More Clues About Murder Of Princess Diana

Dark Connections Go Back A Long Way

While the legacy of accomplishments of this beautiful person, Princess Diana, is exceeded only by the worldwide admiration for her, many remain suspicious of the official explanation of her "accidental" death. And rightly they should, if ones are either students of history or of the modern world scene!

For the past two weeks CONTACT has carried news about Diana's death (read: murder, assassination, rub-out, etc.). Our information has been "just a bit" at odds with the official news media propaganda on the matter—but what else is new?!

In our Front Page story immediately after the tragedy, titled Desperate Move By Monarchy's House Of Windsor To Preserve The "Grand Plan", Commander Hatonn hinted at the deep and complex roots of disdain which were responsible for strangling the budding alliance of Diana, Princess of Wales, and Dodi al

Fayed. This would have been much more than simply a romantic "merger".

In last week's CONTACT, further clues surrounding this complicated and historically-deeply-tangled story were presented via information supplied by the National Vietnam P.O.W. Strike Force. We titled that outlay, More Clues: Another Perspective On Princess Di Tragedy. The most important information in that article was what linked this tragic murder to the longstanding Arab-"Israeli" animosities. Unfortunately, the actual vast historical depth of the skirmish was not addressed.

This week we continue with more revelations. The first item, from Eustace (Please see More Clues About Murder Of Princess Diana, p.10)

KNOW YOUR LAW: SHERIFF BOOTS FEDS FROM HIS COUNTY

THIS SHERIFF IS A HERO
WE WILL APPRECIATE LATER

From the INTERNET, 9/10/97: [quoting]

Sheriff Dave Mattis of Big Horn County, Wyoming, said this week that as a result of Case #96-CV099-J, U.S. District Court, District of Wyoming, he now has a written policy that forbids federal officials from entering his county and exercising authority over county residents unless he is notified first of their intentions.

After explaining their mission, Mattis said he grants them permission to proceed if he is convinced they are operating within the legal parameters and authority limitations set forth in the U.S. Constitution.

The sheriff grants permission on a case-by-case basis only. When asked what, if any, repercussions he had gotten from the Feds, he quickly and confidently replied, "None whatsoever". He explained by saying, "They know they do not have jurisdiction in my county unless I grant it to them".

Mattis clarified his position by saying the federal court had ruled the state of Wyoming is a sovereign state and the state Constitution plainly states that a county sheriff is the top law enforcement official in the county.

Additionally, Sheriff Mattis contends that the U.S. Constitution, Article 1, Section 8, clearly defines the geographic territories where the federal government has jurisdiction. Amendment X, he said, states that "the powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people."

Therefore, Mattis thoroughly believes the Feds have very limited powers in any state unless the local high-sheriff allows them to exercise power beyond that which the Constitution provides.

"Put another way," Mattis said, "if the sheriff doesn't want the Feds in his county, he has the constitutional power and right to keep them out or ask them to leave."

Accompanied with other legal interpretations Mattis stands on the definition of the word "sovereign", which is defined by Webster's as "paramount, supreme. Having supreme rank or power. Independent: a sovereign State".

Mattis said he grew weary of the Feds coming into his county and running rough-shod over county residents: i.e., illegally searching, seizing property, confiscating bank accounts, restricting the free use of private lands and other abuses, without a valid warrant and without first following due process of law as guaranteed by the Constitution to every citizen.

As long as Mattis remains sheriff he says he will continue to see to it that the citizens of his county get their day in court.

Mattis went on to say that, to his knowledge, even the IRS has not attempted to seize any citizen's real property, bank account or any other privately-owned possessions since he ran the Feds out of his county.

Sheriff Mattis emphasized that he is not a radical man. He said he is only dedicated to protecting the constitutional rights of the citizens of his county.

He added that ordinary citizens are not the only ones bound by and expected to obey laws. Elected officials and government employees at all levels of government are also bound by and should be expected to obey certain laws.

As long as Sheriff Mattis is the high-sheriff of Big Horn County, he seems determined to make sure private citizens and government officials alike act within the law and their designated powers.

Sheriff Mattis came across as a soft-spoken, polite man whose only interest is protecting the citizens he was elected to serve. That being the case, he might be the sheriff for as long as he wants to be.

Sheriff Mattis is hopeful that other sheriffs will assume the same stance. [End quoting]

WOW!! This is the kind of story we've been waiting for—for far too long. Wouldn't it be nice if he got a flood of mail, complimenting and giving him support for his true heroism? (Please don't clog up his phone and fax lines and thus prevent him from accomplishing his work.)

Also, wouldn't it be nice if this example were brought to the attention of the thousands of other local sheriffs?

Let's take back control of our counties and states peacefully. It can be done.

THE LATEST LIQUID GOLD

From WORLD PRESS REVIEW, 9/97: [quoting]

A jungle setting on the coast of Borneo may seem an improbable site for a high-technology experiment that could revolutionize the world's oil industry. But tucked away in a corner of Bintulu, a deep-water port on the South China Sea, is the world's first commercial plant designed to turn natural gas into virtually pollution-free diesel fuel, jet fuel, and naphtha, a valuable chemical component.

"It's not inconceivable that such a plant can be an alternative to a conventional refinery," says Jack Jacometti of Royal Dutch/Shell, which operates the $750-million gas-to-liquid fuel facility. The plant at Bintulu reflects growing belief in what has long been the oil industry's holy grail: that huge reserves of worthless remote natural gas—reservoirs too far from a market or too small to justify development—can be turned into an easily transportable, high-energy liquid. Successful exploitation of the technology would potentially allow oil companies to earn billions of dollars from sleeping assets.

Bintulu, in Malaysia's Sarawak state, is a far cry from the conventional crude-oil refineries that supply the world. Although natural gas is relatively low in energy potential, it is the cleanest hydrocarbon resource. The 12,000 barrels a day of crystal-clear fuel it produces contrast sharply with traditional black diesel. Even the waste products are white, with the waxy consistency of face cream or petroleum jelly. Other byproducts are water, which some Shell engineers claim is clean enough to drink safely, and a soot-like residue that can be used as a soil conditioner.

But gas-to-liquid fuel projects, which until now have not been seen as commercially viable, also pose potential problems for oil companies. Engineers believe further reductions in gas-to-liquid costs are inevitable. Conventional refineries could be made obsolete if governments took early action to insist on clean gas-based fuels. "The companies are scared to push [the technology] because governments might simply say this is the new fuel standard," says Terry Le Roux, an industry consultant.

These fears have not stopped a flurry of activity among some of the world's biggest oil companies to position themselves in the gas-to-liquid fuels market. Exxon, the biggest U.S. oil company, is in talks to build a large natural gas plant in the Persian Gulf state of Qatar. Exxon is also considering a plant in Alaska to be built in conjunction with British Petroleum. Statoil, Norway's state petroleum company, recently agreed with Sasol of South Africa to study whether its version of the process could be adapted to offshore oil and gas platforms and production vessels. Most other big oil companies are also investigating the technology.

The key to commercial viability of gas-to-liquid fuel plants is the technology's modern innovations—especially the cobalt-based catalyst over which the gas is passed at high pressure and temperature. Shell engineers at Bintulu say the plant, which has been operating since 1993, is now working about 97 percent of the time. "In the last three years, we've learned more than in the 15 previous years of research," says Saw Choo Boon, managing director of Bintulu.

The pace at which new plants proliferate will depend more on economics than technology. "With $20 oil prices [the 1996 per-barrel average], you have a fighting chance to realize such a project," says Jacometti. But some industry analysts believe such plants could be viable with oil prices as low as $15 a barrel if combined with a power station or desalinization facility.

Sasol estimates the total cost of a facility at between $25,000 and $30,000 per daily barrel of production, or about $300 million for a 10,000-barrel-a-day plant. That is roughly twice the cost of a conventional refinery, but feedstock costs of a conventional refinery are between $16 and $18 a barrel; remote gas plants would have to bear only the cost of extraction.

Some expect the technology to proliferate quickly. A report by consultant Wood Mackenzie estimates that half the world's proven gas reserves are located in remote areas that cannot economically justify the construction of pipelines. They would, however, provide a substantial base for a gas-to-liquid fuel industry.

Although industrialized countries will probably prize most highly the quality of the fuels produced from the gas-to-liquid process, the technology may also allow developing or former communist countries to leapfrog investment in expensive conventional energy infrastructure projects.

An indication of the high quality of the fuel is that diesel at the Bintulu plant easily meets the world's toughest standards. Levels of sulfur and aromatics—elements that are at the center of fierce debates in Europe and the U.S.—are so low as to be beyond detection. The diesel derived from natural gas would give drivers much higher mileage than conventional diesel.

The big question is whether such a high-quality fuel would command equally high prices. In order to avoid undermining existing markets, some companies prefer to see the new fuel as a blending agent to be mixed with poorer quality, crude oil-derived fuels.

However the fuel is introduced, the international oil industry finds itself in an unusual position: For once, it is well ahead of the environmental debate. [End quoting]

It's about time for us to quit the hydrocarbon addiction entirely and go to zeropoint—free energy—devices, which the Elite have been stashing away for decades.

JAPANESE COURT SAYS MINISTRY ILLEGALLY CENSORED HISTORY BOOKS

From THE DAILY NEWS, 8/30/97: [quoting]

In a landmark victory for Japanese who have been trying to educate young people about their country's wartime atrocities, the Supreme Court ruled on Friday for the first time that the government had broken the law by censoring textbooks to remove references to the slaughter of civilians.

The ruling was a remarkable triumph for an 83-year-old education professor, Saburo Ienaga, a frail and bespectacled man who has led a 32-year court battle to force the government to allow schools to use textbooks that give children a glimpse of the brutalities committed by Japanese forces in China, Korea, and elsewhere during World War II.

Ienaga's other lawsuits had ended in defeat, but on Friday the Supreme Court sided with him and declared that the Education Ministry had gone too far in its censorship. The court ordered the ministry to curb its censorship in the future as much as possible and not to impose its own ideas on the scholarship of those who write the books.

The court ruling goes to the heart of an issue that continues to ignite soul-searching and debate in Japan and fierce acrimony between Japan and other Asian countries. The ruling was therefore not just about the past but also about the present, because a major reason for the tensions and antagonisms swirling through Asia is resentment at Japanese brutality in World War II and the perception that Japan has never confronted what it did.

China, South Korea and North Korea, in particular, are deeply suspicious of Japan and sometimes worry that Japan's reluctance to teach children about the past suggests that it may become aggressive again.

To be sure, Ienaga's victory was only a partial one. The court, as expected, declared that the Education Ministry's system of censoring textbooks is itself legal; it simply found that the ministry had abused the system by deleting references to well-documented atrocities.

"Unfortunately, we did not receive the all-out victory that we had hoped for," Ienaga said at a news conference. "But the ruling revealed that textbook screening can be illegal."

The ruling, which granted Ienaga token damages of $3,400, is likely to be important primarily for its moral force, emboldening scholars who write textbooks, and making Education Ministry censors more hesitant to demand changes. Already, the censors have given up enormous ground, allowing far more straightforward treatment in the books than was imaginable a dozen years ago.

One of Ienaga's battles, for instance, was over the word "aggression" in school textbooks. The ministry ordered him in the 1980s not to characterize Japan's invasion of China as aggression, saying the term had "negative ethical connotations". It suggested that he use the expression "military advance".

Under pressure from China and South Korea, the government later backed down, and textbooks now contain passing references to Japanese "aggression".

One of the points of contention in Friday's ruling was a brief mention in Ienaga's high school history textbook of the Japanese army's unit 731, which conducted experiments in germ warfare and tried to create plague outbreaks in China. [End quoting]

If we apply enough pressure, we can get rid of some of our censorship here, also.

FORD TOP EXEC WARNS OF UN MONITORING U.S. INDUSTRY: AUTO AND GAS PRICES WILL RISE BEYOND OUR MEANS!

From FREE AMERICAN NEWSMAGAZINE, 8/97: [quoting]

Ross H. Roberts
Vice President-General Manager
Ford Division
June 5, 1997
to: All Ford Dealers

Subject: Letter to President Clinton on Global Warming (emphasis ours-Ed.)

You may be unaware of a major policy issue that will greatly affect the auto business—from the kinds of vehicles we can sell to the cost of driving to overall vehicle affordability.

The Clinton Administration has announced its support for legally binding caps and cuts on energy use for developed countries that would be enforced by a UN agency. Developing nations such as China, Korea, and Brazil will not be required to make a similar commitment. These caps and cuts are expected to be finalized in December of this year in Kyoto.

The Administration sees this as a political "win" and a way to position the U.S. as an environmental leader. Because it is an international negotiation led by the U.S. State Department, most Americans don't know what's going on or understand the implications.

For the auto industry, the implications are clear. Such a treaty would necessitate major gasoline price increases and likely would lead to other measures, including higher CAFE and restrictions on vehicle use. Many countries in Europe already are implementing such measures in anticipation of the agreement. The exclusion of developing nations from any commitment will hurt U.S. competitiveness and result in an outflow of jobs to those nations, and the UN would be in charge of monitoring compliance. Alex Trotman believes this the most important governmental issue the industry is facing.

The President is scheduled to give the keynote address at a UN meeting on this subject on June 23. We need to let the President know that we are watching, and we are concerned. We are asking for a few minutes of your time to personalize the attached pro-forma letter to the president with a copy to your U.S. Senators since the Senate will eventually have to ratify any treaty. Please fax a copy of your letter to Ford's Governmental Affairs Communications at 313-248-1550.

We would certainly appreciate your support on this critical industry issue.

Sincerely,
Ross Roberts [End quoting]

Certainly, all of us should write our senators about these sly tricks to cripple our economy further!!

