cellular Communications prior to AT&T's takeover. It wasn't until after the acquisition that AT&T knew of its existence. This technology is expected to give AT&T a competitive edge in the battle for providing local service. AT&T says it is now working on techniques that will greatly increase the capacity of the 10MHz spectrum and make it as fast as fiber-optic delivery. During the past two years, AT&T has quietly acquired through FCC auctions the licenses in the 10MHz spectrum it needs to provide service to 93 percent of the country. [End quoting]

The service will be a useful upgrade for many, but they'll probably price it beyond most people's pocket-books.

NOW PROZAC FOR TEENAGE DEPRESSION

Excerpted from THE TAMPA TRIBUNE, 7/7/97, [quoting:]

Warning: Prozac, a widely used antidepressant for adults, is about to be approved for use by children.

Eli Lilly & Co., the drug's manufacturer, is expected to win FDA approval this summer to begin marketing the drug as a treatment for depression in preteens and teens.

The drug has been on the market for a decade and is sometimes prescribed for youngsters, but approval will mean the first media blitz to encourage its use among 8- to 15-year-olds who are going through perhaps the most difficult years of growing up.

Though Prozac has worked wonders in some patients and will undoubtedly help children who need something more than life has provided thus far, physicians and parents should approach its availability with caution and skepticism.

The drug, which affects the brain chemical serotonin, can alter moods and significantly affect behavior—not always in a positive way. Each child's case must be decided on an individual basis.

Critics fear overuse of the drug—much like what happened with Ritalin, the so-called miracle drug that gained popularity in the 1980s to treat hyperactivity in boys and girls. Now comes Prozac, another highly touted drug that reportedly can change a depressed and anxious child into a happy-go-lucky, cheerful student over time.

And then again, perhaps not. Depression, a serious but little-understood disease among a significant portion of adults, is even less understood in children. Doctors know that clinical depression in adults goes beyond feelings of sadness and temporary discomfort with social conditions. In kids, the diagnosis is often less certain.

School, shyness, an unhappy family situation and difficult relationships with other youngsters can cause distress. Having the wrong clothes, an imperfect haircut or a poor test grade has been known to send kids' moods into a tailspin. Pouting is a way of life for some youngsters, particularly among those who have learned that the quickest way to get what they want is by acting ornery. It's not unusual for teens to be sullen.

Prozac may indeed be the answer for some. But parents struggling to cope with the difficult teen years must guard against opting for a quick fix or an easy out provided by a formidable prescription medicine. Anyhow, the best antidote for teenage woes is the passage of time. [End quoting]

Taking the easy way out will only make matters worse in the future. Our drug culture tells us there's a pill for every problem, but many times the only problem it solves is the greed for more money by the medical and drug professionals.

It would be very wise to check very closely into the pros and cons of this particular drug before you allow your children to take it.

ANGEL HERE, ANGEL THERE

One night when my son, Marten, was two he became very excited while flipping through his older sister's book. He jumped up and ran over to me with it open. "Angel!" he said, pointing to a picture of one with big, beautiful wings. I was flabbergasted. We had never talked about angels before. "How do you know what this is?" I asked him. "Who told you?" His eyes lit up and he went to the window and pointed to a tree in our yard. "Angel there," he said. "You saw an angel in the tree?" I asked. He nodded. "When? Today?" He nodded again. "My angel," he said. I pulled Marten close and gave him a big hug. He is four years old now and still talks about the angel he saw in our backyard. I make sure he plays out there often. —Marian Dukes, Atlanta, Georgia [End quoting]

It's nice to know that some people pay attention to what their babies and children have to say. Remember the biblical phrase (paraphrasing) "Out of the mouths of babes..."

It pays to listen to your children. God often uses them to bring very important messages.

THE DIVINE PROPORTION

The Divine Proportion, also called the Golden Mean or the Golden Section, is the division of a length so that the smaller part is to the greater part as the greater part is the whole. In algebra this is expressed as

which will always equal approximately 0.618 (we say approximately because it is an irrational number, the decimal places never end). This number 0.618 is called the Golden Number. For quick figuring such as graphing and designing artwork, 5/8 is often used (which equals .625).

The Fibonacci series of numbers is:
0, 1, 1, 2, 3, 5, 8, 13, 21, 34, 55, 89, 144, 233, 377, 610, 987, 1597, 2584,

Note that each number is the sum of the two numbers to the left of it. If we subdivide a rectangle into a square and rectangle using these ratios, and continue subdividing the newly obtained rectangle into a square and a rectangle, and construct a circular arc so that the center of each circular arc is a vertex of the square, we can obtain the Golden Spiral:

Hoaxes And Holograms Our Electromagnetic Universe Part II

Editor's note: Part I was printed in last week's CONTACT on p.11; we continue here with Part II of this 3-part series.

VIRTUAL IS VIRTUE, VIRTUALLY

Virtual reality is a different type of reality. What is going on around you is what we call reality. What you see on your TV screen appears to be real, but is not. It is a type of virtual reality.

A virtual particle from the vacuum is different from what we call a "real" particle, one that we think has mass, can be measured, etc. The virtual particle is just as real, but it is a type of reality that we do not usually think about. Thoughts, for instance, are not "real" in the sense of the physical world; they cannot be weighed, measured, seen, smelled, felt, etc., but you will understand that, nevertheless, thoughts are very real, but they are a type of virtual reality.

Physicists are learning that what we call empty space, the vacuum, or ether, etc., actually is the source of waves which divide the vacuum into sexed pairs of concentrated and decentrated waves. These waves, vibrating at various frequencies and interference patterns and forming holograms (or formed from holograms), are the source of all that we call reality, all that we call existence.

God begins His creation with a Thought. The Thought of God begins the creation by creating (in the vacuum) compressed pairs of concentrated/decentrated waves. The waves create virtual particles, which can be understood to be waves or particles or both because they are originally neither. As they become manifest, we call these particles/waves, "photons".

Photons are energy packets out of the stillness of the vacuum. Once the stillness of empty space "moves" (pulses), the "movement" being caused by the thinking of God, waves of virtual potential are created which "pop" out of the vacuum into what we call "reality". The thinking of God creates an unlimited omniverse of virtual photons, called Light. We have the sensory organs to "see" only a small range of these frequency waves, what we normally call light, but in a greater sense Light includes all the frequencies/waves, such as sound vibrations, radio waves, X-rays, Cosmic rays/waves, etc., and the waves that create what we call mass or matter. The frequency of the original Light photon units has been thought to be perhaps on the order of thirty trillion per second and the frequency of their original source is zero or stillness!

The frequencies and wave patterns of this virtual particle flux (Flux: the river of energy [virtual photons and particles] filling what we call the vacuum or ether) interact and interfere with each other to create by concentration what we call mass or matter. The different frequencies create different matter such as argon, carbon, lead, or gold.

There are patterns to these frequencies. The basic patterns create what we call atoms. The patterns are arranged in harmonics of octaves. There are believed to be ten octaves by some, nine octaves by others.

The pulsing frequency from the virtual or vacuum side of reality creates atoms, such as an atom of helium (atomic mass 4.0). As the frequency increases, the helium becomes lithium (atomic mass 7.03), then beryllium (9.1), then boron (11.0), then carbon (12.0), then nitrogen (14.04), then oxygen (16.0), then fluorine (19). This completes one cycle of the octave; in this case the helium cycle is the fifth octave wave.

The Mendeleev Table of the Elements as presented in the textbooks is wrong. The Table of Nature is actually arranged in a spiral.

The spiral in nature is illustrated in the spiral growth pattern of the nautilus sea shell. This is called the Golden Section ratio in art, and in math is known as a graph of the Fibonacci number series.

The chaos of the random virtual particle flux, also known as the vacuum of space is ordered by the Mind of God into a basic pattern known as the Fibonacci spiral. Everything else that exists is created from this basic spiral pattern. All of Creation is wave frequency/frequencies. All of Creation is in spirals.

These harmonics and cycles are fundamental in nature. We see cycles all around us. We are familiar with the cycles of time (day and night, months, years, hours). In economics, these are the cycles of Fibonacci and Elliott Waves. The Fibonacci series (Golden Series) is manifest throughout nature. Fibonacci learned about the numbers from studying the reproduction of rabbits. Many plants have branches that divide according to Fibonacci numbers. The leaves on perhaps 90% of plants are arranged according to Fibonacci numbers (the Golden Spiral). The lily and iris have 3 petals per flower; the buttercup, wild rose, larkspur, and columbine have 5; delphiniums have 8 petals; ragwort, corn marigold, and cineraria have 13 petals; aster, black-eyed susan, and chicory have 21; pliantain and pyrethrum have 34; and michelmas daisies have 89 petals, all Fibonacci numbers. The seeds in seed heads are often arranged according to Fibonacci spirals (such as in the Sunflower). Each seed is phi (0.168) of a turn from the last one (or, there are Phi [1.618] seeds per turn).

Pine cones show the same pattern arrangement.

The arrangement of the leaves around the stem on many plants shows Fibonacci numbers. If you look down on a plant, you will see that the leaves are arranged so that the leaf underneath is offset so that the one above does not block all the sun and rain, and if you count the leaves going around the plant until you get to the next leaf that is directly underneath the first, you find Fibonacci numbers. Some will have 3 clockwise rotations before we meet a leaf directly above the first, passing 5 leaves along the way. Or anti-clockwise, we need only 2 turns. Or there might be 5 clockwise rotations passing 8 leaves, or 3 rotations in the anti-clockwise direction. We could write this as 3/5 clockwise rotations per leaf (or 2/5 anti-clockwise) for the first plant and 5/8 of a turn per leaf for the second plant (3/8 anti-clockwise).

The number of leaves per turn on elm, linden, lime and grasses is 1/2; for beech, hazel, other grasses, and blackberry it is 1/3; oak, cherry, apple, holly, and plum are 2/5; poplar, rose, pear, and willow are 3/8; and pussy willow and almond are 5/13, all Fibonacci numbers.

In art, this number series is expressed as the Golden Section and is used to design frames for our certificates and pictures. The Greeks used this in designing their buildings, such as the Parthenon, and modern buildings such as the United Nations Building use this Golden Ratio.

The Universe (there is more than one universe, depending on definitions) is a light-wave holographic universe created by mind. Fred Alan Wolf in Space-Time and Beyond says: "The physical universe does not exist independent of the thought of the participators. What we call reality is constructed by the mind." (Did you read The Holographic Universe, as I recommended in the last Worldline?)