RETURN OF THE PAWPAW

Where oh where is dear little Nellie?
Way down yonder in the pawpaw patch.

From Popular Science, 8/97: [quoting]

The pawpaw memorialized by this ditty is a delicious and nutritious fruit. Related to the South American custard apple, it is the largest edible fruit native to the United States, 3 to 5 inches long and weighing as much as a pound. Pawpaws originally grew wild in Eastern woodlands, and Indian tribes helped spread them south and west.

Bruisable skins and big seeds make pawpaws a forbidden fruit.

So why can't you find pawpaws in the supermarket? The flavorful fruits are burdened with soft, thin skins and oversize seeds. This combination discourages large-scale processing and distribution. Thus, the pawpaw has remained available only to rural Nellies and hobbyist gardeners.

All that may be changing, however, thanks to the efforts of pawpaw fanciers at Kentucky State University, the USDA's Agricultural Research Service's National Clonal Germplasm Repository in Corvallis, Oregon, are experimenting with tissue culture and cryogenic preservation to develop varieties that they say could be marketed commercially within the next decade.

"Public interest is staggering," says Desmond Layne of Kentucky State. "We had more than 2,000 inquiries last year alone." Information about how to grow pawpaws can be found at www.hort.purdue.edu/newcrop. [End quoting]

After the scientists play around with this fruit it probably won't be worth anything nutritionally or tastewise.

BLACKS SHOWN AS POOR

From THE MODESTO BEE, 8/19/97: [quoting]

The media uses pictures of Blacks more often than Whites to illustrate stories about poverty even though most of the nation's poor are White, a Yale University study found. National news magazines, including Time, Newsweek and U.S. News and World Report, pictured Blacks 62 percent of the time in stories on poverty, though statistics show only 29 percent of Americans below the poverty line are Black according to the study by Martin Gilens, an assistant professor of political science. [End quoting]

This is typical of how we are propagandized to be prejudiced according to the Elite's control needs.

"THE BEST AND WORST OF EVERYTHING" BEST NEWS FOR MORTALS (YEAR [1996] ROUNDUP)

From PARADE MAGAZINE, 12/29/96: [quoting]

British scientists say they're working on a "Soul-Catcher" memory chip, which would record human memories and thoughts, and expect it to be working within 30 years. "With these chips, we wouldn't have to rely on holiday snapshots and our memories. We could simply play our experiences back to each other," says Chris Winter, head of British Telecom's artificial life team. "By combining this information with a record of a person's genes, we could recreate a person physically, emotionally and spiritually," he said. "This is the end of death—immortality in the truest sense."

With some folks we know, we'll settle for "The Best of..." [End quoting]

They can create the "Frankensteins" such as Bush, Clinton and hundreds of others, without spirituality now. But, only God can create the spirituality within.

ILLEGAL IMMIGRATION

From THE DAILY NEWS, Los Angeles, letter to editor, 9/97: [quoting]

The Daily News Aug. 31 story "Illegal immigration less than thought", was a real relief. Only a million illegal Mexican immigrants crossed our border in the past decade, according to a joint study we conducted with the Mexican government.

If you believe this is an unbiased report without political considerations, then you have probably been snorting or smoking something smuggled across the same border. If we are to believe the figures then I guess we don't have any problems associated with illegal immigrants. —Bill Hamburg [End quoting]

I'm glad there are some people who will write in to papers who publish this Elite propaganda and try to set the record straight.

RUSSIAN NUCLEAR WEAPONS MISSING, LEBED SAYS

From THE DAILY NEWS, Los Angeles, 9/5/97: [quoting]

Russia's military has lost track of 100 suitcase-size nuclear bombs, the nation's former national security chief has told American lawmakers, who expressed alarm to the Clinton administration.

But U.S. and Russian officials discount the claims by retired Gen. Alexander Lebed, the ousted one-time foe of President Boris N. Yeltsin.

"We don't have any evidence to support what (Lebed) said and responsible Russian officials have specifically denied it," a White House official said Thursday. "We have no credible information any nuclear weapon, suitcase or not, has even been available on the black market."

The official, speaking on condition of anonymity, confirmed, however, that the Russian military has such portable nuclear bombs.

Security experts describe these portable, suitcase devices as the "perfect terrorist weapon" in the wrong hands.

Lebed described the devices as Special Atomic Demolition Munitions that are designed for sabotage behind enemy lines—blowing up bridges or command centers for example. The 1-kiloton nuclear bombs, which weigh 60-100 pounds and can fit into a suitcase or backpack, can kill 50,000-100,000 people and devastate a portion of a city, according to Lebed.

In May, Lebed said a congressional delegation led by Rep. Curt Weldon, R-Pa., that as Yeltsin's top defense expert last year he discovered the Russian military couldn't account for 48 of 132 of suitcase bombs.

In going public, Lebed upped the total of missing suitcase bombs to 100 out of 250 in an interview with CBS' 60 Minutes.

"I don't know their location," Lebed told CBS in a program scheduled to air Sunday.

"I don't know whether they have been destroyed or whether they are stored or whether they've been sold or stolen. I don't know," Lebed said.

Lebed added that when he told Yeltsin, "I did not see any reaction" and the Russian military didn't institute an inventory check.

Former Defense Minister Igor Rodionov told CBS, "He never had any information, a single report" that suitcase bombs were stolen. [End quoting]

Could one of the missing bombs be what was used in the New York Trade Center bombing?

TYSON ANNOUNCES PURCHASE OF HUDSON

From UNKNOWN, 8/97: [quoting]

Tyson Foods, the nation's largest poultry producer, is buying Hudson Foods for $642 million just weeks after Hudson recalled a record 25 million pounds of hamburger in a contamination scare.

The deal, which was announced Thursday and is subject to regulatory approval, comes a week after Hudson said it expected its quarterly earnings to be down by at least 30 percent because of the E. coli scare, which cost Hudson its biggest customer, Burger King.

Hudson recalled the meat under government pressure after ground beef processed at its plant in Columbus, Neb., was found to be tainted with the deadly bacteria. [End quoting]

Is this another Mafia-type game where you cause severe financial loss to the business you want to take over and then buy it out at a few cents on the dollar? It looks mighty suspicious to me, especially when you consider that Tyson has ties all the way to Clinton. Do you really think the government won't give its approval?

NEW DOCTORS MISS A BEAT WITH TRIED-AND-TRUE STETHOSCOPE

From THE DAILY NEWS, Los Angeles, 9/9/97: [quoting]

If any one tool could be declared the symbol of the medical profession, it would surely be the stethoscope. But the ability to use that tool may be a dying art, according to a study of 453 recent medical graduates.

The new doctors, residents from 31 training programs in internal medicine or family practice, made the correct diagnosis only 20 percent of the time when asked to identify common heart abnormalities by listening to recordings of patients' heartbeats.

Residents who knew how to play a musical instrument scored a few points higher than those who did not, but the overall rate of correct diagnoses was still "disturbingly low", said the researchers, whose study is being published today in The Journal of the American Medical Association.

The scores should have been at least 70 percent to 80 percent correct, said Dr. Salvatore Mangione, an author of the paper. He and Dr. Linda Nieman, both from Allegheny University of the Health Sci-

GAIACOL

GAIACOL is a combination of colloidal silver, trace colloidal gold, and trace crystalline drias. This combination of ingredients has produced a product that is so high-frequency and potent that it could quite possibly be the solution to our ongoing fight against the new antibiotic-resistant diseases that we face today. Colloidal silver was used extensively and very successfully against bacteria, viruses, fungi and the like before the advent of the first antibiotic, penicillin. The many uses of colloidal gold were documented for the restoration of health as early as 1885, and gold was noted for its ability to calm and harmonize the emotional body. Once the chemical companies began manufacturing their endless array of antibiotics, silver and gold were no longer looked to for treatment. However, the antibiotics have had increasingly less effect on the more resistant viruses, fungi and parasites. Now we face a new generation of bugs that are completely resistant to any antibiotics due to antibiotic over-prescribing and resultant survival-of-the-fittest microorganisms.

Research has demonstrated that colloidal silver is non-toxic to humans, yet it allows no known disease-causing organism to live in its presence. With the addition of trace colloidal gold and trace crystalline drias, the frequency of GAIACOL is remarkably enhanced to facilitate the demise of these newer, more powerful viruses and bacteria. GAIACOL is gentle enough to use topically on just about any skin, hair, or mouth condition without fear of toxicity and is outstanding for burns.

For internal use during any type of infectious process, start with one teaspoon the first day and then 10-12 drops, 3-4 times per day under the tongue until the infection clears. Then maintain with 3-4 drops, 3-4 times per day under the tongue. IMPORTANT: Due to the powerful nature of this product, friendly bacteria can be affected, so it is advisable to replace the natural intestinal flora with some type of acidophilus/lactobacillus supplement daily, or at least when symptoms are noted such as cramps, bloating, diarrhea/constipation and a general feeling of malaise.

GAIACOL is said to be safe for children and pets, and can be taken with other medications without incident. This product is not addictive and does not build up a tolerance to it in the body. Available in 2oz., 16oz., and 32oz. bottles.

ences in Philadelphia, said they conducted their study to test an idea expressed by many medical educators that doctors are less skilled than they used to be at traditional tasks like examining patients and making diagnoses based on physical findings.

Mangione said he found the findings troubling. "This is an important skill," he said. "Everybody agrees that the bulk of our diagnosis, 80 percent of it, is based on the patient's history and the physical exam." A doctor who knows what to listen for can find out a great deal with a stethoscope, he said, especially about heart valve disorders.

Doctors who lack that ability may harm patients by failing to recognize important problems. Mangione said, or they may cause needless anxiety and expense by ordering tests to diagnose heart murmurs that they should have known, just from listening, to be harmless.

Mangione and Nieman said that their findings were especially worrisome in today's era of managed care, because generalists—including family practitioners and internists like those in the study—are taking care of more and more people. [End quoting]

BAR-B-QUE? OOPS!!

From the INTERNET, 8/97: [quoting]

Sometimes being the editor of a health magazine seems like a curse—there are some things I'd rather not know! Like when I found out grilling is both a health and environmental hazard. In the past, I've looked forward to summertime backyard barbecues. To me, everything tastes better cooked over coals. But did you know grilled meat is a health risk? According to the National Cancer Institute, grilled meat contains potent carcinogens called heterocyclic aromatic amines that form when amino acids in meat and creatine, a chemical in muscle tissue, are heated together at temperatures exceeding 212°F. Smoked meat is also contaminated with polycyclic aromatic hydrocarbons, another carcinogen created when fat from meat drops onto hot coals and sends smoke back up into the meat. In addition, cooking meat over charcoal emits air-polluting compounds including hydrocarbons, furans, steroids and pesticide residues.

Soyfoods, vegetables and fruit, which don't form carcinogens when grilled, are much safer choices for summer cookouts. [End quoting]

If you continue to listen to every bit of food advice you'll never eat again. The safest way to go is use common sense and don't go overboard in either direction in worrying about what is safe and what is not. Balance is the key to a good life.

MASS MURDER INCORPORATED? "TAVISTOCK'S MARTIN BRYANT"

Excerpted from AN INVESTIGATION BY ALLEN DOUGLAS & MICHAEL SHARP, 5/16/97: [quoting]

THE BATTLE FOR THE MIND

Tavistock's methods were outlined by Dr. William Sargant in his 1950s book, The Battle for the Mind: A physiology of conversion and brainwashing. A pioneer in the study of "shell shock", Sargant also emphasized the work of Soviet psychologist Pavlov in the 1920s and 1930s. In particular an incident in which a rising flood trapped some of Pavlov's dogs in their cages. The water rose to their heads, before receding. Pavlov found that the intense fear the dogs experienced had "wiped clean" the tricks they had been taught. Following this event he found they could be "reprogrammed". Further experiments by the SAS/SIS (Special Air Services/Secret Intelligence Services) during the 1950s, including in Malaya and Kenya, showed Tavistock that such stresses, with resultant "reprogramming" could be applied to entire societies.

REPORTING BACK TO TAVISTOCK

By the early 1960s, Emery, together with the chairman of Tavistock's governing council, Dr. Eric Trist, was giving lectures to select audiences at Tavistock on methods to brainwash entire societies.

In this new age of communications, they said, a series of short, universal shocks would destabilize a targeted population, plunging it into a form of "shell shock", a mass neurosis. If the shocks were repeated over a period of years, a more and more infantile pattern of thinking would develop. (At last, some understanding as to why the electorate keeps on voting for its executioners?)

AND THE TAVISTOCK AGENDA?

Emery elaborated these concepts in his 1976 article in Tavistock's magazine Human Relations, entitled, "The Next Thirty Years: Concepts, Methods, and Anticipations" and in his 1975 book Futures We Are In. In the latter he outlined three stages of a process: (1) People would "lose their moral judgment"; (2) next, "segmentation"—societal disintegration—would begin, in which the individual's focus moves from the regard for the nation-state to a preoccupation with the local community or family; and finally, (3) "disassociation" would set in, "a world in which fantasy and reality are indistinguishable", in which the individual becomes the mere 'societal unit'. Emery called this final result "Clockwork Orange" after the Anthony Burgess novel, in which habitual, random violence by gangs of youth is the order of the day, while adults retreat to their television sets and other forms of "virtual reality".

A RETREAT FROM REALITY?

For example: What level of public reaction involving parents of young children, occurred when the "discussion" paper "Sexual Offences Against The Person" prepared by the Model Criminal Code Officers Committee of the Standing Committee of Federal, State, and Territory Attorneys General proposed to lower the age of sexual consent to the age of ten, and to "allow" incest involving children above the age of 10? So far hardly a ripple; have these young parents also retreated before the onslaught?

IS TAVISTOCK OVER-CONFIDENT?