We live in a holographic universe. What we call real is a holographic image. What we call "unreal", or "nothing", is the REAL reality. Nobel Laureate E. Wigner wrote in 1967: "The recognition that physical objects and spiritual values have a very similar kind of reality has contributed in some measure to my mental peace...at any rate, it is the only known point of view which is consistent with quantum mechanics" (Symmetries and Reflections, Indiana University Press, Bloomington, p. 192).

"The doctrine that the world is made up of objects whose existence is independent of human consciousness turns out to be in conflict with quantum mechanics and with facts established by experiment" (Bernard D'Espagnat, "The Quantum Theory and Reality," Scientific American, November 1979, p. 158).

Fred Alan Wolf (Ph.D. in theoretical physics, 1963) says that space is a construct of thought, all the universe can be contained in a point smaller than the period at the end of this sentence. The whole of the universe, all knowledge and all power, is contained within each individual and thing. "Matter may be nothing but gravitationally trapped light."

In a vacuum tube (the universe), electricity is transmitted from a filament (your Mind, You) to a plate. When it strikes the plate, photons bounce or reflect off, creating light. That light reflection creates what we call reality, but it is not us, it is not you or me; it is only a reflection of our thoughts. If we change our thoughts, we change "reality". The possibilities here are UNLIMITED, if we can figure out how to actually do it.

The vibrating waves create all we call physical reality. We feel certain waves with our eyes and call them visible light. We feel other vibrations with our ears and call it sound. We feel some waves with our skin or our nose or our sense of taste. We are sensing beings who are sensing a hologram that is like a picture on a moving picture screen, it is not real. If you flip a switch, the picture disappears. In reality, nothing in the universe moves, not matter, not spirit. I do not understand it, either. I am just bringing to your attention what others of more understanding are saying. Since we live in a perceived moving universe of matter, for now I am merely trying to come to a better understanding of it. (I find that if I state what is exactly true, it will make very little or no sense at all, and if I state what has a chance of making some sense, it will not be totally correct.) The Source divides His thinking into pairs of opposites (although the Source is not His or Her: what would you call "It"?), but the Source is not the thinking and the Source is not two, but One. I will simply do the best I can for now from my own learning experience and share with you and go from there.

The Source Mind is also called God. The Mind vibrates the ether or vacuum and creates pulsed waves of compression and expansion. All order and life is the result of compression and heat which produce invisible and visible light, which then radiates back into expansion and disorder and into the stillness and cold of death, which is then agitated and compressed back into order and life and the cycle continues unendingly. Thought and effort and concentration creates life and all that is, while rest and expansion and radiation is the opposite side of the cycle. All is light expressed electromagnetically.

Desire is the cause of all motion. An unmoving Idea creates Desire in Mind which is expressed electrically by projecting the unmoving One Light of Mind two ways to create the two electrically opposite waves of (apparent) motion in the brain of a human, or in the apparent "vacuum" of space. The light waves mix and create mass or matter, such as for instance, iron. A piece of iron is a piece of light. If you heat iron, it begins to release some of its light and begins to glow in various colors. A piece of carbon has/is a different mixture of light, and a scientist, using a spectrometer, can tell from the glow of light what element the light pattern represents.

The Earth and all on it are a motion picture, projected from the Sun! If the Sun were suddenly switched off, the Earth would disappear! In a sense, the Sun is our creator, just as all of the more developed ancient philosophies have stated. The ancient Egyptians called the Sun Aton, or Hatonn with a beginning and ending silent "h" and "n." Even the ancient Egyptians may not have understood fully and the historians probably misunderstood and misrepresented what they described of the Egyptians. The nightless Sun is a lens focus of God's Light. The Sun divides the light and creates planets which divide day and night.

The form of the dividing light wave is most often represented on a graph as a two-dimensional S or Sine wave. This is misleading, as the actual form of the basic universal wave is a 3- or 4-dimensional spiral.

WHAT IS THE ULTIMATE PARTICLE?

For some time, the atom was considered to be the ultimate particle. Then the concept was developed of an atom consisting of electrons flying around a proton-and-neutron core. Then even more "ultimate" particles were "discovered": baryons, leptons, hadrons, photons, mesons, positrons, muons, pions, gravitons, kaons. And there are the charming quarks copied from James Joyce's Finnegan's Wake. Is there no end?

In my opinion, the real ultimate particle is the peon. The peon is the one that does all the work.

Seriously, I have felt for many years that there is no such thing as an "ultimate particle". The more I learn, the more I am convinced this is so. Someone comes up with an idea of an "ultimate" particle, and if enough accept it, that makes it real. Some particles were originally conceived as jokes, but scientists started accepting them, and now they are mostly accepted as real. I suppose if enough people accept Santa Claus, that makes him real.

Humans, being somewhat creative beings, "create" the "ultimate particle". Then along comes another scientist who proposes a more ultimate particle. If enough accept it, it becomes accepted as real. "My ultimate particle is more ultimate than your ultimate particle."

The whole concept is WRONG! The concept of the Bohr/Rutherford atom with a solid core and electrons flying around is wrong. Everything in nature is a ring with a hole in it. The atom if you want to call it that consists of rings of force around a center zero-point axis which expands into a hole as the rings expand and decentrate. The tornado (or cyclone) is an example of spiraling rings of force around a still axis center.

HOW MUCH ENERGY IS IN THE VACUUM FLUX?

"Calculations of the energy density in the vacuum range to enormous values on the order of 1.0E100 grams per cubic centimeter, expressed in mass units. To convert this mass density to energy density, simply multiply by the square of the speed of light" (Tom Bearden, Background For Pursuing Scalar Electromagnetics, note 28). In my opinion, Bearden underestimates. I think we will find that if we pick a point in space, all the power in the universe is in that single point.

"When physicists calculate the minimum amount of energy a wave can possess, they find that every cubic centimeter of empty space contains more energy than the total energy of all the matter in the known universe!" (p. 51, The Holographic Universe, Michael Talbot). Talbot also said, "It [space] is full, a plenum as opposed to a vacuum, and is the ground for the existence of everything, including ourselves" (same page).

Ponder this: what if that single point we pick, that point that contains all the power of the universe, all the universe as a matter of fact and thus all the knowledge of the universe—what if that point we pick is inside our mind?

Another quote from Talbott: "In other words, despite its apparent materiality and enormous size, the universe does not exist in and of itself, but is the stepchild of something far vaster and more ineffable." Instead of "something", try substituting the word "God". Talbott may have had God in mind, for he comments on 1973 Nobel Prize in physics winner Brian Josephson's belief: "Josephson believes Bohm's implicate order may someday even lead to the inclusion of God or Mind within the framework of science, an idea Josephson supports."

Jack Barnes (PO Box 1135, Georgetown, TX 78627), a brilliant thinker with Quantum Spacetime Research of Georgetown, Texas, wrote a document which states: "This report exactly quantifies the Cosmos and each of its fundamental components. This requires nullification or modification of the theories of both Newton and Einstein. The mathematical content is minimal. The fundamental nature of the Cosmos is exceedingly simple and profusely interconnected. The Cosmos is holographic and formed from one singular Quantum and nothing else. The Zero-Point Energy of the Quantum is the fundamental energy of the Universe. The nonlocal Quantum of energy-time is omnipresent in spacetime which precludes the necessity for motion. Planck's Quantum = $g/2$ is the progeny of logic." He also says: "Very clearly the Universe is a system of elaborate design and never-ceasing change organized by an infinite intelligence beyond human concept. This intelligence is embedded within the singular nonlocal holographic Quantum and instantaneously accesses all spacetime and each subatomic particle within the Cosmos. Plurality, separation and motion are illusory and chimerical; the singular, motionless, omnipresent Quantum forms the sole reality. Physicality, materiality and multiplicity are pure illusion. All existence is flux, the only constant is change."

Barnes says that Cosmic spacetime and all matter continually fluctuates at a maximal frequency of c^4 (10^{42} Hz) from primary Quantum state to secondary physical state. He says that Quantum energy is the same as "consciousness." He says that the physical counterpart of the Quantum is the Photon. "Matter is simply solidified consciousness."

"Each cubic centimeter of empty space contains subtle quantum energy equal to the physical energy of many trillion (4×10^{54}) universes."

Although Barnes has some fascinating ideas, they are hampered by his acceptance of the Neils/Rutherford concept of the atom. The "atom" if you wish to call it that is actually pairs of rings around holes, not the electron/proton/neutron "solar system" as is taught by most science.

Richard Feynman in QED says of the Quantum theory: "...the theory describes all the phenomena of the physical world except the gravitational effect..." I will comment that they do not understand what gravity really is. Here is a hint. Gravity is everywhere. Therefore gravity does not move! (where would it move to?) which means gravity is perfect stillness. The mind of God is perfect stillness. Hmmm.

The vacuum of space, the zero-point, or whatever you want to call it, is actually MIND. It is the mind of God, and is our mind (which is a fragment of God's mind). The MIND creates the electromagnetic effects by creating wave vibrations, which control the physical and chemical processes such as the processes of cells. Every cell, and every atom, is a ring with a hole in it. Everything in the universe is a ring with a hole in it. If we cut the human body into sections, we find it is composed of rings around holes—the chest, the skull, the bones, arteries, heart, windpipe, nerves, cells. Trees consist of rings compressed around a central core, which expands outwardly and shows a hollow center as it ages. The Bohr-Rutherford concept of the atom consisting of electron particles flying around a heavy center core of protons and neutrons is wrong. Atoms are rings around holes.

The empty-space hole in the center of every atom and in the center of every cell is the MIND OF GOD. This is what is meant by the statements that God IS everything, God CENTERS everything, God is the SOURCE of everything, and God is IN YOU. The empty-space, unmoving vacuum is what the ancients call the Invisible White Light.

JOHANNES KEPLER

Johannes Kepler was a German astronomer born in 1571. He became professor of mathematics at Graz University in 1594. There he was forced to teach the Ptolemaic system that the Earth was the center of the solar system, while privately he was learning from Michael Maestlin the Copernicus heliocentric system (with the Sun the center of the solar system). In 1600 he had to leave Graz because of religious persecution and joined his friend Tycho von Brahe in Prague. A year later Brahe died, and Kepler was appointed to succeed him as court mathematician to the Emperor. He inherited from Brahe a wealth of astronomical information and developed what are now known as Kepler's laws of planetary motion.

In 1619 he published a book called De Harmonice Mundi. "It was in this work that Kepler proposed the mathematical concept of 'harmony' in the solar system, believing he had thus further extended his search for unification by marrying together intervals in the musical scale with the angular velocities of the planets" (Encyclopedia Britannica).

"Kepler found a relationship between the size of a planet's orbit and the time it takes to complete a circuit of the Sun. He also discovered relationships between the orbital speeds of the planets and the notes in a musical scale, developing a scheme of divine musical harmony which he published as Harmonices Mundi (Harmonies of the World) in 1619" (The Illustrated Encyclopedia of Astronomy And Space, Ian Ridpath, p. 104, emphasis mine). Everything in the universe is in octaves and harmonics of octaves.

What are the frequencies of the music scale? This question is not as simple as it seems. A musical scale that has the greatest possible number of harmonizing intervals is called the just, or true, diatonic scale. Here it is for the key of C:

LETTER	SYLLABLE	INTERVAL ABOVE MIDDLE C	FREQUENCY RATIO TO MIDDLE C	FREQUENCY IN Hz
C'	do	perfect octave	2:1	523.24
B	ti	major seventh	15:8	490.54
A	la	major sixth	5:3	436.03
G	sol	perfect fifth	3:2	392.43
F	fa	perfect fourth	4:3	348.82
E	mi	major third	5:4	327.02
D	re	major whole tone	9:8	294.32
C	do	unison	1	261.62

This scale cannot be used for musical instruments, such as a piano or organ, because the frequencies listed above for the key of C would not be in the correct ratios to each other for music played in any other key. So what is used now is called a tempered scale, in which the octave is divided into twelve semitones, each of which is 1.0595 times that of the next lower semitone.

The A above middle C is assigned the frequency of 440.00 Hz. In this scale the frequencies are:

middle C	261.62 Hz
C-Sharp	277.18
D	293.67
D-sharp	311.13
E	329.23
F	349.23
F-sharp	369.99
G	392.00
G-sharp	415.30
A	440.00
A-sharp	466.16
B	493.88
C'	523.25

The fundamental frequency of a vibrating string is inversely proportional to its length, or directly proportional to the reciprocal of its length.

The tuning scale has been changed and some opera houses use various tunings. They tune their scales based on the pitch of A and a few years ago Vienna was at A-450. Some opera houses have A-452, La Scala is at A-442, Florence is at A-448.

It has been determined that there are six species of the human singing voice: bass, baritone, tenor, contralto, alto, and soprano. At proper tunings, the voice fits harmoniously and easily with the physics of sound. But if the tuning is wrong, the singer has to sing out of his natural scale to complete the octave. The magazine Fidelio says that there is a conspiracy to destroy the science of musical composition, and since this is true in so many other areas—the powers that be keep changing the yardsticks and moving the boundary markers—I suspect this is also true in music. They even changed the frequency of the tuning forks. "Much effort has been made by the Venetian-led enemies of human knowledge to obscure, degrade, and destroy the science of musical composition" (p. 37, Fidelio, Winter 1995).

Guiseppe Verdi's operas used scientific tuning of A at 432. The A-432 tuning is ideal for voices. Verdi said "this A must be the A for opera." Maestro Carlo Bergonzi of the Metropolitan Opera and others said that "When I debuted, there were 100 tenors of the first rank and 100 of the second rank, and those of the second were better than the first rank tenors of today. What has changed? It's the tuning! In 1951, there were 200 great tenors. Today, there are two and one-half!"

"The effects of elevating the pitch of musical performances, from the vicinity of 430 cycles for A, to as high as 442-446, or, even higher, has been a leading factor in reducing the number of leading singers from hundreds, at the beginning of the period following World War II, to a few handfuls today. Like the Keplerian Solar System, or electron orbits of quantum microphysics, the orbits of the natural singing tones are fixed in a few predesignated, narrow band-passes, to such effect that elevating the pitch approximately a quarter of a tone above the central value of that band-pass has a destructive physiological effect upon the singing voice" (p. 28, Fidelio).

An article called "What Mathematics Can Learn From Classical Music" by Bruce Director in (Fidelio, Journal of Poetry, Science, and Statecraft, Winter 1995, p. 37) shows diagrams of the well-tempered system represented as divisions of a spiral. The magazine 21st Century, Fall 1995, p. 45, compares the similarities of the geometry of the solar system orbits with the registration of the human voice, also in a spiral.

A recent article in the Spring 1997 issue of 21st

Century magazine is entitled "The Keplerian Harmony of Planets and Their Moons". The first sentence is "Astrophysics is in turmoil." It points out that stars are being found that are 5 billion years older than the Big Bang, supposedly the beginning of the universe. It lists other problems that are confronting astrophysicists. It says that the positions of planets and moons in our solar system are supposed to be the result of mere accident, yet the solar system manifests a much higher degree of order than can be explained.

The article quotes Kepler's comment on the musical harmony of the solar system: "These therefore are the harmonies which are shared by each pair of planets. In their main relationships (that is, in the relationship between the motions at the convergent and divergent extremes [perihelion and aphelion, respectively]), there is not a pair of planets that would not come so close to a harmony that the ear, where strings tuned in a corresponding manner, could not easily distinguish the imperfection, except for that difference between Jupiter and Mars." He was indicating that there should be a planet between Jupiter and Mars to make his system of harmony complete. Later we learned that in fact there are the remains of a planet in that orbit. The Titius-Bode Rule in astronomy illustrates this harmony.

The article also has diagrams of spirals showing the moons of Neptune, Uranus, Jupiter, Saturn, and the positions of the outer and inner planets, all fitting barred spirals (the bar being the planetary diameter, from which the spiral begins, extended outward to intersect the spiral's turns). The NGC 1300 galaxy follows a barred spiral geometry. The table of the elements should be in a spiral; I wonder if it is a barred spiral?

Kepler investigated the angular velocities of the orbits of the planets. The angular velocity is the rate of change of an angle. Imagine a clock face with the hands straight up at noon. As the minute hand moves, an angle is formed at the center of the clock face by the minute hand and a line straight up to the 12. The minute hand rotates through 360° in one hour, which is the angular velocity, or six degrees in one minute. When Kepler measured the angular velocities of the planets, "astonishing musical harmonies emerged from this" (p. 36). These harmonies are charted in the following table:

APHELION-PERHELION HARMONIES
Proportions of angular velocities (A=aphelion, P=perihelion)
P (Venus)	:A (Mercury)	Two octaves	4.000	4.015
A (Earth)	:A (Venus)	Minor sixth	1.587	1.593
A (Mars)	:P (Earth)	Fifth	1.498	1.502
A (Ceres)	:A (Mars)	Octave & major third	2.520	2.521
P (Ceres)	:P (Mars)	Octave & minor third	2.378	2.379
A (Jupiter)	:P (Ceres)	Octave	2.000	2.001
P (Saturn)	:P (Jupiter)	Octave & major third	2.520	2.518
A (Neptune)	:A (Uranus)	Octave & half tone	2.119	2.121
A (Neptune)	:A (Pluto)	Whole tone	1.122	1.122

The article continues: "The orbits of the moons and the planets thus seem to obey certain quantization rules, and manifest harmonic proportions in relation to each other" (p. 36). The article points out that, contrary to Newtonian gravity laws, the orbits of the moons are NOT determined by the masses of their planets.

On page 39 under the heading "Resonances and the Fibonacci Series," it states: "A striking peculiarity in the motions of known solar system bodies—whether planets, moons, asteroids, or rings—is the surprising abundance of resonances." The article explains the resonances and charts them, showing that they fit the Fibonacci numbers.

The book The Cosmic Octave, Origin of Harmony by Cousto says that there are 86,400 seconds in a day (24 x 60 x 60) which raised to the 25th octave (2²⁵) is 33554432. It says that 1/86400 times 33554432 equals a G note of 388.36 Hz, which he says is the harmonic frequency of the solar day. The G note is the sol (as in fa sol la ti do). Sol as in solar? What a coincidence. The A note in this scale would be 435.92 Hz (Hertz is cycles per second, and a second is 1/86400th part of a day). "The original Parisian standard pitch tuning fork (Diapason normal) was made by Lissajous and had 435.4 Hz. This pitch was introduced by the French government in 1859 in cooperation with musicians such as Hector Berlioz, Meyerbeer and Rossini" (p. 98). The pitch of A was fixed at 440 Hz at the Second International Standard Pitch Conference in London in 1939, thus bringing it out of the natural Earth harmony. The author shows that the reciprocal of 86400 raised to the 65th octave is the wavelength of the visible light color red-orange, 0.702 micrometer, and states: "It is noteworthy in this context that the carrier of the hereditary substance DNA (Deoxyribonucleic acid), of which chromosomes consist, has a maximum of resonance at 0.351 micrometer (according to Popp, University of Marburg). 0.351 micrometer is precisely half the wavelength of the color of the day, 0.702 micrometer. The hereditary substance of man has a maximum of resonance which coincides with the 66th octave of the average solar day...."

WHAT IS THE SOURCE OF OUR MEASUREMENT SYSTEMS?

Currently we use a metric system, but originally we used a system based on the numbers 6 and 12 (which is 2 x 6). Each digit has a name—one, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight, nine, ten, eleven, twelve, then we continue by combining names—thirteen (three and ten), four-teen (four and ten), etc. Our original numbering system was not decimal (based on ten, from counting our fingers so we were taught in school), not binary (which is what computers use), not octal nor hexadecimal (which is what computer programmers use), but ours was sexagesimal, based on six.

The original calendar was a year of 360 (60 x 6) days, 12 (2 x 6) months of 30 (5 x 6) days each. The days are divided into 12 or 24 hours, 60 minutes in an hour, 60 seconds in a minute. A cubit was 30 fingers. The cord was 120 cubits or 3600 fingers. The league was 180 cords. The foot is 12 inches. There are 3 feet in a yard. We buy eggs by the dozen or by the gross (12 x 12). The smallest unit of weight was the grain, the shekel was 180 grains (3 x 60), and the talent was 3600 shekels. The troy ounce is 480 (80 x 6) grains and 12 troy ounces per troy pound (called troy because it traces back to ancient Troy, and they got it from Egypt and Babylon). Pure gold is 24 (4 x 6) karats; fine gold jewelry is 18 (3 x 6) karats.

We inherited our numbering system from ancient Babylon, which used a base 60 system. We count one hundred, two hundred, three hundred, they counted one sixty, two sixties, three sixties, etc. In the Babylonian system, all fractions were represented by one number, because they were all an exact number of sixtieths. In decimal, we have to round off 1/3, 1/4, or 1/6 but the Babylonian system did not have that inconvenience for the common fractions. We still use the Babylonian system in geometry and trigonometry. Zecharia Sitchin has written a series of books whose theme is that our numbering system and much else was given to us by extraterrestrials.

"Take your finger out of your ear and listen to me."

Was July 4 Mars Landing Fake Or Facade?