In 1960, Trist looked back at the last two decades of the assassinations of the Kennedys, Martin Luther King, the Vietnam War, the Oil shocks, the Iranian hostage crisis, etc, and announced that the process that Tavistock had predicted, had indeed begun, and would now accelerate. [End quoting]

Remember that Tavistock is part of the "Royal Secrets" that the Queen Mother would just as soon not have you know about. Keep that in mind with respect to this week's Front Page story.

SLIPPING AND SLIDING AWAY

From POPULAR SCIENCE magazine, October 1997: [quoting]

From power tools to cars, a variety of machines could last longer and run more efficiently with the help of a new lubricant. It's made from molecules that act like tiny ball bearings.

To reduce friction, conventional high-performance lubricants contain such solid ingredients as tungsten disulfide, which has platelet-shaped molecules. Over time, however, the edges of the platelets can abrade machine parts.

Reshef Tenne of the Weizmann Institute of Science in Rehovot, Israel, leads a team that can make tungsten disulfide from buckyball-like spheres. "We cook metal oxides and sulfur to 800° C," he says. The compounds curl into spheres 1,000 angstroms in diameter. The spheres cut the friction level attained by conventional lubricants in half and reduce wear on parts to one-sixth of current levels, says Tenne.

Next, Tenne will work toward manufacturing the tiny spheres on a commercial scale. [End quoting]

I wonder how long the Elite will make us wait to benefit from this new product?

BOY, 3, DIES OF FLU VIRUS IN UNPRECEDENTED CASE

From THE ORLANDO SENTINEL, 8/21/97: [quoting]

HONG KONG—A 3-year-old boy died after contracting an influenza strain that had never before been seen in humans, Hong Kong officials said Wednesday. Laboratories in Hong Kong, the United States, Britain and the Netherlands identified a specimen collected from the boy's trachea as carrying a virus called influenza A of H4N1 strain, previously found mainly in birds. Officials said there is no effective vaccine. [End quoting]

Another one of the Elite's new releases?? They are going to get us one way or another if they possibly can.

WARNED BY AN ANGEL?

From ANGELS ON EARTH, May/June 1996, Guideposts, 39 Seminary Hill Rd., Carmel, NY 10512: [quoting]

I started smoking when I was 35 and within a month was up to 60 cigarettes a day. I couldn't talk on the phone, eat or get out of bed without lighting up. My coughs and colds increased and led to flu and then pneumonia. In the emergency room a blond, blue-eyed doctor took my vital signs. He didn't need a stethoscope to hear the rasping in my chest. "Do you smoke?" he asked. "I've been thinking about trying to quit," I said. Knowing how untruthful my reply was I couldn't look him in the face, so I focused on his huge, square brass belt buckle, which seemed out of place with his white coat. "Lady, it's the death knell," he practically yelled, then strode out of the room. His words rang in my ears. I had to stop. I entered a program to quit and a week later went to report my progress to the belt-buckled doctor, but no one knew whom I was talking about. When I called admissions to track him down, I was told that no doctor on staff fit my description. But someone had gotten through to me. Thank goodness for that antismoking angel. [End quoting]

Ancient Space-Men: Bel And The Dragon

9/6/97 NORA BOYLES

Have you ever wondered or seriously considered why so much ancient knowledge of God and His Hosts, as revealed in archeological excavations, myths and legends, was left out of the Old Testament? For example, why wasn't the knowledge of God, called Father-God Bel, and His son, the younger Bel or Mar-duk of ancient Sumerian records, a major part of the Old Testament? Those people who accept the Bible as the whole Truth must at least recognize that eons of time and a great deal about God are unaccounted for therein. If the world had been given the Truth about Father-God Bel in the Old Testament, it would not be so difficult for people now to accept Gyeorgos Ceres Hatonn. I will explain.

According to Hatonn, one of His names was "Bel"! Archeological finds in the late 19th century and early 20th century in the area of Babylon reveal that the Babylonians of prehistoric times called Father-God "Bel" during one of His visits to this Earth. He was symbolically depicted with wings! He must have been able to "fly" in some fashion.

Prominent among the discovered artifacts were symbols of a flying disk—depicted as a sphere with wings! Just imagine how that symbol could be used to teach illiterate people. Do you see, or have you known in your own life or in history, any disks with wings, other than as toys or symbols? So—what could these flying disks represent? And, how could the Sumerians know about flying disks (space-ships?) unless they had seen them? The god Ashur used it as his symbol.

A great deal was discovered in the Babylonian area within the last one-hundred-and-fifty years which has been suppressed. Those in power in our time are like those in power in ages past. They have a political and financial interest in keeping the population ignorant of the facts.

It is really interesting that Gyeorgos Ceres Hatonn was known as "George the Dragon Slayer" to the Sumarians (Southern Babylonians), and George the Dragon Slayer is back again doing much the same old thing except on a grander scale. Do you suppose this could be some sort of pattern of necessary events due to the nature of God, our errant civilizations and the changing Earth cycles? According to L.A. Waddell in The Phoenician Origin Of Britains, Scots and Anglo-Saxons, "Geur" was a word sign for the Father-God Bel to the ancient Babylonians. It also translates as "George" (Gyeorgos in Greek). You will find many depictions of Bel, or George, slaying dragons, among the archeological finds in Babylon.

What does the dragon represent? Have you ever seen a dragon or even the ancient remains of one? According to Bible prophecy in Chapter 13 of the Book of Revelation, the "dragon" represents Satan or the adversary and the "beast" of the Apocalypse represents a corrupt world government, being ridden by a false religion. In our day this can only be the "New World Order and One-World Religion" being promoted and treacherously pushed into place as fast as the evil ones can do it. What happened to that "dragon" in Sumaria (aka Sumer) at the hands of Father-God Bel (aka George the Dragon Slayer) can surely be repeated in our world today.

Rev. 13:1 and 4-6

"And I stood upon the sand of the sea, and saw a beast rise up out of the sea, having seven heads and ten horns, and upon his horns ten crowns, and upon his heads the name of blasphemy.

"And they worshipped the dragon which gave power to the beast: and they worshipped the beast, saying, Who is like unto the beast? Who is able to make war with him?"

"And there was given unto him a mouth speaking great things and blasphemies; and power was given unto him to continue forty and two months.

"And he opened his mouth in blaspheme against God, to blaspheme His name, and His tabernacle, and them that dwell in heaven."

There is an Apocryphal book in The Geneva Bible titled Bel And The Dragon. It states therein that the book was actually the fourteenth chapter of the Book of Daniel. I went to my King James Version of the Holy Bible to find this chapter. The Book of Daniel now ends with Chapter 12! According to Bel And The Dragon (or Daniel's deleted Chapter 14) at the time of the prophet Daniel, the worship of Bel as God had deteriorated into the worship of the statue (idol) of Bel. In fact, the corrupt priesthood had persuaded the people, and even the king, that the idol ate the food offerings they had been taught to place before it. Daniel showed the king the Truth. It was the priests and their families who came after dark and ate the food. Through these lies and treachery the priests had made the people support them and their families. This worship of the statue of Bel deteriorated further into the worship of many idols, later called "Baals", by those led astray by the greedy and powerful priests. Baal worship was still prominent among the ten tribes of Israel after they separated from Judah and Benjamin and the temple in Jerusalem. The dates of this separation occurred prior to 722 B.C. when the ten tribes were captured by Tiglath-Pileser. (Ref.: Encyclopedia Judaica and The Jewish Encyclopedia)

Why Chapter 14 of the Book of Daniel was deleted from the Bible can be surmised from its contents. Even though the services have changed, our approved Bible today is still a servant of the priests and their overseers—those in power who decide what goes in and what stays out of this greatest control-and-propaganda device of all time. This is not to say that there is no Truth left in the Bible. However, just as Daniel saw the falsification of the Truth of Bel, we are seeing the deletion of the Truth brought by Daniel.

Since the Book of Daniel now ends at Chapter 12, and Chapter 14 is now part of the Apocrypha, I checked to see if chapter 13 was also part of the Apocrypha. It is. However, the Apocrypha was an established part of The Geneva Bible, printed in A.D. 1560. Since the Apocrypha books were determined by a council of men as "not canonical" and removed from the sanction and use of the Catholic Church, we know that some remnant of information about Bel and the Dragon was still being used at the time the books were gathered together and the Bible was compiled in the 5th Century A.D. Apocryphal books have more recently been translated and reprinted for public use. However, the Apocrypha did not become a part of the King James Version of the Holy Bible, or the later modern translation of the Bible. Most people do not know about Bel And The Dragon or Daniel's Chapters 13 and 14. If they do find it in the Apocrypha, they have been trained to discredit it.

It appears that greed, desire for power and corruption, whether in government or in a "religion", is a typical sign of the "dragon" that needs "slaying". Corruption can be identified as a total abandonment of God and His Laws and the Laws of Creation. This is one reason for God's return to this planet and people of His Creation. People must be given the Truth of how it is, and make their choices before the end of this cycle.

L.A. Waddell, in The Phoenician Origin Of Britains, Scots and Anglo-Saxons, tells us: "In the early Sumerian, or Hittite and Babylonia seals and sculptures, the figure of the Sun-god Bel slaying the winged Dragon is very frequent..." That Bel was a "Sun-god" is most interesting when you read about other Sun-gods in Egypt and elsewhere in Mr. Waddell's work. Considering the fact that Bel was a Sun-god, and many of the later so-called "Baals" were Sun-gods, one begins to get a better sense of the significance of these facts when combined with the later knowledge of Akhenaton and Aton, depicted as a huge Sun, with rays extending out, holding the sign of life in Egypt. Today we have George the Dragon Slayer (Gyeorgos Ceres Hatonn) telling us that He is now in the fourth dimension but in His higher aspects He is 'ATON'! 'ATON' is Creator God, and is Light. He is the Central Sun of His Creation.

It seems more obvious all of the time that, as Hatonn has indicated, earlier people were given as much knowledge as they could comprehend each time God has visited this Earth—and it has been imperfectly transmitted to us. I asked Hatonn if the carving of the Sun on a stone stele in Akhenaton's time was representative of a teaching or was there a spaceship involved. Hatonn said: "both"! The people were given the teaching about God Aton and the Central Sun. The "brotherhood" was also present—meaning, I believe, the space-brothers!

There is a detailed article titled, "Baal, Beel, Bel (fem. Baalat, Bella, Beltu)" in The Encyclopedia of Religion and Ethics, with some excellent information on Bel under item 6. I will quote it at length: (quoting) Babylonia was originally occupied by the non-Semitic race known as Sumerian...

At the earliest period disclosed to us by the Babylonian inscriptions, En-lil, the god of Nippur, had become the most important of all the Sumerian deities. He was the en, or 'lord', par excellence, and was worshipped in all parts of Babylonia as well as at his proper residence. He bore the titles 'king of heaven and earth' (VAB p.15), 'king of the lands, father of the gods' (VAB p.37). As chief of the gods, who had his seat upon the mountain of the north where the gods assembled, he was called 'great mountain'. His tower-temple at Nippur was known as E-kur, 'the mountain house'. All this indicates that Nippur must once have been the political as well as the religious centre of Babylonia; but this was in pre-historic times. In the period represented by the earliest inscriptions (c. 4000 B.C.), Nippur had lost the political hegemony, although its god still retained his ancient pre-eminence.

Alongside of En-lil stood his consort, Nin-lil, who shared the high rank of her husband. She was known as 'the lady of the lower world, the mistress of heaven and earth'. One of her common titles was Nin-har-sag, 'lady of the great mountain', with reference to her supremacy on the mountain of the gods. Associated with En-lil as the greatest gods of the Sumerian pantheon were Anu, 'the sky', and En-ki, 'lord of the sea'. Anu is mentioned in the earliest inscriptions, and, like En-lil, had temples in all parts of Babylonia. En-ki, otherwise known as E-a, 'house of water', was the patron-god of Eridu. In pre-historic times this city lay at the head of the Persian Gulf, and must have been politically one of the most important cities of Babylonia. In the inscriptions of Lugalzaggizi (perhaps as early as B.C. 4000) the triad En-lil, Anu, and En-ki is already known (VAB i. 155), and it is frequently mentioned in the oldest inscriptions. Thus the visible universe was portioned out between Anu, lord of the sky; En-lil, lord of the earth; and En-ki or E-a, lord of the sea. There is reference perhaps to this triad in the words of the second commandment, 'the heavens above, and the earth beneath, and the waters under the earth' (Jastrow, Die Rel. Bab. p. 140). A second triad of inferior dignity consisted of Ur, the Moon-god of Ur; Utu, the Sun-god of Sippar; and Nana, the goddess of Erech. The superior rank of the moon-god in this triad was due to the greater political importance of his city, Ur.

The Semites who entered Babylonia used the word bêl (= ba'al, cf. Aram.) in all the senses in which it was used by the other Semites, and in addition, developed the meaning 'master' or 'lord', which is not found in the other dialects. They spoke of their gods as bêl, both with reference to their ownership of physical objects and places, and with reference to their authority over tribes and individuals. The worshipper addressed his god as bêli, 'my lord'—a usage that is not found in the other Semitic languages. When they conquered Babylonia, they found the Sumerian gods on the ground, and adopted them as their own, just as Israel adopted the b' alim of Canaan. The en of a particular object or locality became for them the bêl; the nin, the bêlit. The old Sumerian Moon-god Ur became Sin, the bêl of Ur; the Sun-god of Sippar, Shamash, the bêl of Sippar; Nana of Erech, Ishtar, the bêlit of Erech. The names of other Sumerian gods, such as Ea and Ningirsu, were retained untranslated, and they were known as the bêls or bêlits of their respective sanctuaries. En-lil, as the chief god of Babylonia, was known as Bêl par excellence (there is no article in Bab.), and in course of time this appellative drove the old name out of use and became the common designation of the god, so that when Bêl was mentioned without any qualifying word, En-lil was understood to be meant. Thus in Babylonia Bêl became the name of an individual god in a way that was never true of Ba'al among the West Semites.