As Art Bell began his program, it was almost as if high-level N.A.S.A. officials knew that Richard Hoagland was about to say it was all TOO perfect. An announcement was made that there was a small communications problem between the Pathfinder lander and the Sojourner rover. This, if nothing else, added an air of believability to N.A.S.A.'s story. Officials expressed confidence they would solve the problem, but acknowledged that the mission's science objectives would be seriously threatened by it. And just like some prefabricated "success" story, they solved the problem the very next day.

Art began by saying the landing "was a beautiful thing to watch". Richard said, "My heart wants to believe that this is what everyone thinks it is. (But) the numbers, the data, the science, the calculations, the efforts of the last 15 years, tell me there is something radically wrong with this picture." It was all just TOO perfect. He also said, "If I heard (the words) astonishing and superlative once (today), I heard it a hundred times from all different people in the mission."

Richard Hoagland pointed out that, at the time of the landing on Mars, the Earth appeared at less than 5 degrees of angle above the Martian horizon, which is very low for radio communications. He contends that, when the Pathfinder landed on the rolling terrain, the Earth would then have been behind one of the hills we and carried out to present to the public a major media event they would not soon forget. But was this just a slick cover story for something else that N.A.S.A. was REALLY undertaking on Mars?

Listeners to Art Bell's late-night talk-radio program might be familiar with a now-regular guest to his show, Richard Hoagland. Richard's credentials would appear to make him more qualified to be telling us about Mars than the mostly rather young-looking persons we are now listening to from N.A.S.A. A partial list of his impressive scientific accomplishments includes: recipient of the Angstrom Medal for Excellence in Science, 1993; former Science Advisor to Walter Cronkite and CBS News; science contributor to magazines such as OMNI, ANALOG and SCIENCE DIGEST; consultant to N.A.S.A.'s Goddard Space Flight Center from 1975 to 1980; organizer of the Independent Mars Investigation (1984) and the Mars Investigation Group (1986) and The Mars Mission (1988); Author of The Monuments Of Mars: A City On The Edge Of Forever; former Curator of Astronomy and Space Science at the Springfield Museum of Science in Massachusetts; etc., etc.

So, why doesn't N.A.S.A. have Mr. Hoagland report on Mars? For one reason, they cannot control him! He calls it as he sees it. So we get N.A.S.A. preppies. Richard has, for some time now, been pointing out and exposing major inconsistencies in what N.A.S.A. says it is doing as opposed to what appears to really be going on in outer space. Many listeners to Art Bell's program no doubt eagerly awaited the 10 o'clock p.m. starting hour on the 4th to hear what might be said.

As the show got underway, Art was predictably excited about what he had been watching on TV earlier that day, which displayed N.A.S.A.'s great apparent achievement. Of course, he had as his guest Richard Hoagland, who was about to take some of the wind out of Art's sails.

Richard had been torn all day because one part of him wanted to enjoy the thrill he himself had experienced in the same auditorium at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory (J.P.L.) in Pasadena, California, back on July 20, 1976, when he was there watching the unmanned Viking Mars mission. But something was gnawing at him inside, saying that this time it was all just TOO slick and TOO flawless to be real. Besides, Richard has recently been studying all available information from N.A.S.A., which led him to believe the Pathfinder was not likely to actually touch down until July 20th, and would land at a far distant area on Mars—namely, in the region known as Cydonia.

Richard does not necessarily believe that the N.A.S.A. officials we saw on TV were directly aware of any kind of cover-up of the truth. They were simply puppets who truly believed that the information they were presenting to the American public and the world was indeed factual and spectacular. However, later on in this report I will mention several NASA scientists and project leaders who met with curious and untimely deaths recently. This is, of course, one effective way to make sure those who won't "play the part" get weeded from the playing field.

were shown; yet what we were shown on television was that N.A.S.A. never lost contact with the lander! Richard asked, "So how come we heard its signal all the way through to the landing...? They never lost communication once.... According to the radio engineer in charge of the communications system, he was astonished." Donna Shirley, the Mars program manager at N.A.S.A., reported on CNN, at the very time the parachutes were being deployed, that it would be incredibly unlikely that they would have communication all the way to the ground, but they did (supposedly).

The tetrahedral lander could have landed on one of its four sides. It landed on its base. Richard argued that there was a 25% [actually, 20%] chance that that could happen, if you're lucky. "But we got lucky so many times today (on the 4th) that even the engineers involved in the project ran out of superlatives for how lucky they got." But let's move ahead now to some really controversial, and then deadly, information.

N.A.S.A. had rescheduled a course correction for the Mars mission from June 24th to the 25th. Then, on the morning of the 25th, we were told that the Russian MIR space station was involved in a collision with a resupply vehicle, almost killing three cosmonautsastronauts. Attention was understandably (and maybe conveniently?) then focused totally on the fate of MIR, and none of the public was paying any attention to Pathfinder.

For 36 hours, no information of any kind was forthcoming from N.A.S.A. about the Pathfinder course correction. Art Bell acknowledged that the N.A.S.A. Website dried up during that time. It was supposed to be only a slight correction of a few degrees, requiring a very short burn time. However, the fact is that the spacecraft was carrying 5 times (!?) the amount of fuel necessary for the mid-course correction. N.A.S.A.

would have us believe that one-half hour before entry into Martian airspace, the spacecraft disengaged its cruise module which contained the extra fuel. N.A.S.A. was throwing away 200 pounds of hydrazene which "they did not need and did not use".

Richard Hoagland believes that that fuel was possibly used for a very long-burn course correction, which would change the path of the spacecraft from one of moving toward Mars, to a path parallel with the planet's surface, making Pathfinder now orbit Mars, and that it was actually likely still in space on the night of the 4th as he was speaking to Art Bell. Hoagland's research suggests that it will land on July 20th in the region of Cydonia. Why Cydonia? We'll get to that soon.

Richard Hoagland disclosed on Art's program that he had been trying for the past 2 weeks (prior to the 4th) to follow-up on some very remarkable intelligence that came to him from Texas indicating that there is an alternative mission control center for this mission, hidden in the area of Dallas, Texas. It is reported that there is a facility near Dallas which is surrounded by a fence with double-edge razor wire, video cameras, and armed guards. This facility is so well guarded that, when one of Richard's associates tried to approach, they were already turned away by a guard while still several hundred feet from the area.

If information is being faked and sent to Mission Control in Houston to fool N.A.S.A. employees, the American public, and the world, then such a facility, in Dallas or somewhere, would be required to supply the data we are being shown by the ever-compliant media.

Now for some very disturbing information.

Richard reported that on the night of July 3rd, 1997, the son of a high-ranking N.A.S.A. Shuttle Chief named Brewster Shaw, from Houston, was killed. His bullet-riddled body was found stuffed in the trunk of his car at the bottom of a lake. Local police reported it was done by car-jackers. (Think about that one for a moment!)

On June 25th, 1997, the day of the supposed burn for the spacecraft mid-course correction, and the day of the MIR "accident", a Senior Program Director at N.A.S.A. Headquarters, Dr. Gergen Ray, was found dead near his home in Potomac, Maryland, under unusual circumstances. That one was hushed-up so quickly there is no further information on the circumstances.

A few days prior to that, a computer technician working on Pathfinder in Palo Alto, California, was found dead. His body was wedged between a tree and a fence in a very well-traveled, upper-class residential-shopping area near Stanford University. Officials in his case claim that he was beaten to death by gang members! How convenient.

And, the Program Manager for Mars Surveyor at N.A.S.A. Headquarters in Washington, Mary K. Olsen, went to J.P.L. in Pasadena a few months ago, and wound up in a hospital with a very strange and anomalous embolism, and died. She was only 35 years old!

Richard contends that the number of N.A.S.A. employees is not that great, and to now see so many of them suddenly dying violent deaths does not make sense, unless you weigh this against the lies N.A.S.A. has been foisting off on the public about their projects in space. Did the above-mentioned employees know too much that they were unwilling to keep quiet about? Were they threatening to expose N.A.S.A. secrets? As with the death of the Clintons' friend, Vincent Foster, we may never know.

Richard Hoagland suggests the possibility that what N.A.S.A. is showing us could be filmed anywhere on planet Earth. [And by the way, don't miss the inset "letter to the editor" printed in a recent issue of a major Canadian newspaper, on the next page, for a provocative possibility related to the above sentence.] He then made a plea to our intelligence: "Please, folks, listen carefully.... Part of this, to me, is an exercise in process, because I want people to really think about how we view and decide on reality.... You are looking at what people are claiming is from another planet.... We are now at the level of technology where that degree of faking is absolutely possible.... I want people to keep an open mind and continue to ask [the] hard questions."

COMPUTER ENHANCED ENLARGEMENT (Starburst Pixel Interleave Technique)

The most prominent feature depicts a rock formation which stands apart from all others and resembles a human face complete with eyes, nose, mouth and hairline. The formation is located at -41.0° latitude and 9.4° longitude and measures about 1 mile across. The "starburst" markings are a result of transmission noise coupled with the photo enlargement technique.

Art Bell then proceeded to take phone calls from listeners with questions for Richard Hoagland. The overwhelming majority of callers leaned toward believing that Richard was accurate in his presentation. It looks like more people are waking up all the time.

But what is so intriguing about the region of Cydonia, and why would N.A.S.A. (i.e., our government) not want us to know about a mission there? To answer this question we may need to go back to the 1972 Mariner 9 space probe.

The Nov.-Dec. 1980 issue of Frontiers of Science magazine, Vol. III, No. 1, ran an article about "Pyramids on Mars", by Francis Graham. The article begins, [quoting:]

There are pyramids on Mars. They were discovered in 1972 by the Mariner 9 space probe, which orbited Mars and completely reconnoitered the Martian surface by television.

The pyramids are located in the eastern part of the plateau of Elysium in the region known as Trivium Charontis. These pyramids are tetrahedral in shape, having the form of a three-sided pyramid, whereas the famous pyramids of Giza in Egypt are four-sided. Near the Martian pyramids are other rectangular-sided polygonal structures, resembling buildings. Altogether, at least ten structures are clearly seen in the area.

The most incredible thing about these pyramids is their colossal size. They are, at the largest, three thousand meters across at the base, and the added polygonal assemblies are six thousand meters in diameter. The largest of these pyramids is about a thousand meters tall, or five-eighths of a mile. The magnificent pyramids of Egypt are simply dwarfed by these behemoth counterparts. The "Great" Pyramid of Cheops is 480 feet high and 760 feet wide. The Martian pyramids are roughly ten times taller and ten times broader. They occupy a volume a thousand times greater. [End quoting]

But what is of even greater interest was discovered by a N.A.S.A. scientist on July 25th, 1976, when he was looking at a photograph transmitted by the Viking I Orbiter. He almost fell out of his chair as he gazed at what looked remarkably like a human face (see photo inset on p.10). It was photographed at an altitude of 1,162 miles above the Martian surface, near the mysterious pyramid-shaped structures. (See wide-angle photo inset on p. 11, and notice shadows of pyramids on left; face is on right.) The face is about one mile wide. All of this is in a region on Mars called Cydonia. Quite an interesting region, don't you think?

The N.A.S.A. photo (Frame 35A72) was routinely filed, until one year later when Vincent DiPietro, an electrical engineer at Goddard Space Flight Center, picked it up. DiPietro and Gregory Molenaar, a computer scientist at Goddard, developed a computer program for enlarging video images.

DiPietro and Molenaar took their enhanced photos to a meeting of the American Astronomical Society at the University of Maryland in June of 1980. The reaction was less than enthusiastic. N.A.S.A. claimed at the time that the unusual Martian surface features were "an optical illusion produced by shadows". (And, of course, the Air Force has always told us there are no UFOs.) General interest in the face and pyramids has grown astronomically since then.

The Friday, July 8, 1988, issue of The Bakersfield Californian ran a front-page story (complete with photo) about the face on Mars. The article discussed, among other things, a Soviet probe launched to Mars which allegedly was not going to be studying the Cydonia region.

The article mentioned Mark Carlotto, an optical

Editor's note: Below is a letter to the editor printed in The Montreal Gazette for Thursday July 10, 1997, on their editorial page. Is this person suffering from a case of mistaken identity? Or is this one of those inconvenient (to NASA) cases where "you can't fool all of the people, all of the time"? In any event, we couldn't have invented a better side bar to Ray's story.

A Cover-Up On Mars?

The front-page photograph in The Gazette July 5 captioned "Panoramic view of the Red Planet taken last night from a camera on the Pathfinder" is nothing of the sort.

It is a snap I took in 1943 on the south quarter of my grandfather's ranch outside Mosabank, Sask., just north of the Montana line.

I recognized it immediately. My initials are carved on that big rock in the middle.

What's going on? Is this one of those cover-ups? What happened to the bunkhouse?

engineering expert, who believes the face and pyramids appear to have been carved by "intelligent design" and not by the random forces of Nature. The article also mentioned Richard Hoagland, "founder of an organization of scientists called The Mars Project". Hoagland claimed (and still believes) the objects are all part of a city on Mars.

The article also mentioned Brian T. O'Leary, a former astronaut and expert on Mars, who said the rock face "should be a major target for future spacecraft sent to Mars. The feature is sufficiently exciting that we must go back to Mars and photograph it at a higher resolution." Could Mars Pathfinder be investigating or visiting or who-knows-what in the region of the face right now, even as you are reading these words?

Have we been lied to? The reader is encouraged to carefully weigh all available data in reaching your own conclusions. Certainly in the past we have not been told, for instance, how the Space Shuttles have been used for weather modification, earthquake production, and other New World Order political agenda action items, as well as for covert military operations, or that the Shuttles have been part of the machinery (including such antenna arrays as H.A.A.R.P.) employed to electromagnetically pulse us in the 10 cycles-per-second range (which is the range of human brain waves) facilitating possible or probable behavior modification (mind control) of the masses. So why would we now suddenly expect that N.A.S.A. is going to tell us the truth?

As Richard Hoagland said, "This government, this space agency (N.A.S.A.), has been carefully, systematically and meticulously lying, lying—let me underscore that—LYING to their own people, to the American people, and to the rest of the world, about the larger realities in the Solar System.... There is a pattern of deceptions...."

Should we now all-of-a-sudden believe the pageant being put on display by the very agency which is known to be lying to us? When we understand how some people seek positions of power and form themselves into groups in order to control governments, and that this necessitates lying to the general public in order to maintain control, why then would we ever expect some agency of government to be telling us the truth about anything? Do you think they are laughing at us while we watch two rocks called Barnacle Bill and Yogi Bear? Who knows? They have already named some other rocks Hippo, Hedge Hog, Boo Boo, Casper and Scooby Doo! This goes way beyond ridiculous but surely reflects their "regard" for the intelligence of the public at large.

[Editor's note: In the post-4th TV fallout, we see some curiosities: As soon as "too perfect" mission comments crescendoed, the next day we-the-suckers were led to believe the built-like-a-tank yet suddenly all-too-vulnerable Sojourner (with SIX wheels, ALL of which are independently reversible) is "stuck" because one wheel is elevated up against a single rock, not even "wedged in" between something! Then, in another riveting episode of this television drama, the "experts" were focusing your attention upon a rock slightly foreground of a supposed "stack of huge boulders piled up by some colossal flood". Then they say—whoops—"We thought this was another huge boulder, but it's only about a foot high...." So much for keen perception of the contours of the Martian landscape. Or better yet, maybe it's all a preview of the upcoming Hollywood Epic called Keystone Cops Landing On Mars.]

It would seem more than likely a strong possibility that N.A.S.A.'s current presentations are intended to deflect attention away from some other agenda they are pursuing. Can you imagine N.A.S.A. going to Mars and not visiting Cydonia?

We need to ask N.A.S.A. exactly what our tax dollars are doing up there in space. Why not write and/or call Dan Goldin, N.A.S.A. Administrator, at 300 "E" Street S.W., Washington, D.C. 20546, phone number 1-202-358-1010, and ask him just exactly what is N.A.S.A. doing on Mars? We have every right to know the answer to that question. However, don't expect a straight answer anytime soon!

Late breaking news as CONTACT goes to press:

- First of all, for the past 4 or 5 days now, there have been no pictures or other information at all from the N.A.S.A. Channel regarding the Mars Pathfinder Mission. It has been a complete blank after all that pageantry on the 4th and for tedious days afterward.

- Secondly, it is reported that Richard Hoagland now believes there WAS some kind of a landing on July 4 on Mars, but the reason for the landing occurring then, rather than on the indicated likely date of the 20th, is an even bigger and more spectacular story than what Richard has already revealed publicly to date.

This by no means indicates that what we are being shown on TV is in any way real. Rather, it strongly appears that what we are being shown is a facade, part of some much larger deception in this ongoing New World Order play.

- Thirdly, as CONTACT is going to press tonite, Richard Hoagland and a core group of mostly scientific associates just finished (at shortly after midnight, Monday night-Tuesday morning 7/14-15/97) a lengthy presentation of their research to a packed and enthusiastic audience from around the country, all gathered at the huge Civic Plaza Ballroom in Phoenix, Arizona. In addition to reiterating the above points, Richard thinks "something big" associated with Phoenix is still likely to occur between July 20 and 26.

Moreover, Art Bell has been receiving news that a number of notables, from George Bush and Hillary Clinton, to Gen. Norman Schwarzkopf and others, have been spotted in Phoenix recently; as well, Art has received a number of unconfirmed reports of stepped-up troop movements in the general areas around Phoenix.

Both Phoenix and the Mars mission figure prominently in the spatial and temporal geometry calculations of Richard Hoagland's group's "hyper-dimensional physics" projections. We can but stay alert for the next act in this unfolding play!

A Question About Radiation Poisoning

7/9/97 #1 HATONN

IRRADIATION-RADIATION

insure no contamination of the solution (which will not be packaged for IV use), add 20 drops of OXYSOL. This adds ability to program DNA cells as well as offering full treatment-purification of the solution of unwanted microbes.

The next problem is the wipeout of the immune system from the radiation which produces a "leukemia" and the person is totally open for overwhelming infection. The colloids would prevent the infections and much of the toxic reaction to the "cellular die-off".

Most urgent and possibly the most important in the event the above is out of the question, and this will probably be the case, I would suggest injections of 2 cc Gaiandriana, 2 cc Silver colloid, 2 cc Gold Colloid and 1 cc Titanium colloid—three times a day. If this can be given through slow IV injection, great; if not, I suggest the same amounts, given in appropriate-sized doses, inter-muscular. This, of course, is suggested only where injections are permitted. The displacement of tissue by the fluid is painful so you might well wish to divide the amount of injection into at least two separate "shots" but given at the same time.

I am not practicing medicine, however, so please realize that this is a typical treatment modality, and for non-medical personnel this is only a general sugges-

Having a rather urgent request for input about radiation poisoning, I think it best I take up that topic early this morning. The request for response came by FAX and reads (in part):

"I'm a subscriber—we have not spoken in years....

"We have a colleague with serious radiation poisoning. Which Gaia products are the most powerful for this? We have Lugol's solution and Thyroblock but these are too mild, therefore ineffective, as we're talking about someone's entire blood system which has been contaminated and we need to act fast..."

First of all, we don't consider "powerful" vs. "mild" and if you are searching for a specific item, there aren't any. Further, I don't know how you have come to decide that the thyroid protectors you are using are "too mild". As with any poison or burn circumstance, you rarely get INSTANT anything. Also, nobody has given any details whatsoever, which is totally out of the question for follow-up possibility of responding intelligently. Moreover, HOW DO YOU CONCLUDE THAT THE ENTIRE BLOOD SYSTEM IS CONTAMINATED?

I can address the generalized circumstance from severe to light exposure but I don't feel it appropriate to in any way be specific, and since the letter is addressed to Rick, I don't wish to overstep my own boundaries, but neither would I expect Rick to recommend anything of a medical nature.

The contacting party is in Canada and thereby doubles all problems of even generally discussing this topic when relative to a party undergoing the discomfort. I will generalize but only Medical Doctors are allowed the privilege of medical treatment programs. So, with that in mind, I would comment on what has been utilized generally but has not been published or medically proven.

In this instance there is said to be full blood-system contamination and therefore it is very difficult to speculate about potentially effective treatments for you have two very large problems. If you are unable to use treatment modalities freely and there is no way to get substance directly to the blood itself, we have greater problems for IV injection is out of the question.

There is actually no "treatment" beyond the Lugol's solution and what is already being done. However, there is much you can do to enhance recovery. Whether or not you will be allowed to use the solutions I suggest, is quite another circumstance.

If we had free-use of products I would suggest transfusing the person with a slow drip of NON-DILUTED GAIANDRIANA OF AT LEAST A LITER VOLUME, OVER THE PERIOD OF A DAY. TO THE IV DRIP WOULD BE ADDED AN OUNCE OF GOLD COLLOID AND AN OUNCE OF SILVER COLLOID ALONG WITH 1/2 OUNCE OF THE TITANIUM COLLOID. You must have replacement cells for the restructuring and reformation of whole cells, especially bone marrow blood cell production systems AND, to tion. And, since no physicians of the M.D. variety have asked input, this is only for discussion purposes. If you have no ability to utilize these treatments, then double the amounts and take orally in one-to-two ounce amounts per intake (whatever the body will accept) orally. This is as often as the body will accept the intake. If and when visible lesions appear—treat liberally with silver colloid, topically, in addition to the oral intake.