In like manner, Nin-har-sag, the consort of En-lil, was known as Bêlit, 'the lady'. For many centuries after the conquest of Babylonia by the Semites their language was not reduced to writing, and the ancient Sumerian was employed as a sacred tongue for all the inscriptions in the temples. The result is that before the time of Hammurabi the name of the god of Nippur is always written En-lil, although it is certain that the Semites habitually called him Bêl. From the time of Hammurabi onward Semitic inscriptions begin to be common, and then the name of the god appears written phonetically Bêl or Bêlu. The old name En-lil continued, however, to be used as an ideogram for Bêl down to the latest times. The Semites of all parts of Babylonia have left inscriptions in honour of this god. Eannatum, king of Lagash (c. 3000 B.C.), calls him 'the lord of heaven and Earth', and speaks of Sin, the Moon-god of Ur, as 'the strong calf of En-lil'. When he conquers the people of Gishhu, it is in the name of En-lil (VAB i.14). He speaks of himself as 'endued with strength by En-lil, nourished with holy milk by Nin-har-sag' (VAB i. 19). He owes his position as king to the fact that 'his name has been spoken by En-lil' (VAB i. 19). Entemela of Lagash undertook restorations of the temple at Nippur, and constructed there a laver for the god (VAB i. 34). Gudea also ascribes his appointment as king of Lagash to En-lil (VAB i. 114), and wages his wars in the name of En-lil (VAB i. 128, 130). Ningirsu, the patron-god of Lagash, is called the son of En-lil (VAB i. 123). The temple of En-lil at Shirpurla, the capital of Lagash, was called E-adda, 'house of the father', which shows the superior position that he held over against the local god. Ur-engur, king of Ur, rebuilt E-kur, the temple of En-lil at Nippur (VAB i. 189). By the dynasty of Ur En-lil was honored to an extraordinary degree (cf. VAB 196b-c, 198, 200 b-d). Aradsin of Larsa calls En-lil his god, who has given him the throne (VAB i. 212). Votive inscriptions in his honour from kings in all parts of Babylonia have been found by the expedition of the University of Pennsylvania at Nippur. His worship spread even as far as Elam (VAB i.

Two winged deities with a sacred tree. The two bearded figures wearing horned headdresses kneeling on either side of a stylised tree, towards which they stretch out protective hands, probably represent Enlil, or Bel, the god of the earth, or perhaps his twin guardian figures. Sacred trees, or trees of life, were particularly associated with the worship of Enlil. Bas-relief from Nimrud, c. 900 B.C.

The primitive character of Bêl of Nippur is difficult to determine, on account of the confusion of this god with Marduk in all the later religious texts. From the oldest inscriptions we gather that he was conceived as a mighty warrior, armed with a net, who marched forth for the destruction of the enemies of his worshippers (VAB i. 14, 19, 128, 130). The Creation-epic shows that in its original form he was regarded as the creator of heaven and Earth. He determined the fates of men (VAB i. 21, 122). Oaths were administered in his name, and he punished those who violated them (VAB i. 14). On his temple at Nippur and the remains there found see Peters, Nippur; Hilprecht, Babylonian Expedition of the University of Pennsylvania, and Explorations in Bible Lands.

The high position that Bêl of Nippur maintained for centuries was finally lost through the rise of the city of Babylon to political supremacy. Before the time of Hammurabi (c. 2200 B.C.), Babylon was a relatively obscure place, and its chief god, Marduk, enjoyed only a local celebrity. He was originally the god of the morning and the spring Sun, who had become the bêl of Babylon by a process similar to that by which Sin, the moon-god, had become the bêl of Ur. When Hammurabi expelled the Elamites and united all Babylonia beneath his rule, Babylon became the chief city of the empire, and Marduk, its god, was suddenly exalted to the chief place in the pantheon. He now became Bêl, or 'lord', par excellence; and this title presently became a proper name that was used even more frequently than his real name, Marduk. There were now two Bêls in Babylonia—the old Bêl of Nippur, who, in spite of the fallen state of his city, was still revered through force of religious conservatism, and the new Bêl of Babylon, who had proved himself to be the de facto lord through the strength of Hammurabi's arms. What was more natural than to attempt to prevent conflict between the two potentates by affirming their identity? This step was taken by the priests of Babylon as early as the reign of Hammurabi. All the attributes of the old Bêl of Nippur, 'lord of lords', 'lord of heaven and Earth', 'lord of the lands', 'creator', etc., were transferred directly to the new Bêl of Babylon. All the ancient hymns and prayers to Bêl of Nippur were appropriated to the use of his rival. When Hammurabi and his successors of the first dynasty speak of Bêl, and use the language of the ancient inscriptions, they mean Marduk. In spite of this attempted syncretism, however, the priests were unable to banish the old Bêl entirely even from Babylon. As a member of the supreme triad—Anu, Bêl, Ea—Bêl held his own, and was constantly invoked in the inscriptions along with Bel-Marduk; but this was more a religious formula inherited from the past than an active belief. For all practical purposes of worship, Enlil-Bêl was absorbed by Marduk-Bêl. Outside of the city of Babylon the claim of Marduk to be the same as the older Bêl was not received without opposition, and there are evidences of a long struggle before it became a dogma acknowledged throughout Babylonia. The priests of Nippur naturally never accepted it, and throughout the entire period of the Kassite third dynasty Nippur retained its place as a sanctuary, to which pilgrims flocked from all parts of Babylonia. The Kassite kings had no special fondness for the patron-god of the dynasty of Hammurabi, and they bestowed special honour upon the old Bêl of Nippur (Hilprecht, Old Bab. Inscr. I. i. Nos. 28-32). With the fall of the Kassites and the establishment of a native Babylonian dynasty, Marduk regained the place that Hammurabi had given him, and Bêl of Nippur waned until little remained but the memory of his former glory. Curiously enough, Bêlit of Nippur did not share the fate of her husband and became the wife of Marduk when he was identified with Bêl. Marduk had already a consort, Sarpanitum, a relatively unimportant goddess, who was in no way comparable with the old Bêlit of Nippur. The two were never identified, as logical consistency would have demanded, but Bêlit held her own as an independent great goddess.

In the inscriptions of the Assyrian kings, Bêl usually means Marduk. He occupies the second place in the pantheon (after Ashur), and is usually named in connection with his 'son' Nabu, the patron-god of Borsippa. The Assyrian kings showed him the highest reverence; and even when they conquered Babylonia, they claimed to do it in the service of Bêl, and took the throne by the formal ceremony of grasping the hands of Bêl at Babylon. Along with this there existed also the cult of the older Bêl of Nippur. The old triad, Anu, Bêl, Ea, still stands at the head of lists of gods in which Marduk appears as a separate deity; and when the Assyrian kings speak of Bêl, the lord of the lands, who dwells on the holy mountain, they mean the Bêl of Nippur. Tiglath-Pileser I. states expressly that he restored a temple of 'the old Bêl' at Ashur (Rawlinson, i. p. 14, col. vi. 87). This double use of Bêl as a proper name lasted through the entire Assyrian period, and, besides this, bêl retained its generic meaning as a title of all the gods. The standing formula for the gods in general is ilâni rabûti bêlêya, 'the great gods my lords'. Bêlit was worshipped in Assyria partly as the ancient goddess of Nippur, partly as the consort of Anu or Ashur. Her name is also used as a title of the Assyrian Ishtar. This confusion is due to the fact that the common noun bêlit never lost its appellative meaning of 'mistress'. Many goddesses might be called 'mistress', and then through this similarity of title be confused with one another. When Ashurbanipal wishes to distinguish the older Bêlit, he calls her Bêlit of Nippur (Rawlinson, v. 8, col. viii. 98, 99).

In the New Bab. period Bêl-Marduk regained the supremacy that in the Assyrian period he temporarily surrendered to Ashur. His cult was revived with great glory by Nabopolassar, Nebuchadrezzar, and Nabonidus, and all the attributes of supreme divinity were heaped upon him. Throughout Babylonia he was acknowledged without question as the Bêl, and his cult spread widely in the provinces of the empire. We have found it already at Palmyra (see above, iii. 5). Its presence at Edessa is attested by Jacob of Sarug (ZDMG xxix., 1875, p. 131). When Bêl is mentioned in the OT and Apoc. it is always Marduk that is meant. The old Bêl is unknown, except in so far as his character survives in his successor. [End quoting]

The above excerpt was taken from a very lengthy article written by Lewis Bayles Paton.

Some comments on the above:

1. En-lil (Bêl) was "chief of the Gods and had his seat upon the mountain of the north where the gods assembled." I believe this statement provides an identification of the "sides of the North" to which Lucifer wanted to ascend so that he could be "like the most High" (Isaiah 14:13). In other words, there is a continuity of ideas in the Old Testament which originate in Babylon with Father-God Bêl. Indeed, if one considers the mountain to the north of Babylon to be located in the Himalayas then other religious groups have also shown a strong interest in this "mountain" and its inhabitants (for example, the Tibetan Buddhists and their legends of Shambhalla).

2. In the statement "When they [the Semites] conquered Babylonia, they found the Sumerian gods on the ground and adopted them as their own", we have some support for the fact, as stated by Barbara Mertz in her book Temples Tombs and Hieroglyphics, The Story of Egyptology, that "wisdom literature" abounded throughout the Middle East and some of it was incorporated into the Old Testament. The author of this article does not equate "The Semites" here with the Hebrews. However, remember, that Abraham was not called "Hebrew" until he had left Ur of the Chaldees and journeyed to Palestine, the history and the date of which is under severe questioning. Hatonn has said that the Hebrews overcame the Sumerians (aka Sumerians), took their records and rewrote them according to their own history. It appears that the author of this article has provided us with some support for Hatonn's statement.

3. As stated, "The Creation-epic shows that in its original form He [Bêl] was regarded as the Creator of heaven and Earth." Yet, even though the Semites knew of Him we do not see Him mentioned in the Creation story of our present Old Testament.

4. There is a precedent set in the Babylonian "religion" whereby the son, Marduk, is considered the same as God (Bêl). This is the same idea taken up by the authors of the New Testament in their interpretation of Esu/Immanuel's relationship to God, the Father—which appears to be a continuity of Babylonian religious beliefs. They even borrowed the same titles and descriptions (i.e.: "lord of lords", "lord of heaven and Earth", etc.).

Little Crow Speaks At August Gathering

[Part II in a Series]

Editor's note: The following is a further transcription (Part I was in last week's CONTACT) of Little Crow addressing those gathered for several days in Tehachapi during this year's Mountain Festival (tapes available from The Word: 8/16/97 to 8/19/97, New Year Celebration meeting tapes). Little Crow's words offer insight and often humorous respite in these difficult times.

Some of us, our lives are—we are in different places in our lives—some of us pray we will be here next year. And maybe more will be here, and some won't. Whatever, I am hopeful that everyone will be here next year, at least in contact or whatever. But the idea changed for me as an indigenous person. I need to get past that as a human being. To be a human being in this time has probably been the greatest experience I could have ever asked for. That I could have ever asked for.

And to experience all of the things that I have experienced, I take complete and sole responsibility for it as being my script. I cannot blame a parent, or the military, or the government, or the FBI or the CIA—or, I can't blame anybody for the experience except myself and my participation in it. My participation in it. And my participation does not always mean necessarily physically involved in it, working for the federal government or serving the country. Doing this or doing that. To physically participate is simply to breathe. We all have contributed to the condition that we find ourselves in by the mere act of breathing. We are still here. We still love to breathe. We are still breathing. By breathing we are participating in the totality of everything that is. We are related and connected to it and we affect it and it affects us and we are responding to those conditions on a breath-by-breath basis. It is such a simple process. A simple process to look at and then eliminate all the dialogue and the wasted time contemplating the navel and the higher self, and simply get to work doing what is necessary to be done. If you want something changed, change it.

In talking about the great influx of New Age involvement with Indian rituals and ceremonies—I will just touch on that briefly. There was this mass exit from all of these different religions looking for this place somehow where they could really feel or put themselves together. And that has been something we have done always. If we don't like it, we move. We don't like the situation, we get a divorce. Or we leave, or we do something; we quit a job, or whatever. But we never stay long enough to fix it. Because if we are someplace that doesn't work for us it would behoove us to consider (one time) to stay there and fix it. To stay there and do something about it. If we feel it is filled with injustice and iniquity then we need to stay there and work with it. I say this to a lot of people who come looking for the magic formula, vision quest and sweat lodges and all those things and saying, "You have no idea what that involves, you have no idea the community and the connection of community that is invested in it for millions of years." Just to pay your $100 or $5,000 or $700 or $300 and do these things is not enough, because you will do these things and then go away. You will not stay here, you will not work here and you will not invest your time, your energy or your resources here. You only want to say you were able to do it and it's all been for selfish motivation. To give you power or some kind of recognition that this is what you have done. A Sun dance and a sweat, and this and that and so on and so forth, and that's all—just (laughter) bah humbug! Because you have not taken it in to utilize it for the community. The community has not benefited from it whatsoever.

Anything you take from the community you must also be willing to give back to the community in whatever form that you can, ungrudgingly. Ungrudgingly, without reservations, so to speak, without animosity or without expectation. It takes a long time to get to that place, maybe; I don't know, I'm still working on it. We have been in operation 20 years down there [in Garden Grove] with something to share with people, the concept. It is ok to give to someone you don't know. It's ok to help someone you don't know, because believe me or not, it will come back to you.

It will come back to you in some way. In a positive way. Positive, negative, who cares? It is just a matter of perspective. Is it a positive now? Is that negative energy? Whoops! How much Indian are you 3/4, 2/4, 1/16th, 1/72nd. Well let's take 1/72nd of your blood and we will just talk to it. "Hello, Indian blood. How are you?" That is a created scenario. That is a—you can't do that. There isn't any way to do that, recreate genetics.

We create the symbol, the phrase; take this phrase: "Spare the rod and spoil the child." Let's say I wrote that 2,000 years ago, minus 40. I sat around one night and got drunk, and I thought I had better write this down, (laughter) so we don't forget it. How did it go again? What did he say? "Spare the rod and spoil the child." I better write it down, as somebody sat there sipping Koolaid, you always have one, a Capricorn usually, sitting there sipping on their mint julep. Watching you go through all this work and then they will say something profound, "Yeah, but in 2,000 years they are going to find out that you don't have to spank the child because by 3 years old their whole socializing process has been structured." Then we will come out with something like "Don't hit the children anymore." So what about "Spare the rod and spoil the child"? Well we will throw that one out, we will just take that one out, we will cut it out; like you do, you know. Cut it out and take it out and when you get to that page you will see this big hole. What was that one? Then pretty soon, if we wait long enough, there are all these holes in the book. We have cut out certain things because it no longer applies because we knew when we wrote it it wouldn't hang on forever. It had to change, because people would change, ideas would change, concepts would change and it wouldn't be relevant any longer. Think of all the ink we wasted.

Amazing, the process, the change that is upon us. Where are we going? My grandchildren are going to live in space. My grandchildren will go back to where we come from. They will go out there and live and pioneer and do all the things that we did here; will go out and walk around. I see some pictures here, and stuff—will go out and walk around. The first guy who throws a gum wrapper on the ground is going to catch "holy heck", because they will be the first polluter, you know. We will go out there and we will explore and we will resettle, resettle where we have already come from. We live in the desert here in California; this is the desert; a lot of green, a lot of water, if we can find water out there. They are gone, those places are gone, because we will be there in a fast minute. We will be staking claims, it will be like the Oklahoma gold rush. Little Land Rovers—get to that place and stick a stake in the ground—we are floating around, got-to-get-here, got-to-get-there and that is the way we will live. We will inhabit the planets again. It will be a wonderful memory lesson, collective consciousness, because we will begin to have deja vu; doggone, I have been here before. Right! Now you remember. This is where we have been in our journey, and there are places we haven't gone yet so let's try to get beyond the idea that there is only one galaxy, one universe.

Let's get into multiple universes. Billions and billions of galaxies, and let's move from there. Let's figure it as an adventure. That we don't have to pollute this one beyond livability and we can clean this one up for those who don't feel like traveling: us older folks. We can do the twilight of our years here. Setting up on the fat of the hill over here, looking out over the freeway, you know. All you young whipper-snappers can be doing whatever you want to, out there in the outerland. The hinterland, out there. Doing what is necessary to do. I will still be here, talking about playing everyday, connected to the stuff, and everything is related and everyone is sacred. I may not be as full of vitality, I may have to be sitting down all the time, but I will have some people coming to hear me. I will, but that's the way it has always been, isn't it? Haven't we always gone to some place to hear something that we already know. Anybody come here from a long ways? How far is a long ways?

Audience: Hawaii, Bear Valley, Texas, West Virginia, Washington, Canada and Ohio. Thank you very much. Couldn't get along without Ohio.

Little Crow: I have come up here from Orange County. Costa Mesa, Garden Grove—come a long way. What do you want? What do you want me to say? What do you want to hear? I want to open this right now to that issue if I can because I have told you everything that I need to tell you.

What the future holds for us is: that your projects, your plans here are going to come to fruition; my projects, my plans are going to come to fruition; we are all going to succeed. It's been done; it has happened already and we are just working through the process. That's all, you are just working through the process, it has already happened.

So, put the energy not in wondering how you are going to do it, but just put your mind to doing it and do what's necessary to get it done. That means everybody. Everybody here, like everybody down there, I say get off your backsides and turn on the switch and just get to do something. Give me a commitment for three years. Give me a commitment for one year. If I need something, I call you and I don't need excuses. I want you to do it, just do it and we will get to where we need to go. They just look at me, you know. Some have backed off but more have jumped up and said, "Yeah, put me down for three years." And then I can't find them. (laughter) Their phone has been cut off, "This number is no longer in service, if you feel you have dialed by mistake, try again, you chump." Try again, but anyway that's it; so. I can't tell you about that there is this great vastness and your future in it. Hell, you know what's—Doggone, I'm sorry—you know what's in your future; you know.

All you got to do is live with it; live it, live it out. If it becomes too much of a burden back off, pack your bags and jump off the train, that's what I suggested to those at my gathering. And saying, "The engine's begun to pick up steam; if you can't move with the engine, you can't support the engineer, the guy throwing the wood in there, then hop off now before it begins moving too fast and you hurt yourself. 'Cause I don't want you to hurt yourself. Thank you for your love and support to this point; adios, muchachos; hasta la vista, baby. Because I don't have time to try and deal with you when I am trying to guide the train or the car or whatever you want to call it. I don't have the time or the energy nor the wherewithall to waste time anymore fooling with your pettiness and the stuff that isn't important any longer to anyone but yourself. But that is the way to be. If it is important to you then go do something with it, but don't do it here. Do it someplace else. Do you know what I'm saying? Don't waste the time or the energy or the train by pulling in the other direction, and don't cause an accident. It is that simple.

We are growing. We are growing as a result of those kinds of things and becoming more direct and more focused. That's the change that is going on within me. I have given myself three years to do this project, and it is done; already done. When I gave myself three years it was already done. The three years is just for convincing people that it's done. Okay; I am saying ok here it is, here is the building, here is the ground, there it is a sanctuary for humanity. Now I can go on and do what I need to do, what I want to do, something else now. I have something else I need to do.

Mullins, makes the Arab-"Israeli" conflict connection clearer—at least the DIRECT connection, if not the less visible, ancestral link. And then Executive Intelligence Review and a collection of other news and Internet postings round out our presentation.

Especially as one efforts to understand the truly vast historical underpinnings of this event, it would be most wise to go back and review Dr. John Coleman's superb reference volume called, Conspirators' Hierarchy: The Story Of The Committee Of 300. I say this because the tangled web of intrigue, into which Diana's and Dodi's murders fit like central puzzle pieces, goes back a lot farther than any of our recent authors have so far explained. To be specific, one must recall the ancient "Black Nobility" of Khazarian Zionist extraction and the House of Windsor's roots therein, traced back to the Venetian Black Guelphs branch of that dark brotherhood.

Or as John Coleman puts it: "The Committee of 300 is THE ultimate secret society made up of an untouchable ruling class, which includes the Queen of England, the Queen of the Netherlands, the Queen of Denmark, and the royal families of Europe. These aristocrats decided, at the death of Queen Victoria, the matriarch of the Venetian Black Guelphs, that, in order to gain world-wide control, it would be necessary for its aristocratic members to 'go into business' with the non-aristocratic, but extremely powerful, leaders of corporate business on a global scale, and so the doors to ultimate power were opened to what the Queen of England likes to refer to as 'the commoners'.

"From my days in the intelligence business I know that heads of foreign governments refer to this all-powerful body as 'The Magicians'. Stalin coined his own phrase to describe them: 'The Dark Forces', and President Eisenhower, who was never able to get beyond the 'hofjuden' (court Jew) grade, referred to it in a colossal understatement as 'the military-industrial complex'. Stalin kept the USSR heavily armed with conventional and nuclear forces because he did not trust what he called 'the family'. His ingrained mistrust and fear of the Committee of 300 proved to be well-founded."

Next, remember that Diana was now in a very good position to "tell all" about some of the inner, secret goings-on of the aristocratic society that eventually scorned her. And just what might be some of the dirty secrets that Windsor and the Queen Mother—bless her purple hat—would just as well not have spread across the London daily papers to further excite a public that has hardly been praising the recent royal "cold shoulder" manners toward Diana?

Again, let us consult John Coleman:

"...Rememeber, Dope=Big Business and Big

Business is done by the oligarchical families of Europe and the United States Eastern Liberal Establishment. The drug business is not a Mafia operation, nor one run by the Colombian cocaine cartels. The noble families of Britain and America's top people are not going to advertise their role in the shop windows; they always have a layer of front men to do the dirty work....

"Since this is not a book about the drug trade, I cannot, of necessity, cover the subject in an in-depth manner. But its importance to the Committee of 300 must be emphasized. America is run, not by 60 families, but by 300 families, and England is run by 100 families and, as we shall see, these families are intertwined through marriages, companies, banks, not to mention ties to the Black Nobility, Freemasonry, the Order of St. John of Jerusalem, and so on. These are the people who, through their surrogates, find ways to protect huge shipments of heroin from Hong Kong, Turkey, Iran, and Pakistan, and ensure they reach the market places in the U.S. and Western Europe with the minimum cost of doing business."

Yes, indeed, it would be very inconvenient to the New World Order's plans (to keep the public dumb and sedated under their elaborate schemes of mind control) for Diana's knowledge of the House of Windsor to fall into the hands of, of all people, the Arab nation—worst enemy of all to the Khazarians!

*So do keep this volatile historical slant in mind as you read the latest information we share with you, from several sources, on the assassination of Princess Diana. ### 9/12/97 EUSTACE MULLINS

(From Middle Eastern sources)

For a few terrible moments, it seemed that the fate of Israel hung in the balance. Word had just been flashed from Paris to Tel Aviv that Dodi Fayed had presented Princess Diana with a $200,000 diamond engagement ring. The announcement of their formal engagement was imminent. Why was this of such portent to the State of Israel? Her son, William, was now the heir apparent to the throne. His father, Prince Charles, was despised by the British public. Conversely, they adored Princess Diana. William would be King, with an Arab stepfather. Only a Zionist could understand that, for the first time in a century, they would not have a friend at court.

For almost a hundred years, the Rothschilds had made sure to maintain their standing in the palace at Windsor. Queen Victoria had been dominated by the Rothschild agent, Prime Minister D'Israeli, his name, of course, meaning, of Israel. Her son, King Edward VII, had always been surrounded by Rothschilds and other Jewish bankers, who lavished millions of dollars on him to satisfy his gargantuan appetite for food, entertainment, and beautiful mistresses, while the Rothschilds continued their plans for the colonization of Palestine. This tradition continued unabated throughout the twentieth century. Now, suddenly, it seemed that the unthinkable was about to happen. The Zionists would not have a friend at court. William's reign would be dominated, not by Zionists, but by an Arab and his wife, neither of whom had any reason to feel kindly towards the State of Israel. The Zionists leaders, sensing the inevitable, had been laying plans for the elimination of Princess Diana. Israeli Intelligence, the dread Mossad agency, had already devised several plans, including a car bomb, an assassin with a pistol, poison, and other tried-and-true methods of political assassination.

When Tel Aviv was informed that an engagement announcement was imminent, immediate action was required. However, final approval for the "action" had to come from Zionist leader Netanyahu. He could not be reached. The Mossad officer in charge knew his duty; he grunted the words, "Go ahead." Because the existing plans for Princess Diana's murder could not be employed on such short notice, the agents on duty in Paris were told, use any method; it must be done NOW! Fayed had a number of regular chauffeurs; one of them, Henri Paul, was off duty, and had been spotted drinking in the hotel. A Mossad agent hurried to Fayed's car, and informed the driver that he had been relieved for the night. Another agent went into the bar, signalled a bartender to give Henri Paul a potion, and then informed Paul that he had been called back to duty. Knowing the whims of his employer, Paul made no protest. No doubt he felt strange as he made his way out to the car. The paparazzi were waiting; the scenario for an automobile accident was ready.

Dodi Fayed and the Princess paid no attention to the fact that the driver had been changed. They knew Paul was a reliable driver. Billionaires do not bother themselves with schedules of their servants, or who is to drive and who is off duty. Well-paid minions take care of all such details. Paul got behind the wheel, and they roared away, with the paparazzi in full pursuit. The laughing Fayed, who enjoyed his media celebrity since he had begun dating Diana, yelled at him, "Give it to 'em, Henri." Henri obligingly floor-boarded the big, armored Mercedes. While they were in the tunnel, the driver suddenly felt the full strength of the potion, and slumped forward. As he blacked out, his foot pressed all the way on the accelerator. The mighty engine surged forward until it encountered an immovable object; the car was crushed. Fayed died almost immediately; Diana struggled for breath as the life drained out of her.

THE ISRAELI IMPERATIVE

Any Israeli would see this assassination as both logical and perhaps even moral. You either wanted the State of Israel to survive, or you did not. Fayed's father, Mohammed Al Fayed, the billionaire owner of the historic Harrod's Department Store in London and many other businesses, would not agree, but, in the shock of losing his son and heir, it is doubtful that he would see any political implications in what seemed to be an unfortunate accident. In history, there are not that many accidents. In any case, Zionists had perceived a threat, and had acted promptly to eliminate it. The assassination of Princess Diana did not mean that the security of Israel was now assured. It only meant that one danger had been taken care of. The State of Israel continues to be the loose cannon on the world stage, its very aimlessness a threat not only to such hapless victims as Princess Diana, but to nations as well.

The mass outpouring of grief at the death of Princess Diana, not only in England but throughout the world, indicates that there is a popular intuition at work, a silent recognition that she had been murdered by sinister forces. How else can we explain such depth of feeling for one who, personable and charismatic though she was, could hardly be thought to have touched the pulse of the entire world? This grief acknowledges the fact that she has been martyred by the forces of evil. Now that she has been taken from us, we must face the question; should we wait passively for the next victim of the Zionist terrorists to be murdered before our eyes, or should we begin to take steps to protect not only them, but ourselves as well, from the crazed Zionist murders?