MOST IMPORTANT OF ALL, IMMEDIATELY: Get Gaialyte AND some additional electrolyte solution and TAKE AS LIBERALLY AS THE PATIENT CAN ACCEPT THE LIQUID INTAKE. This is very, very important, and in some instances will be enough to allow the body to heal completely. As with any poison or burn, there is total lack of electrolyte balance in the compromised body.

Keeping fluid-electrolyte balance and prevention of infection are the two most important things to accomplish until the body can respond on its own capabilities. This means that you will also have to keep up the mineral-vitamin supplements as well with a heavy leaning toward the antioxidants.

If you have no other method of getting dispersed intake of these vitamins and minerals as supplements—take supplement tablets and crush them, then take a vortex-apparatus (and here Gaiandriana can be used as the liquid diluted with electrolyte solution) (Pedialyte is fine) and saturate the solution by vortexing the recipe some 10-to-12 times. Then, again, you can add this to the other solutions for intake or separately in amounts the body will tolerate. Or, get full-spectrum liquid vitamin-mineral supplements and vortex as above-described, only by adding the liquid rather than the crushed tablets.

The vortexing presents you with a homogenizing or colloidalizing effect so that overdosage is not possible. The body will utilize what it needs and excrete the rest. I am not a medical doctor and can only suggest that which is used by non-medical parties as a possible enhancement to a given disease or body insult. For one thing, I have no input as to what offered the radiation or how severe is the extent of radiation. Certainly I make NO CLAIMS to medical treatment of any kind and these ideas might well be totally ineffective at worst, but offer some modicum of disease resistance at best.

I do not, nor do any people here, practice medicine in any way, shape, or manner, so I can only respond to the direct questions asked of us. I understand, however, that Gaiandriana has been used and found to prevent the full shutdown of the bone-marrow system in radiation accidents. It has also been found to help maintain a better feeling of well-being in heavy radiology therapy and chemotherapy treatments of cancers. This modality has been tested with "Chondriana" only, to my knowledge. Orally taken is effective but requires far higher amounts of intake. None of the suggested items are in any way harmful or damaging to the body, healthy or compromised.

I'm sorry we cannot be direct or specific but we are constantly under attack from those who claim we practice medicine or offer inferior products. Our most deliberate problems have been our connections with Canada. With this in mind, please accept our apologies and perhaps it is time to get your laws changed lest you all be gone before you are allowed to attend yourselves. We have no way whatsoever of knowing whether or not this is a valid request or a TRAP of some kind. Well, we assume the latter, with no further information offered on the specific party described, but that assumption is quite ungenerous. You have come a long way into decay when every question, every action, and every person is suspect in every instance.

There are several things WRONG with this inquiry, not the least being only a first name of the contact. Then there is the use of "we" as in "We have a colleague..." We know not who is "we" nor whether the "colleague" has requested anything at all from us. There are so many ASSUMPTIONS from non-knowing parties represented here that there is no way at all to adequately answer the inquiry.

We are requested to leave a "detailed" response to something that cannot be detailed in any way, shape or form. It would be ludicrous to offer anything more than to keep the person hydrated and as comfortable as possible.

Radiation is something that is so "hot" as a topic that we would, further, be totally remiss in any type of "treatment" of such assumed exposure.

I sense that both the contacting party as well as the "colleague" and the "we" are totally absent knowledge of medical care. This is very dangerous for the parties making this request and more dangerous to anyone responding. We are not in the practice of medicine or anything even remotely related to same.

This response is not to be offensive but rather to remind all of you that we do not knowingly move outside the guidelines or laws of any place, state or profession.

I do suggest you carefully consider the reasons for radiation poisoning to determine if this is medical malpractice or accidental exposure. AND, how do you KNOW? This becomes a legal point of focus and neither are we lawyers in any way, shape or form. Radiation poisoning is not something that "just happens" while skipping through the park one day!

I can only ask that you not request such information or regimens for you jeopardize both self and others. By the way, products useful in this problem are available anywhere and not just from this location.

We must all, each, consider very carefully our requests and our actions that we might always realize security and safety for even the unwitting.

Salu.

A Brief Reminder About Gaiandriana & AquaGaia

5/26/95 SANDRA TULANIAN, D.C.

The physiology of the body is basically governed by the actions and programming found within the cell. The cells make up the tissues of the body; the tissues make up the organs such as the heart or liver which, in turn, make up the organ systems that work in harmony with each other to keep the entire body functioning. If the cell structure has been altered or is malfunctioning (for whatever reason), every organ system is affected. To what degree they are affected depends on the offending substance that has caused the cell's breakdown or the length of time that cell has been subjected to abuse.

Gaiandriana is a product that is said to help correct the faulty programming that has occurred at the cell level by correcting into perfection the cell's DNA/RNA blueprint. Viruses, unlike bacteria, have the ability to fuse with the DNA strand within the cell, creating a mutation to that cell. By perfecting the DNA/RNA blueprint, the cell may be returned to a level of vitality which allows it to fight off an incoming virus and maintain the homeostasis within the cell and, in turn, within the organ systems.

This is essential for the immune system, because without healthy cells that can fight off offenders like free radicals, viruses, and cumulative levels of radiation, the immune system is overtaxed to the point of exhaustion—eventually leading to disease. Another benefit from consuming Gaiandriana is its ability and nature to thrive on the invisible, higher photon frequencies which are bombarding us daily. Gaiandriana is able to speed up the frequency levels of the cells to more nearly match the energies pouring in and assaulting the body. This, in turn, can offer a two-fold benefit: One benefit is the ability of the cell to withstand and actually adapt to these otherwise damaging energies; the other benefit is to help protect ourselves from mind manipulation through pulse beams that are irradiating mankind relentlessly. Originally the dose was 10 drops, 3 times per day, under the tongue. However, with the growing number of "manufactured" epidemics and other stepped-up plans for our demise by the Elite, perhaps more is better. One ounce or more per day may produce faster and more effective results.

AquaGaia was introduced to benefit the mitochondria system that lies within the cell. The mitochondria is the energy producer of the cell and is essential to convert the food we eat into usable cell fuel and to produce enzymes that are absolutely necessary for survival of the body systems.

AquaGaia is also said to feed on vessel plaques adhering to blood vessel linings. Most all of us, by the age of twenty, have plaques developing on the arterial walls due to the American diet that is filled with saturated fats, high protein, white flour products, and limited consumption of fresh fruits and vegetables. This product provides added fuel to any compromised system to assist in strengthening the immune system, as well as cleaning out blood vessels and enhancing the pliability of the vessel walls throughout the body. Both Gaiandriana and AquaGaia work in harmony to strengthen and eliminate mutations of all cells by working together within the cell structure itself.

Gaiandriana and AquaGaia are said to be safe for children and pets, and can be taken with other medications without incident. Available in 16oz., and 32oz. bottles.

The Prophecies Concerning "The Word Going Forth At The Ending Of This Cycle Of History" And "A Remnant Being Saved"

Those of you who have followed Hatonn's messages in the CONTACT newspaper are probably well aware by now of the two stated purposes of the Phoenix Institute for Research & Education, Ltd. For those who are new readers of CONTACT, they are: 1. To get the Word out, the Truth of the way it is; and 2. To make it possible for a remnant to make it through the major changes, crises and chaos immediately ahead of us. To me, a Bible student, the purposes rang true, and I endeavored to be a part of the work.

There is a prophecy credited to "Jesus" (Esu Immanuel) in Matthew 24:1-15, which outlines the events leading up to the "end". According to Hatonn, this "end" generally comes (although not always) with many changes at the end of a millennium. We know, through advances in science, archeology, geophysics, etc., that the world has not ended in all its millions of years. What "ends" are corrupt civilizations.

Matthew 24:1-15, [quoting:]

1 And Jesus went out, and departed from the temple: and his disciples came to him for to shew him the buildings of the temple.

2 And Jesus said unto them, See ye not all these things? verily I say unto you, There shall not be left here one stone upon another, that shall not be thrown down.

3 And as he sat upon the mount of Olives, the disciples came unto him privately, saying, Tell us, when shall be the sign of thy coming, and of the end of the world?

4 And Jesus answered and said unto them, Take heed that no man deceive you.

5 For many shall come in my name, saying, I am Christ; and shall deceive many.

6 And ye shall hear of wars and rumors of wars: see that ye be not troubled: for all these things must come to pass, but the end is not yet.

7 For nation shall rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom: and there shall be famines, and pestilences, and earthquakes, in diverse places.

8 All these are the beginning of sorrows.

9 Then shall they deliver you up to be afflicted, and shall kill you: and ye shall be hated of all nations for my name's sake.

10 And then shall many be offended, and shall betray one another, and shall hate one another.

11 And many false prophets shall rise, and shall deceive many.

12 And because iniquity shall abound, the love of many shall wax cold.

13 But he that shall endure unto the end, the same shall be saved.

14 And this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations; and then shall the end come.

15 When ye therefore shall see the abomination of desolation, spoken of by Daniel the prophet, stand in the holy place, (who so readeth, let him understand:)

[End quote.]

Keep in mind that Esu/Immanuel did not write any books or build any churches. Further, he has stated in And They Called His Name Immanuel, I Am Sananda, that only a remnant of his teachings remain in the Bible we know today.

There has been a great deal of discussion regarding Matthew 24:1-15 among Bible students, interpreters, teachers and translators. Some dismissed it as being in the past when the last Temple in Jerusalem was destroyed about A.D. 70. However, given some latitude in interpretation, knowing the difficulties inherent in our present Bible, I would like to suggest some alternative possibilities regarding the above scripture.

Verses 1 & 2: Remember that Jerusalem will be destroyed during the great earthquake described in Revelation, Chapter 6. Also described in the Prophecies of Nostradamus at the time of the Battle of Armageddon. Therefore Immanuel's vision of the Temple being destroyed (again) is more than likely part of the prophecy of the "end" times we are in now. At present there is no temple in Jerusalem. However, according to Nostradamus, the Jews will quickly build their temple on the site now occupied by the Islamic Mosque, known as the Dome of the Rock in Jerusalem, when an earthquake preceding the "great earthquake" destroys the mosque. Therefore, keep a watchful eye on this piece of real estate.