DIANA'S WAR WITH THE WINDSORS

It is remarkable that, only days before her death, Princess Diana gave an interview to the French daily Le Monde, published full-page on Aug. 27, in which she outlined her wars with the "higher-ups" in the Establishment. The interview indicated that she was groping toward a worldview antagonistic to the contemptuous, arrogant view of the higher echelons of the British oligarchy. She told interviewer Annick Cojean: "From the day that I became a member of this [Windsor] family, no more, in any way, was I able to act naturally...I feel myself close to the people, whoever they are. I feel that I am at the same level, on the same wavelength. It is for that reason, that I upset certain circles. Because I am much closer to the people below, than to the people higher up, and these latter individuals do not forgive me. Because I have a real relation of proximity with the most humble...Nobody can dictate my behavior to me. I work by instinct. That is my best adviser."

This was a continuation of a public war that had reached its earlier apogee in the second half of November 1995. On Nov. 20, Diana gave a televised interview to BBC-Panorama, in which she basically declared war on the royal family, and put into question its ability to embody the monarchy. The interview attracted the largest audience of any

ANTI-ESTABLISHMENT REVOLT IN BRITAIN

A number of observers in the United Kingdom are openly speaking about an "English version" of a "popular revolt", when describing the profound shift in mood in the country. Some are going so far as to suggest that what is presently happening in the UK has parallels to the dramatic developments in eastern and central Europe in the summer and autumn of 1989. The events in Britain may be a harbinger that the western world will soon be going through the upheavals that the former Communist sector has seen in the past decade.

The immediate catalyst for this mood in Britain is the disgust at the way the House of Windsor reacted to the death of Diana. While literally millions of Britons were mourning and streaming to London to pay their last respects to the Princess, the royal clan—Queen Elizabeth II, Prince Philip, Prince Charles, etc.—remained closeted at their summer estate in Balmoral, Scotland. When, six days after Diana's death, the queen finally made a rather indifferent condolence statement on national TV, it was too little, too late. British insiders stress that she was forced to act because of the national mood, and because British Prime Minister Tony Blair went to her, and insisted that she do it. One knowledgeable British source said that Blair went to the Queen, and told her to "pull herself together, or else the whole pack of cards might come down." This source said that Blair is playing two games at once, both attempting to "ride" the mood of popular anger, and trying to limit the damage done to the monarchy. The same source's view is that whatever the Queen does will not be enough, as the past days' developments "doom the House of Windsor".

Typical of the kinds of commentaries that were being published in Britain last week, was that of the London Independent's Polly Toynbee, who wrote Sept. 5: "The Royal Family are clearly at a loss to read the meaning of all this. They are behaving as if a revolution is taking place outside the gates of Buckingham Palace. And they may be right." What is happening in Britain goes beyond the emotional issue of Diana's death, as such. As veteran commentator Richard Gott, former editor of the London Guardian, expressed a view that is circulating widely in Britain, the "masses of human beings" gathering to mourn Diana "are united by their rejection of the Establishment. They are hostile against Buckingham Palace, they dislike the political parties, they reject the media."

In comments made to this publication Sept. 8, Harold Brooks-Baker, publishing director of the prominent Burke's Peerage, stated that "what has happened in Britain over the past days is a turning point. What occurred at Westminster Abbey this past Saturday was not a funeral, but a quiet, bloodless revolution, similar to what happened in many countries in 1848." Brooks-Baker also found it to be "a good comparison", to liken the monarchy's reaction to events in Britain, now, to the actions of the East German Communist Politburo, at the time of the fall of the Berlin Wall, in 1989, although he insisted that the situation in Britain is "less desperate". He blamed the "Old Boys' network in Buckingham Palace," centered around the Queen's personal secretary Sir Robert Fellowes, for the various mishaps that have occurred. Burke's Peerage documents all noble and royal families in Britain.

Further complicating matters in the UK is [the fact] that a big challenge to Britain's constitutional structure will be taking shape in the coming days, with the Sept. 11 votes in Scotland and Wales, for "devolution" of significant powers, from the London center, to these regions.

9/11/97 E.I.R.

A TURNING POINT IN BRITAIN

This is a turning point in Britain. What you saw at Westminster Abbey this weekend was not a funeral, but a quiet, bloodless revolution, similar to what happened in 1848." So commented Mr. Brooks-Baker, in on-the-record comments to EIR Alert Service Sept. 8. The publication, for which he is director, is very prominent in the UK, as it documents all noble and royal families.

Brooks-Baker said he found it to be a "good comparison" to liken the monarchy's reaction to what has been happening in Britain to the way the East German Communist Politburo reacted to the fall of the Berlin Wall, as both cases are characterized by a complete misreading of the popular mood, even if, in his view, the situation in Britain is somewhat "less desperate" than it was in East Germany, in 1989.

Asked what he thought about Lyndon LaRouche's evaluation on the "Pearl Harbor Effect" quality of events in Britain these past days, Brooks-Baker responded that "this has been building up, slowly, for some time, and with Diana's death, it was brought to a head; the funeral accelerated the situation. Several things have happened, in recent years, that must be looked at very carefully, in retrospect, for example, stripping Diana of the 'Her Royal Highness' title. That was orchestrated by the Queen's personal private secretary, Sir Robert Fellowes. Even though Fellowes is married to the sister of Diana, the man is living in a time warp! He's in the 18th century. He's part of an old boys' network, in the Palace, who are very effective as an old boys' network, but who don't have very constructive dealings with the millions of people in this country."

Brooks-Baker warned that the monarchy had better change its behavior fast, as least in the direction of "their royal cousins on the continent", or "this throne will disappear". A confirmed and committed monarchist himself, he warned that, as early as one year from now, there could be a vote in Britain, on the country becoming a republic, and, if current trends continue, the monarchy would lose such a referendum.

NEWS DESK SPECIAL REPORT

9/13/97 DR. AL OVERHOLT

3 MORE
"FOETOGS" QUIZZED

Excerpts from Philadelphia Daily News, 9/5/97: [quoting]

Three photographers sought in the investigation of the car crash that killed Princess Diana turned themselves in yesterday. Another photographer who was at the scene insisted the paparazzi did the right thing—summoning help for the victims.

But photographer Laszlo Veres acknowledged not all were intent on helping.

"There were one or two who opened the door of the car, quickly took some frames, and disappeared," he said.

The Fayed family contends the photographers' pursuit caused the accident. But photographer Jacques Langevin, one of those first detained, said colleagues told him the Mercedes sedan "zigzagged dangerously and its driver didn't seem to be in control of it" as it roared through the Place de la Concorde toward the highway along the Seine.

What the investigators want to determine, according to sources close to the investigation, is how closely—and possibly how dangerously—the photographers were pursuing Diana's fleeing Mercedes.

The sources said police are particularly interested in how one photographer's car came to be parked in front of the wrecked Mercedes. From the outset, investigators have asked questions about a car in front of the Mercedes that might have played a role in the accident.

A man who says he drove just ahead of the car in which Britain's Princess Diana was killed told Reuters yesterday he saw a motorcycle swerve directly in front of the Mercedes, making it lose control.

"In my rear-view mirror, I saw the car in the middle of the tunnel with the motorcycle on its left, pulling ahead and then swerving to the right directly in front of the car," Francois Levi said in the Normandy port of Rouen.

"As the motorcycle swerved and before the car lost control, there was a flash of light but then I was out of the tunnel and heard, but did not see the impact," he said.

A magistrate will make the final decision on whether to charge the seven paparazzi and send them to trial. Police are still searching for other photographers believed to have fled the scene. [End quoting]

FRENCH JOURNALISTS CONFIDE: "PRINCESS DIANA WAS ASSASSINATED"

From the INTERNET, by Sherman Skolnick, 9/10/97: [quoting]

In the last few days I have interviewed, extensively, well-informed United Kingdom (UK), French, and other journalists. (And I promised never to use their names because of the nature of what was discussed.) They told me that many of the distinguished journalists in the United Kingdom are aware, from their own reliable sources in key places in the government and elsewhere, that British Intelligence had assassinated Princess Diana.

They went over details of the specifics of how they, as journalists, from their sources (separate from me), know about the technical information on how the assassination was carried out.

But first of all, we have to discuss why the real story is not being told, in print, or on the radio, or on television, in the UK.

Not many know that in the UK they have the Official Secrets Act. By that Act, the London government has the power, throughout the UK, to order that certain subjects are absolutely forbidden to be discussed. Currently, the forbidden subject is any discussion of possible foul play in the death of Princess Diana and her intended husband Dodi Fayed.

Further than that, any discussion is forbidden about how the Official Secrets Act exactly works. When there is a subject that an editor, publisher, or station manager believes would be covered by the Official Secrets Act, they must immediately inform the London government. And if the London government issues what they call a "D Notice", then these media outlets throughout the UK are not only forbidden to go forward with any story that they're working on; but also, the D Notice serves as a potential seizure: it authorizes the UK, through their various operatives, to immediately seize and close down any printing plant that is in the process of printing such a story, any radio station, or any radio- or TV-transmitter. They are immediately seized by the London government, closed down, and the publisher, the editor, and the key personnel (including the writer of the story) are immediately put under arrest.

And the worst part of it is, the rest of the media is not even allowed to mention that these people have been arrested and their publishing and transmitting facilities seized. In other words, it is forbidden to discuss the D Notice and also forbidden to discuss the technical operation of the Official Secrets Act. So, there is censorship regarding the instruments of censorship.

The journalists I spoke with generally agree with what I found out from other sources about how Diana was assassinated.

Apparently another car, a supposed "decoy car" which was to protect her, in fact carried agents of British Intelligence. It came up behind the Mercedes which Diana and the others were in and hit it in some way. And there was already an arrangement through others that a chemical slick was put on the roadway within the tunnel. Ahead of the slick, a heavy construction truck, on signal, backed into the tunnel and dropped or placed an obstruction of a very heavy nature in the roadway. So any which way it turned around, the Diana car could not have gotten away.

Thereafter, British Intelligence planted disinformation (and continues to do so) throughout the world. (For example, "The car came from a junkyard; it was formerly stolen; it's a defective car," "The driver was drunk," "The speedometer was stuck at 120; the car was going over 100 mph.") There's been a flood of these fake stories promoted worldwide by British Intelligence, in which the CIA has seen to it that the American press replicates these stories.

Leading journalists in the UK agree with stories by me and others that Diana was assassinated. And the simple reason for the murder is, British Intelligence is pledged to protect the monarchy. The monarchy was not going to have a new step-father for the heir to the throne—Prince William—they weren't going to have a Moslem.

Further than that, it comes out that Diana had already been given an engagement ring by Dodi Fayed. What has not come out is that she was 3-months pregnant.

So when you put that together, British Intelligence, under their rules, was "justified" in wiping these people out for the purposes of the monarchy, protection of the realm, and "national security". [End quoting]

If we think our censorship laws are bad, this and worse is what we've got to look forward to unless we put a stop to the Elite controllers. We can do it!

QUESTIONS, QUESTIONS— WHY WAS PRINCESS DIANA MURDERED??

Excerpts from many sources on the INTERNET, 9/7/97: [quoting]

More and more, Paris is becoming a center of political assassinations.

ITEM: In July 1996, Amschel Rothschild was murdered, just as he was about to become the new head of the Rothschild worldwide banking empire, tied to the Vatican. Most of the American press were silent: Some said it was a heart attack, others, a suicide. He was found with a bathroom cord tied around his neck, connected to a towel rack. In checking it out, however, the Paris police discovered the rack came right off the wall! Hence, it was murder, not suicide.

Rothschilds and Rockefellers have engaged each other in bloody financial wars for many decades.

Rothschild was murdered on the anniversary of the murder of John D. Rockefeller III, 1978. Recently, we repeated the exclusive details.

ITEM: February 1997: A long-time, major financial supporter of Albert Gore, Jr., was murdered in Paris: Pamela Harriman, U.S. Ambassador to France, widow of Averell Harriman of the major banking and railroad fortune. With her help, Gore had joined with top U.S. military leaders, who had fled to France, to arrest their Commander-in-Chief, Bill Clinton, for treason. [emphasis mine]

ITEM: Various Western intelligence agencies arranged to assassinate Princess Diana, in Paris.

She was killed on a sacred section called Pont d'alma—from that is derived the word "Pontiff", that is, "Pope." The ancient section is where most every royal family in Europe comes from. According to legend, a person killed there goes straight to Heaven, as a representative of Jesus.

According to unreleased witness reports, a vehicle tapped or hit the rear of Diana's Mercedes, one of the heavily-built models, reportedly made bomb- and bullet-resistant.

A slick had already been spread ahead of her car, which then hit an intentional, heavy obstruction planted in the tunnel roadway.

The second car had intelligence agents from the super-secret Committee of Twenty-Six, headquartered in Bristol, England, made up of covert operatives of the United States and the United Kingdom, skilled in murder disguised as an auto accident.

Informed of this in advance, French Intelligence took a "hands off" posture and delayed the arrival of the Paris police to the murder scene. The local authorities in Paris reportedly have "smoking gun" video evidence made by "Paparazzi" on motorbikes (that is, celebrity-chasing photographers), reportedly showing the political assassination details.

Diana and her intended Arab husband were set to shift billions of dollars from the West, to banks in Germany and Austria. [emphasis mine] The princess was crushed between the East and the West: between the Pope and the failing, degenerate British monarchy, the House of Windsor. Newsfakers here and overseas continue to call it a so-called "auto accident".

Why did no UK papers have anyone on the Di/Dodi trail in Paris? Had they been warned off?

Who were the American tourists who were first on the scene? Do they have any connection with US security?

Why had she dispensed with her British security cover whilst in Paris—had she been pressured by anyone to do this?