Verses 13: "But he that shall endure to the end shall be saved."—In other words, a remnant shall remain and be cared for following all of the chaos of the "end time".

Verses 14: "And this gospel of the Kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations; and then shall the end come." In other words the Word will go forth, according to this scripture. (I will have more to say on the "gospel of the Kingdom" later in this article.)

Verse 15: "When ye therefore shall see the abomination of desolation, spoken of by Daniel the Prophet (Dan 12:11), stand in the holy place (who so readeth, let him understand:)." Having just reviewed some prophecies regarding the Temple in Jerusalem in some recent articles, I am at a place where I believe it is possible we may have the answer to the question: "What is the abomination of desolation?" I have puzzled over this description for years. The Bible does not tell us what it is, although many historical events of the Hebrew people point to several possibilities. With the Prophecies of Nostradamus in hand, one can say that the "abomination of desolation" occurs after the Israelis have rebuilt their Temple of Solomon on the ground formerly occupied by the Islamic Mosque. Then five Arabs, dressed as Jews, enter the Temple and commit ritual suicide, desecrating the site for both Jews and Arabs and starting events leading to the Battle of Armageddon. I believe this multiple act of suicide could rightly be called (considering the abandonment of God's Law, the total arrogance and provocation of the Israelis and the location and predicted outcome of the act) the "abomination of desolation".

Another source of prophecy pertaining to "getting the Word out", and a "remnant being saved" is the Book of Revelation. John is on the Isle of Patmos.

Revelation 2:10-11:

"I was in the Spirit on the Lord's day, and heard behind me a great voice, as of a Trumpet,

"Saying, I am Alpha and Omega, the first and the last: and, What thou seest, write in a book, and send it unto the seven Churches which are in Asia...."

Obviously, the "Word" is going out again, prior to the predicted destruction.

The revelation goes on to repeat the messages to each of these Churches. Each message is an admonition to the Churches to correct their errors and ends with the promise that those who "overcome" will be "saved" or given a place in the new scheme of things. In fact Revelation 7 lists the number of those who are to be saved from each Hebrew tribe—a total of 144,000. Unfortunately, Hatonn states it doesn't look today like there will be a total of 144,000 in all of the remnant that is saved at this fast-approaching "end time".

The scriptures regarding God's warnings to an errant people, the predictions of destruction if corrections are not made and the promises that a remnant will survive are not limited to the New Testament. This appears to have been the way it was in Old Testament times as well. (For example, prior to the flood Noah was sent to warn the people and prepare a way for a "remnant to be saved". He built an ark in which he and his family and many animals survived. Also, at the time of Sodom and Gamorrah, God warned Lot to leave without looking back before the destruction. He sent His angels to warn him and his family. Lot's wife was not convinced of the warning and looked back. She was turned to a "pillar of salt".) Therefore, we can be assured that this is a pattern or method or perhaps even Law of Creation pertaining to the cleansing of a people and the old, corrupt scheme of things in order to make way for the new. Life does go on, and will make progress, eventually if not sooner.

If you read the Book of Ezekial, Chapters 7-11, you will have another account of an "end time". I will quote some pertinent verses that you might compare them with Hatonn's messages and the Book of Revelation. Obviously, the "Word" went forth from God via the Prophet Ezekial at this time:

Ezekial 7:1-8, [quoting:]

1 Moreover the word of the Lord came unto me saying,

2 Also, thou son of man, thus saith the Lord God unto the land of Israel; An end, the end is come upon the four corners of the land.

3 Now is the end come upon thee, and I will send mine anger upon thee, and will judge thee according to thy ways, and will recompense upon thee all thine abominations.

4 And mine eye shall not spare thee, neither will I have pity: but I will recompense thy ways upon thee, and thine abominations shall be in the midst of thee: and ye shall know that I am the Lord.

5 Thus saith the Lord God; An evil, an only evil, behold, is come.

6 An end is come, the end is come: it watcheth for thee; behold, it is come.

7 The morning is come unto thee, O thou that dwellest in the land: the time is come, the day of trouble is near, and not the sounding again of the mountains.

8 Now will I shortly pour out my fury upon thee, and accomplish mine anger upon thee: and I will judge thee according to thy ways, and will recompense thee for all thine abominations.

[End quote.]

Following the above scripture we are given a description of all of the abominations of Israel and God's condemnation of them. In Ezekial 8:6-12 we are given an account of the "seventy men of the ancients of Israel" (now called Elders of Zion) worshipping "every form of creeping things and abominable beasts". Because this scripture is an account which reveals to us the nature of the leaders of Israel at the time of Ezekial I will quote it here. Please remember that, according to Hatonn, it has been those who have called themselves the "Snake People" who have been the major corrupters of our people and planet:

Ezekial 8:6-12, [quoting:]

6 He said furthermore unto me, Son of man, seest thou what they do? even the great abominations that the house of Israel committeth here, that I should go far off from my sanctuary? but turn thee yet again, and thou shalt see greater abominations.

7 And he brought me to the door of the court; and when I looked, behold a hole in the wall.

8 Then said he unto me, Son of man, dig now in the wall: and when I had digged in the wall, behold a door.

9 And he said unto me, Go in, and behold the wicked abominations that they do here.

10 So I went in and saw; and behold every form of creeping things, and abominable beasts, and all the idols of the house of Israel, portrayed upon the wall round about.

11 And there stood before them seventy men of the ancients of the house of Israel, and in the midst of them stood Jaazaniah the son of Shaphan, with every man his censer in his hand; and a thick cloud of incense went up.

12 Then said he unto me, Son of man, hast thou seen what the ancients of the house of Israel do in the dark, every man in the chambers of his imagery? for they say, The Lord seeth us not; the Lord hath forsaken the Earth.

[End quote.]

Unfortunately, it was a similar group of seventy "Ancients of Israel" who compiled the Old Testament, the one accepted for our use by the powers that be, called the Septuagint after these seventy. You may be interested to know that scholar Ralph W. Klein, in his book Textual Criticism of the Old Testament—The Septuagint After Qumran states that the original Septuagint (according to material found in the Qumran Caves) had as its final ending a statement made by its compilers (the 70 involved) to the effect that they had done the best they could, and "don't anyone change it"! You will not find this statement in any Bible produced since the beginning of the Church in Rome. Nevertheless, the statement is an admission by the men involved that their work was, after all, mostly the work of men—just as Hatonn has said many times. Further verification of the problems in the Septuagint can be found in the Introduction to George M. Lamsa's translation of the Ancient Eastern Text (The Peshitta) from the Aramaic language. In it he tells us that the Jews held a day of mourning when the newly reworked Old Testament came out, due to the many errors in it.

Beginning with Ezekial 9 we have an account of people being marked according to whether they love the evil or hate it. Those who hate it are not destroyed. And we are told by Ezekial that he "fell upon my face, and cried, and said, Ah Lord God! Wilt thou destroy all the residue of Israel in thy pouring out of thy fury upon Jerusalem?" (Ezekial 9:8)

The answer comes in Ezekial 11:16:

"Therefore say, Thus saith the Lord God; Although I have scattered them among the countries, yet will I be to them a little sanctuary in the countries where they shall come."

In other words, a remnant of the people are removed from Israel and survive.

Similar accounts of prophets warning the people of their evil ways, of the cleansing and destruction of corrupt systems, and the survival of a remnant of the people occur in Isaiah 10; Micah 2; Haggai 1; and Romans 11. Therefore, the purposes of the Phoenix Institute for Research & Education, Ltd., as they were determined by Hatonn and stated above, are not new to the people of this planet, to the Churches and Synagogues of the past, or to God's Ways as revealed to us in the Bible.

In closing this article something needs to be said about the "gospel of the kingdom being preached in all the world for a witness to all nations; and then shall the end come." (Matthew 24:14) According to Hatonn, Esu/Immanuel's primary purpose was to teach men about the Kingdom of God within each person. Man needs no priests or churches. He needs to turn to God with all his heart and soul. God is very near to him—within him, in fact.

All souled beings are fragments of God, and can come to be at one with Him, as Esu/Immanuel was. It is man's destiny to realize his own oneness with the Father, to be His Son and to know it! This is the Truth that the adversary tries to hide from us.

Revelation 21:7

"He that overcometh shall inherit all things; and I will be his God, and he shall be My son."

Man has the potential for greatness, and is even now greater than he thinks—if only he would wake up! This greatness and oneness with the Father grows and occurs as man turns to God and follows His Laws and the Laws of Creation.

Unfortunately, Matthew 24:14 has been interpreted by many church scholars, preachers and laymen as a commandment to go to all the world and "preach the gospel"—a "gospel" which pertains not to the "kingdom of God within". You find a great rush at this time to establish radio stations far and wide for this purpose. The belief is that once this "gospel", which can be any statement in the New Testament, reaches the entire world, the "end" will come and Jesus will return. Well, a lot of chaos and hurt will occur before that happens as a result of man's corruption and lack of responsibility. We are also told by Hatonn that when the radio and television outlets are available to the entire world this will be used as an official sign by the adversary to declare the "end", according to their own plans.

Many "New Age" groupies today blindly declare themselves "gods", but do not follow God's Laws or the Laws of Creation. They misunderstand and have not cared to discover their purpose on Earth. They have no time for God, in fact, yet they could be Sons of God and know it, if they went within themselves and discovered the Kingdom of God. (Aton has provided a message on this very subject in the 7/8/97 issue of CONTACT newspaper, titled: "Aton: You Are Never Alone Who Recognize My Presence".)

St. John, 7:14-17

"Now about the midst of the feast Jesus went up into the temple, and taught

"And the Jews marvelled, saying, How knoweth this man letters, having never learned?

"Jesus answered them, and said, My doctrine is not mine, but His that sent me.

"If any man will do His Will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether I speak of myself."

In other words, you don't need man's rewritten books, or his preachers, churches, or synagogues, to know the Truth. However, prophets, teachers and wayshowers are used by God to get out the "Word".

Please note: The above quoted scripture negates much of the false teachings about the life of Esu/Immanuel. He was not taught by the Essenes, by the Egyptians, or by the Jews. He was taught by God. Those who cannot understand this possibility are ones who have not come to know God in themselves.

I once asked Hatonn if Dharma was a prophet. He said that "every one's experience is different"—we are all unique. She has not been called a prophet by Hatonn. Yet, surely, the work of Dharma and Hatonn today very closely fill many of the functions of the prophets of ancient times, on a much larger scale.

Soltec: Recent Volcanic Clues To What's On The Way

7/12/97 SOLTEC

Good morning, my friend. It is I, Toniose Soltec, come in the Radiant One Light of Creator Source. Find peace within and let us continue.