Why were the BBC and CNN so quick to blame the freelance press photographers who were apparently chasing the car that she was in?

What makes a trained car driver (obviously skilled in security) drive maybe beyond his limitations and crash in a tunnel that isn't really that precarious? Could a secret service agent posing as a reporter have flashed a glimpse of a gun at the car whilst overtaking or pulling level [How about a laser weapon from in front—as according to Commander Hatonn?]. The driver considered the best action was to get the hell out of there, thus the sudden burst of speed. Once in the tunnel, any manner of sophisticated sabotage could be employed to take the car off the road. Meanwhile this mystery man drops back and disappears, allowing the others to swarm around, covering his identity.

Asking who benefits from this situation is helpful, as you did. Charles is the BIG beneficiary, and secondarily, the whole royal family.

There had been talk (supposedly by Diana) of skipping Charles in the succession, and having their son inherit the throne after Elizabeth. I suspect we will hear no more about that now. Also there had been a lot of talk about Elizabeth being the last monarch, that after she died, Charles would be an embarrassment on the throne, etc.

French emergency services are very sophisticated in the way they handle badly injured accident victims. They often operate on accident victims on the side of the road using especially designed portable operating theaters. Why didn't they employ this technique on this occasion?

The Queen was reported to be furious at Di's forthcoming engagement to her rich Egyptian boyfriend, since his father's revelations of his illegal financial involvements with Tory MPs contributed to the recent Tory defeat. I wonder if the Queen was involved. Source of reports: Examiner Newsservices as reported on pages one and four of the San Francisco Examiner for August 31. Attribution is to "the royal family", but we know whom they meant.

Why was there only one ambulance to treat four injured people??? One ambulance alone is not equipped to treat four injured people. The media reported first that "Diana was walking and talking," after the accident. What was that about??? Was she? A woman who "walks/talks" would be in much better shape and not have a massive heart attack a while later.

Why did it take "2 hours" to get her out of the car [according to another story]?

I am increasingly believing that she was murdered. Yes, Princess Grace went the same way. And JFK. This is how "royalty", politicians and governments rid themselves of the ones who don't fit in.

Her affair with Al Fayed was certainly very much hated by the royal clan. He was an Egyptian, a Muslim, etc. They hate him. They had denied him the British Citizenship.

Diana's Legacy on Monarchy Uncertain, by Robert Woodward. The strongest statement from Woodward was the leading sentence, "She was the jewel in the crown of Britain's royal family but critics branded her its most dangerous loose cannon."

Internationalist security specialist Rex Osgood released comments to the effect that Diana's death was a windfall for British royalists and that Prince Charles might once again be in the running to become Britain's next king.

Over the last few months I thought that she was getting ready for 'the cop'; after all, how unhappy The Royals must have been when she took the Princes to see that pro-IRA film recently (oops, sorry). Also, when she took the boys on a luxury cruise holiday on her Arab lover's boat in full view of the world (her "look at us").

Her alliance with a billionaire Egyptian with royal aspirations was just too much: "MY GOD, WHAT IF THE QUEEN MUM WERE A MOSLEM???"

And I also agree when you say she was not liked by any of the establishment because of her views. In this world you have to be UNDER CONTROL but Diana cut herself free of the Royals, did not work for the Government, did not need to work for her money and was not politically aligned. In short, she was considered a loose cannon, dangerous and out of control, and she had far too much influence on the Princes and the world in general. But when she left the royal family she no longer had the protection that they are surrounded by, in fact she 'shunned it' because they were using it to keep tabs on her, but they were seen to do all the right things by offering. Unfortunately this left her exposed and vulnerable.

This will never be publicly linked to the Royals but I'm sure this was a planned murder. It just stares you in the face, it so obviously leaves the way clear for the Royals to take center stage again.

WHOEVER CONTROLS PRINCESS DIANA CONTROLS THE WORLD—"Sheds new light on the death of Princess Di! It was no accident, and the paparrazi weren't her killers!"

SOME VERY STRANGE HAPPENINGS!

The death of Princess Diana is subject to many strange facts. Conveniently, the death takes place in a tunnel away from public view. Conveniently, there are no real witnesses and all film is confiscated. Conveniently, we blame the death on the media hounds, whom no one much likes anyway.

Has anyone seen any damage to the structural pillar the car supposedly hit? The car suffers tremendous damage but does not hit another vehicle in a busy tunnel? Even more conveniently, everyone in the car critically injured as the roof is uniformly collapsed flat. Diana's boyfriend Dodi Fayed is buried before the body is even cold. Any policeman knows that a drunk driver drives slower not faster. This whole thing stinks!

Princess Diana's new-found independent financial power through her rich boyfriend became a political hazard. Diana was becoming more and more political in her visits to promote peace efforts in Bosnia, etc. This became a threat to The New World Order objective of a destabilized Soviet Union. The royal family is a key member of the New World Order and anything affecting the royal family is no accident but, rather, meticulously planned.

Operations such as this one were carried out by British Intelligence. The goal for the death of Diana is three fold; to rally public support for the royal family, squash the rebellious efforts of Diana to promote peace, and set an example for any other members of Royalty who wander astray. A simple assassination was out of the question—Diana would have gone into history as a peacemaker and a martyr.

THE BODY GUARD LIVES, OR DOES HE? This issue is still open for speculation.

Why was her death not reported for four hours?

There were two hospitals that were closer than the one the Princess was taken to. What was the reason behind why she was taken to a hospital so much farther away?

What, if anything, does Princess Diana's mysterious death have in common with the mysterious death of Princess Grace? Is there a curse on the royal family...on ALL the royal families?

What REALLY happened to Princess Diana and her love interest, Dodi Fayed??? Was it REALLY by the paparazzi (the photographers who pursue celebrities)??? Would the Palace have REALLY stood for the mother of the future King (and future head of the Church of England) to have married a Muslim??? What about the shocking resemblance between young Prince Harry and Diana's former admitted lover, James Hewitt? Did Diana carry a deep secret to her grave—a secret that could have devastated the House of Windsor had it been exposed? Has this tragedy paved the way for England's sympathies to go with Charles and Camilla?

Bodyguard Trevor Rees-Jones was a former member of the crack Parachute Regiment, one of the toughest in the British army. He also had completed two stints in Northern Ireland and served in the Royal Military Police; just the kind of background that would have seen him come into contact with members of the secret service. Theorists cite the fact Rees-Jones survived the crash as evidence that he was in on the plot to snuff out the Diana threat.

Dodi Fayed was buried last night in a private ceremony, one day after the fatal accident. Why so much hurry? The faster the Al Fayed family settle the ceremony, the lesser the chance other people will find out the truth!

Why only one bodyguard following Princess Diana? It is not logical for the rich and famous celebrities to bring just one bodyguard when they go out. What happens when the only one bodyguard needs to go to toilet? What happens when Princess Diana needs to go to the restroom? Who will protect her? This question definitely opens up many interesting leads for many other people to investigate.

Has anybody checked the tunnel? What kind of damage has the accident caused on the wall of the tunnel?

Diana's last chauffeur was not a professional driver (and drunk?). This is all rubbish! Just imagine, a billionaire and a princess, going out for dinner and using a security officer as chauffeur? Please ask yourself: these rich people will only use the best driver they can employ under the Sun; don't ever believe this kind of lousy excuse. Also, has anyone, apart from the royal family and high ranking officials, seen the dead bodies? Any pictures shot on the bodies? NO! [End quoting]

If the Elite weren't covering up why wouldn't they have wanted to show the pictures immediately to prove there is no coverup? Why wouldn't they want to give good photos of the scene of the accident instead of bullying the press to not use photos? In airline, railroad and car accidents they normally publish scenes of the accident and think nothing of it—something smells rotten here. They shame [or threaten] the tabloids into not using photos.

Why do they keep changing their stories every few hours?

I heard the first reports coming over TV and they said that Diana was walking around and she had a broken arm, but she was talking to people.

Why did the Queen have to be pressured before she would appear and speak to the public in this kind of a circumstance? If you were a guilty party wouldn't you want to hide your face???

"Where there is so much smoke there's got to be a big, big fire." [End quoting]

Certainly, CONTACT readers can see through this farce.

PART III

Editor's note: Part II of this excellent historical narrative was presented in last week's CONTACT. We here continue with the third and final part in this series.

The Supreme State robs, steals and deprives even the right to life of its own most fanatical followed from the moment they have served their grim purpose. There are no rewards in the service of the Devil and never have been. The secret Order of the "Skull and Bones" crowd to which George Bush and his colleagues belong, and the totalitarian state of the New World Order, are the same thing. Both are deeply Satanic and in enmity of the Christ. Supreme dictatorship of the state denies any individual value or worth, and subjects its citizens to absolute servitude whereas, the Constitution of the United States mandates it to be the duty of the Government to serve the absolute sovereignty of the individual. To abandon the Constitution and Bill of Rights, as we are now in process of doing, is the fault and disgrace of none other than the people of this country.

The incredible deception behind the New World Order will become painfully clear if the people of America allow themselves to be disarmed, for then they will lose the constitutional guarantees of their freedoms and be robbed of everything they possess, to be executed thereafter in droves. There is only one way to save the freedom of this land. A powerful grass-root movement must sweep the country. It needs the charismatic leadership of a powerful organizer. All it really needs is to get fifty million patriot citizens to pledge their support in membership in open declaration: "That the Constitution and Bill of Rights, shall be the only ruling law of this land, and that all other laws contrary to it shall be invalid and of no account, and shall be removed forever from current statutes of enforcement." A certificate endorsing the pledge of allegiance to the existing and original God-given principle of this overriding law of justice and order, should count upon a small subscription and a significant badge, brooch, necklace or lapel jewel to signify individual commitment. In this way, countless millions could safely participate in expressing their will for a return to decency and honor, and be numbered a force to be reckoned with that could not be gainsaid, in the face of would-be oppressors. An action like this would reveal and embarrass the Satanic horde, individually and collectively, for precisely the traitors that they are. There are few who could not support such a movement, and many would wish to do so. How many unemployed, by this means, could be kept alive and busy, and how many politicians, damned lawyers and unlawful strangers, would be put on the spot?

It is also worthy of note that forced integration of the human race for the purpose of mongrelizing the world into the grey homogenous mediocrity of the easily controlled mass, is another Khazarian gambit, and a deadly one. Not only does Nature appear reluctant to subscribe to the indiscriminate mixing of cultural equations, but the Khazar overlords fear the qualities of individual genius and potential for leadership, that racial purity breeds, and which the enslavers cannot control. Some years ago, many thousands of different varieties of snails were randomly mixed and distributed throughout a nature reserve in the island of Hawaii, and a few years later, they had dutifully sorted themselves out into their own species without exception. They knew each other, knew better, and could not be fooled.

The ever-present fear in the hearts of the subversive manipulators that they might be outplayed by the coming of the Shining Host of the Sons of Light in the armadas of their omnipotent space craft, is the reason for contingent government plans of awful malfeasance, to prevent the will of God, and the rescue of this planet from taking place. The present rulers of Earth fear that we the people may call upon the Sons of God who come in love and peace to assist the Earth, if we will allow, into its age of perfection.

Our call compels a Cosmic answer, and the forces of Light will come in accordance with the laws of the Creator, if they see fit, and if we allow them to do so peacefully. The Conspirators want to engender human fear, terror and hostility towards all beings in outer space, when in reality, they are our friends.

They would have us believe the stories of the "Greys" as extraterrestrials who have come to colonize the Earth, in service of their masters the "Reptilians" who are on their way from a remote sector of space, and who are reputed to have a distinct partiality for human flesh and blood, and look upon us in much the same way as we would look upon a can of sardines. Misinformation of this kind can be expected to present a less-than-promising future. It could be relied upon to cause us to become a very nasty and hostile bunch, even betraying us into rejecting the coming of the Christ and of His Host. It is for this reason, the Conspirators have unspeakable contingency plans for tragic slaughter, on a large scale, of people in America, to divert our attention in a military takeover, or alternatively, to create in us an unfortunate panic from the deception of a simulated attack of a supposed invasion from outer space. The destruction would be all too real and convincing, but the real enemy, as in everything else, would be our own false government with a formidable armed power behind it to enforce its will, and vile deception. Satanic wickedness can be expected to stop short of nothing. Holographic three-dimensional projections in space to produce the figure of Christ in the heavens, or over St. Peter's in Rome, would deceive many into believing the Master had come again, when in actuality, the event would be timed to coincide with the arrival of the anti-Christ on the world scene.

It is only fair to state, however, that "Greys, and some Reptilians" and other very ugly specimens do apparently exist, originally from other galactic regions, but who have become Earthbound and have been entrapped here for thousands of years. They cannot come and go, and their preference is to live within the vast caverns of the inner-Earth. In is only that our Government in its perversity and greed for world power, has chosen to work with these subterranean entities, from the time of President Eisenhower onwards, in secret scientific collaboration. In exchange for advanced technology, we have built for these sinister alien beings as well as for our own scientific community, a vast, intricate parallel network of interconnected underground cities all over the United States, with connections to every other continent. It is this unwise collaboration that has enabled our scientists to advance so rapidly in genetic and biological experimentation in the fields of cloning humanlike robotoids, computerization and new and diabolic secret weaponry. Had the Gulf War not ended peremptorily, these dread weapons would have been used and the American military force would have been annihilated. It is very important our entire military force be returned to America, that we fight for the right to keep guns for self-defence, and we demand our Constitution be made once more the ultimate law of the land, and all laws not consistent with the Constitution be removed. That the Federal Bank, now in the private hands of the Khazar-Jewish Zionist Bankers, be returned to the people of America in control of Congress, which alone shall have the right to coin and print money. That all usury and unlawful exaction of income-tax in violation of the Constitution, be summarily abolished.