Your planet is convulsing and very few seem to be paying attention to the clues that are unfolding all around you. The masters of distraction have, indeed, done their jobs well.

Approximately six weeks ago, I asked that CONTACT re-run my "Tutorial On Volcanos And Related Geophysics" [in the May 20, 1997 issue] from writings I delivered through Dharma in 1990 and 1993. That review was for a specific purpose and I believe those of you who are paying attention to the geophysical news of late can appreciate why.

Since the beginning of 1997, there have been approximately 20 significant volcanic eruptions worldwide on your planet. As I have lectured at length in the past, there is a close connection between volcanic eruptions and the tectonic plate motions that produce major earthquake activity. Both the frequency and violence (magnitude) of these volcanic eruptions are good indicators of Mother Earth's rising "blood pressure" condition.

One of the most important recent events was the newest series of explosive eruptions of 18,000-foot-high Mount Popocatepetl in Mexico, starting about April 24, 1997. According to reports by your own geologists studying that volcano: "Explosions at Popocatepetl from April 24-28 destroyed the lava dome inside the throat of the volcano. The lava dome had been growing since January 1997. An explosion on April 24 sent ash 13,000 feet above the summit." And then, on June 30, 1997: "Popocatepetl threw ash 7.5 miles into the air on Monday, June 30, during its largest eruption since 1925. Lava was also thrown 1500 feet into the air. This event led to the first ash fall in Mexico City, 45 miles from the volcano, in over 70 years.... At least 15 small towns are planned to be evacuated including about 300,000 people who live on the flanks of the volcano."

The second significant volcanic event happened this past week near Italy. Watch closely the recent (and still ongoing) eruption of 11,000-foot-high Mount Etna, in eastern Sicily, on July 8, not very far from 4,000-foot-high sister volcano Mount Vesuvius, near Naples, Italy (which buried the city of Pompeii in a thick layer of volcanic ash in the twinkling of an eye in 79 A.D.). Recall, please, the timing clues for major Earth changes connected to these sister volcanos as given forth by ones such as Edgar Cayce.

There are many pieces of the puzzle now coming together and a more complete picture is beginning to unfold. As you watch these volcanos come to life, feel compassion for a very longsuffering and patient Mother Earth as she begins the process of rebalancing in earnest.

You who are there on the Earth now will witness the great changes prophesied through many sources. There is NO avoiding this inevitability.

PREPARATION IS THE KEY TO SURVIVAL!

We, of the Hosts, have said over and over to prepare, yet we see many who sit and wait for another to somehow do it for them. We can do much more to help you—IF you take action and focus your energies on helping yourselves, FIRST!

For example, in my first public writing through this receiver, on 6/13/96 [a writing which was, by the way, scribbled on some old, chemical-stained scraps of laboratory notepaper, as that receiver was interrupted by "the call" right in the middle of some chemical analyses work at the receiver's place of employment], I emphasized:

"Dream time is long over and those still running around in La La Land shall wish they had awakened to find out what all the commotion was for. Indeed, the changes shall come: 'Like a thief in the night', as far as the general masses are concerned.

"But, for those who have heard the 'alarm clock', you shall see much of what we, of the Hosts of Lighted God, have told you, time and time again, shall come to pass. There shall be much excitement for those of you who have prepared. God truly helps those of you who make efforts to help selves.

"But, for those who have heard the 'alarm clock', you shall see much of what we, of the Hosts of Lighted God, have told you, time and time again, shall come to pass. There shall be much excitement for those of you who have prepared. God truly helps those of you who make efforts to help selves.

"Even if you do not notice all the subtle clues along the way, know in your heart that He is there and is helping you along your way. Pay attention to the seeming coincidences, for NOTHING HAPPENS BY CHANCE—especially now, and from here on out."

When you take action in the physical, you are reinforcing the mind's desires and amplifying the creative energy necessary for the manifestation of the thought or desire. As the desire begins manifesting in physical space, ones around you, either directly or indirectly, will be adding their energy to that which you are creating.

We, of the non-physical realms, can add our energy to that which has already been set into motion, in many direct and indirect ways. The key is to solidify your intent WITH ACTION, and ask for assistance and guidance while DOING your part.

We have helped many to produce the "miracles" that defy mere coincidence or luck. Yet, many will still view it as mere "luck" or "coincidence", not realizing the true nature of the dynamics set in motion when they first take sincere and determined action in the physical.

Also, some more aware ones will realize that there is a Higher Guidance assisting them. These ones will rightfully and humbly give thanks for the assistance that manifests in their lives. You ones are fond of an expression that goes something like: "Luck favors those who help themselves." You might take a moment to ponder on the possibilities of that elusive thing called "luck"!

Our main concern in this regard is that we see many of you just sitting around and worrying over the upcoming Earth changes and economic collapse. We see that you are either too frightened, or too easily distracted by the daily matters of living, to take serious actions in preparation.

Many ones have great excuses, such as: "I have a family to take care of and not enough extra money for such things." Or another good one: "My family thinks I am crazy and they resist my reasoning with them on the subject of survival preparation." And then there's the perennial fall-back position: "I only have to take care of myself and I can survive on very little; therefore why should I prepare?"

I think you ones get the idea here. There are many other colorful, yet sad, excuses that are given. Many of you who have not yet prepared, will not prepare, and such is YOUR choice.

If money be your excuse in any way, then I would suggest you look carefully at that upon which you spend your money—that is, what has value to you. What is it that you buy that is truly necessary? What are the not-so-necessary items that are more for your immediate pleasures?

It is wise to have balance in all things. When you can prioritize, with responsibility, you will find that you can have the best of both worlds.

When you can learn to prepare not only for self and your immediate family, but perhaps ALSO for your neighbor, then you will find that you will draw into your experience the creative energies necessary to manifest all of the things that you truly desire. The basic Law of Giving and Regiving operates quite well here.

A large bag of beans or rice is truly inexpensive, as is a large container of peanut butter. If you make the effort to shop around, you can stretch a dollar QUITE far when you focus your energy upon doing so.

Going to fast-food restaurants will deplete your funds faster than you may realize. When you pay a dollar or more for a single cup of carbonated, flavored sugar-water, you would be wise to reflect upon your health, as well as upon what you COULD buy with the money that you spend, on a regular basis, on such nutritionally empty items.

The point here is NOT to tell you how to live your lives or how to spend your money. The point here is to get you to take a look at the day-to-day robotic actions (actions taken with little or no thought) that you ones seem to not notice.

The mind-control experts have done their jobs very well through the media machinery of advertising campaigns. Do you really NEED that cup of sugar water or that cigarette or that beer? How about the fourth one of the day? Do you really NEED a new car every few years? Do you really NEED those expensive vacations?

When the Earth changes or the economic collapse impact your lives, you will then know what you truly NEED versus that which you "think" you need. You WILL figure it out, one way or another—sooner OR later! This is where Mother Earth's "school of hard knocks" comes into the picture!

There is great wisdom in diligently going about the business of preparation, and all of the contrite choruses of "I should have listened" that many will be singing AFTER the fact, will not ease those empty stomachs—whether such be your family's stomachs, or those of your neighbors and their children.

We, of the Hosts, have been sent at this time to give forth the warning messages that were promised to you at this time so that your excuse cannot be that you were not warned and that you did not know.

In that same 6/13/96 writing, I also warned: "That which has been prophesied is at hand. You are in the Ending Times of the current cycle of humanity on that orb. This is a time when chaos reigns supreme, for the confusion of change is overwhelming to the masses.

"All things continue in a revolving, evolving spiral of never-ending cycles of birth-growth-decay-rebirth. Out of the old harshness of chaos shall spring forth the peace and balance that you ones constantly seek.

"These are grand times for experiencing. The Light shall reign supreme. The awakening masses shall overcome or succumb to their ignorance. It is always their choice."

I will ask you here and now: What causes you to read these messages in the first place? What part of yourself allows you to accept these messages, even when others are laughing at you or are antagonistic towards your beliefs? Learn to consciously connect with who you really are and from where you come, AND KNOW THAT IT IS BECAUSE YOU ARE GROUND CREW!

Ground Crew is part of the team sent to assist in the awakening of the ones on this planet at this time. You lead by example. That means that when you are compelled to tell another that they should prepare, then they, in turn, are most likely to ask you: "Do YOU have food supplies stored up?" Now, if the honest answer is "No", then how effective do you think your efforts are going to be toward convincing others of the seriousness of that which is offered here?

Live your life AS AN EXAMPLE for others to follow and you will be doing a great service to those who cross your path! There is a phrase on your planet which goes something like, "Nothing is more annoying than a good example." Indeed!

If you invite someone over to your dwelling, and you have to ask them to excuse the cases of canned food in your living-room area because that is the only available space in which to store the overstock, this will speak a certainty and conviction of who you are and how serious you are. Remember—ACTIONS ALWAYS SPEAK LOUDER THAN DO WORDS! ALWAYS!

Live your life AS AN EXAMPLE for others to follow and you will be doing a great service to those who cross your path! There is a phrase on your planet which goes something like, "Nothing is more annoying than a good example." Indeed!

Please know that the resisting family members will be thankful to have food to eat and candles to light the darkened hours of the night, or the unhybridized seeds to plant that will symbolize hope for the coming months. The greatest teaching can and will be done when there is no distraction from the television or such!

There will come a resurgence of community. Ones will again come to know who are their neighbors and what it means to be neighborly. The man-made distinctions of race, color, creed, or religious conviction will also drop away. You will all be faced with a common reality—DAY-TO-DAY SURVIVAL!

Please take whatever action is necessary to prepare yourselves for the extreme possibilities. You will be thankful that you did and you may save many lives.

Thank you for taking the time to read this message.

Call upon We, of the Lighted Brotherhood, for assistance along the way.

BUT—YOU take the first step and build the momentum! FEEL, in your heart, the connectedness to those around you, and KNOW that your actions will teach, where your words fall onto deaf ears.

I am Toniose Soltec. I come as the Geophysical Commander for your planet at this time. I am sent by Our Father, as are many of YOU! Face your challenges with His Light in your heart, and create the miracle. In Light and Love, blessings to you ALL! Salu.

TELEPHONE HOTLINE

This is a service for our dedicated readers. Today's Watch telephone hotline carries the latest news and comments from Commander Hatonn's most recent writings. This is our way of keeping you informed about fast-breaking news and events.

The message machine will answer after 2 rings if there are any new messages for that day, and after 4 rings if not. Thus daily callers can hang up after 2 rings and save toll charges if no new message has been recorded. If the hotline does not answer your call then that means that there is currently no hotline message.