All forces of darkness and evil work in utmost secret. Entities of the shadow cannot stand the light of exposure. The importance of knowing the truth is that it renders evil impotent to act. And that is why everyone assists simply by knowing "what is" for then, evil is known, likewise, for what it is also. It is an extraordinary thing that the Conspirators should number so small a percentage of the total population. It is cause for wonder, that the so-called ultimate Committee of "Three-hundred" and less than three percent of those who constitute the subversive alien Dark Force upon this planet, should have managed to have us by the throat, and forced us to support and pay for our own extermination while, with a little knowledge of the enemy, we could very well throw out the infidels overnight. In actual fact, it will now not be easy, for the adversary will fight to the death, and force the Earth down with him if he can. The problem is that the people have been poisoned, programmed and brainwashed into a state of ignorance and apathy, as to what has happened in the past, what is actually happening now, and is intended to happen to our humanity in the immediate future. Unless we awaken very rapidly indeed, and reverse the present fatal stupor of ignorance, we shall be doomed to self-destruct in an extinction that is virtually certain by the end of this decade. We have free will to allow theft, and because of fear, we have allowed it all the way, without saying so much as "boo" to a pussy-cat. The terrible reality is that continued physical existence in accordance with the Radiant Light of the Creator's intent may no longer be possible on this Earth, if we choose to hand over our Divine Inheritance to the forces of Satanic Evil.

The truth, furthermore, is that we are not going to be miraculously saved, by anyone other than ourselves—and then only by invoking the immortal power of the God-essence within ourselves. There is, in the individual, an inner light to be found in impenetrable stillness. It is pure bliss in a pervasive peace at the center of being. There is a voice in the Silence of the Mind, that gives knowledge of the Real, to be found only in the "Self". It is a path to the direct experience of Absolute Reality. There is nothing equal to this "Knowing Self", for then one knows the way home; and one can know also the inspiration of one's part in God's will for the reclamation of His Creation. This is the greatest choice by election, given to all, to choose to be an active part of the ongoing stream of evolution, towards infinite realms of unutterable perfection. So there you have it. Just do it.

The entire intent of the Khazar's Satanic commitment to massive World Revolution and the ruin and disorder of all peoples without exception, has not wavered in the course of three thousand years. Their attack has been subversively directed upon society to destroy the family, disrupt the economy and control government by seizure of the money system, with systematic distortion in the use of language and the meaning of words, while falsifying religion, history and spiritual belief. In consequence of this infernal alien influence, the whole educational process, at all levels, has become an abomination. The Practice of Law has proliferated a system of poisonous injustice, and Medicine in its unholy alliance with the pharmaceutical interests of the drug overlords, has become a profession the truth of which is far too terrible ever to be told. The attack upon the private ownership of property is intended to undermine individual freedom upon which it depends, and the depreciation in the value of our money and currency removes any reasonable hope of meaningful lives, until the subversive influence of the perpetrators of absolute evil, is recognized and forever removed. The nature of the enemy must be known and brought into the light of day. Failure to remove the parasitic alien, so corruptive of everything it touches, means simply the death and extinction of our species. The problem is not one that will simply pass away. It will take formidable resolution, courage and knowledge of the truth to overcome this struggle to the death, for that is what it means. The danger is that we have become a nation of unwitting liars, as we feast on perpetual lies, we can no longer discern the truth. The greater the lie, the more it is believed, until truth becomes, itself, unbelievable. The greatest of all the lies, have been those to strike at the heart of the Christian ethic, upon which the values and security of our lives have always rested.

Contrary to what the Zionist Khazars would have us believe, Christ was not a Jew, neither was he one of them in any known sense of the word. Mary, indeed, was a Scythian from the city of Scythopolis, one of the ten Greek-cultured cities of the Decameron. And Jesus, graphically described by the Jewish historian Josephus upon the master's appearance in Jerusalem, who spoke in wonder of his radiant golden hair and bearded fair countenance and blue eyes, and the nobility of his stature and bearing among the dark-complexioned and swarthy Judeans, in utter contrast to themselves. To speak of Judeo-Christianity, as though Christianity, the very antithesis of Judaism and of the satanic Talmud, could ever owe anything to that source, is a grave reflection upon the intelligence and discrimination of Christians and their misguided teachers. The "Chosen-race" myth is simply another of these prodigious lies, appropriated by the Khazar Jews unto themselves, to make ignorant Christians believe they should owe allegiance to them when, in reality, nothing was owed to Judaism other than the crucifixion of Christ, and of all his peoples ever since. The Khazar Zionists, who stole Palestine from the Arabs, never had even the remotest claim upon that land, and to have assigned to themselves the name of "Israel" which rightly, in its biblical reference belongs to the races of Ephraim and Manasseh, England and America, has led our Western race into the fatal misconception of believing the so-called "Israeli" to be the people of God, when they actually represent the greatest enemy the United States and the people of this world have ever known.

The treacherous betrayal of Christian ministers in support of these horrendous lies is highly indicative of the political nature of organized religion. The reality of Self is within every entity whose name is to be found written in the Creator's Book of Life.

The most insidious of all attacks are those made upon human relationships and the misdirection of the supposed liberation of women, and emasculation in confusing the role of men. The enlightenment of real knowledge and truth liberates, and that is for all. The deliberate creation of turmoil and division between the sexes makes for separation, and proliferates misery. This leads to division, and claims of rights without end, so that the obligations of harmonious unity are no longer perceived. The conflict so subtly induced, finally focuses on the "right to life", or the "right to destroy it". If life exists at conception, and when does life not exist, then abortion must be seen as murder. America celebrates the "right to choice" with, at the very least, two-and-one-half-million abortions a year, which means the murder of twenty-five million or more souls in a single decade, within the confines of one country alone. The world figure is shattering, and all the wars put together cannot even touch this record. Choice, it may have to be admitted, is made at the moment of conception, and choice cannot be claimed after the fact, without denial of responsibility. While the truth of this matter may be awkward, the conclusion is inescapable. There are women who have discovered the secret of mastery in the function of conception, and are consequently unconcerned about the right of choice, because they already possess it naturally, and need no recourse to the unnatural resort of murder. Our society, in any case, has obviously failed to establish proper civilized conditions of security, safety, honor and respect for the single most important vocation that can be performed in nurturing magnificently, the renewal of the race from inception to its ascension.

We are living in an age of such self-imposed ignorance when knowledge is available and can be found, although much suppressed at a time when there have never been so many who know so little. All over the world, including America, statues of the Virgin Mary are flowing in inexplicable floods of tears, real and human tears at that, for which there has been no scientific explanation. "Beloved Mary, why dost thou weep?" Are these tears for those who choose not to wake up, whose preference is in capitulation to evil? There does seem to be an unresolved problem here in the lack of regard for life, connected with women's unacknowledged power in the role of destroyer, which is every bit as formidable as that of the errant male.

It is a curious thing to note how the numeral "6", representing the aspect of compromise and the imperfection attributed to Man, when tripled, gives the number "666" the number of Man and of the Beast, in configuration of the antichrist of Revelation. That triple-six is to be found secretly encoded in all operations, corporation structures and activities of the Ruling Elite among the satanic and subversive elements of the Secret World Government. It is the signature of their unwelcome and villainous control over the lives of all men. It is also the only numeral, when traced out, which will form an anti-clockwise spiral, and a motion imparting a negative spin in its action. The life-force spins positive in rotation in the healthy organs and body of man. The negative spin is indicative of the downward vortex of death. In this case, it is surely the death spiral of physical materiality seeking to destroy the soul, in suppression of the spirit. There is a school of thought that holds Revelation to be an original projection of the dark force of the Biblical Watchers, and therefore, not to be accorded prophetic inevitability. Others hold the scenario is scheduled to occur if the wilder inmates of the lunatic asylum of Earth (in this sector of the universe) don't sharply straighten themselves out. But the crooked, no doubt, shall be made straight, as Nature can be counted on in the last resort, even if it takes flood, fire, subsidence and unholy amounts of brimstone to do the job.

Another symbolic, but significant message is being discerned in the perfect geometrical patterns of immense size, appearing in the open fields of England and elsewhere, isolated out in the middle of untouched fields of ripening grain. Wheat stems are found flattened out spirally, with a highly charged and altered molecular structure. These intricate geometries, imprinted from above, can be nothing other than visiting cards from our Brothers in Space who watch and wait, and who durst not interfere, under the law of free will applying to this planet, as long as our people in the name of our present government, prefer to work with the forces of darkness. The good guys are around, and we are not to forget we are not alone, when the good ship "Lollipop" goes down, as it very well may. In the interval, it is appropriate to make adequate sanctuary for such times, before the Earth reels and shakes itself loose of its wanton transgressors.

Just as in those days past when a great master, with incomparable courage, confronted all the hosts of evil and the illusion of death on this plane, singly and alone—we find ourselves collectively, in this hour, required to confront that same evil, to banish it once and for all from the world for which we are accountable. As the days of this cycle close, the final battle is for the minds, the hearts and the souls of men. It is a deadly struggle to preserve the freedom of the individual before God, against the soulless counterfeit of the encroaching tyrannical power of the Absolute State. Tragically, a Godless universe is what the sinister New World Order of George Bush implies. It is, therefore, a struggle for the life of the Planet. There can be no spectators. For, to stand on the sidelines, is to have already chosen oneself as lost. Our actions are recorded for all time, upon the imperishable screen of the great computerised Mind of the Life-force. There are no secrets, and nothing that is not known. The choice is to be free within the Creation or, be enslaved in the lesser disintegrating worlds of man-made illusion in cycles of suffering and darkness.

One thing is certain. America could so easily shine like a blazing star, were it not for the legions of the traitor thick about, that the freedom of this land now hangs by a thread. The perfidy of so many perpetrators in betrayal, has to be fought with knowledge, with truth, in understanding of the mortal enemy, without violence. In this final hour, the question truly is: what is it we have left in such utter complacency, so completely and hopelessly undone? Within Immortal Living Essence of totality in Radiance from whence we come, is it not appropriate genius to call forth the Power and the Glory of that superlative level of Consciousness and Energy that knows only life in the weary face of death? Indeed, if only one mouse could roar, the dust of the ground will have been shaken.

Germain: Is It Transmutation Or Tribulation For You?

Editor's note: The following message is by the Ascended Master known as Violinio St. Germain, Master of the Seventh Ray (or Aspect) of Creator's spectrum, the Violet Ray of Transmutation, among the seven great "Rainbow Masters" communicating at this time to help us get through Earth-Shan's planetary transition and rebalancing.

In Journal #7, called THE RAINBOW MASTERS, Germain says: "I head up the program for the thrust of the Seventh Ray, for it is the Transmuting Ray. I am passionate about it, unbending regarding its use for Purity, Truth AND FREEDOM—FREEDOM OF THY GOD SELF, IN THE SERVICE OF THE CHRISTOS, WHICH IS GOD—PURE AND SIMPLE: GOD FREEDOM EXPRESSED IN MANIFEST FORM IN THEE AND IN ME...."

"If ye wish to sum the measure of my existence in all prior times, please let it be said, 'He lived to make men free'...."

"In all my times upon thy place, I have sought to stand squarely on a platform of basic human rights for a responsible, reasoning public education in the principles of liberty and equal opportunity for all. I have efforted to teach thee ones to espouse your inalienable DIVINE RIGHT to live life according to your highest conception of GOD. No right, however simple or basic, can long be secure without the underpinning of the Spiritual Graces and the Divine Law that instills a compassionate righteousness in the exercise thereof. Always I have efforted to make thy country a fortress against ignorance and superstition, where Christ achievement could blossom, and devotion to THE ONE could prosper in the quest for the Holy Truth (Grail)...."

"I have always efforted at being an immortal spokesman for your scientific, religious and political liberties. I believe that humanity shall accept as an axiom for its conduct the principle for which I have laid down my life: the right to investigate. It is the credo of free men—this opportunity to try, this privilege to err, this courage to experiment anew."

"We scientists of the human spirit shall experiment, experiment, experiment, ever experiment. Through centuries of trial and error, through agonies of research, let us experiment with laws and customs, with money systems and governments, until we chart the one true course."

9/6/97 VIOLINIO ST. GERMAIN

Good evening. Violinio St. Germain present as the Violet Ray—the Seventh Ray, the Ray of Transmutation. All is unfolding as it should, and though many days appear as if they are heading down the slippery slope, I assure you that all is occurring within its proper sequence of events. These are the times which have long been spoken of, and these are the times which shall try the tenacity of all souls present upon the Earth.

This is the time of the Great Transmutation; others call it the time of the Great Tribulation.

However, it is all in the perception of things, is it not? For those who are focusing upon the Light of God, the times shall be considered transmuting. For those focusing instead upon the great darkness, their days shall be numbered as tribulation.

There is no doubt that these times are difficult, even for those in the Light. Yet, how much greater would be the pain if ye were walking in total darkness? In the hours of apparent darkness, you ones will need to focus upon the Light and stand in the Strength of your convictions.

Great are the temptations to strike out at, and to be seduced by, the darkness. And these temptations will only grow stronger in the coming days, for you have but seen the mere beginnings of the transmutation process upon your planet.

As all things continue to exhibit signs of change—from your weather to your politics—know that change is what transmutation is all about. You cannot achieve higher-frequency existence without this condition of change. And because ALL are involved upon your planet, including the planet itself, all things, therefore, are changing—the planet and its inhabitants. Even the four-legged creatures, the winged ones, and those that swim in the waters, seem to you to be confused. You two-legged ones are certainly in a most confused state and this is all due to the massive and unprecedented changes that are occurring at the present time.

You have been forewarned, over and over again, that this time was approaching. Well, my friends, the time HAS ARRIVED!

Prepare yourselves NOW for a most notable Winter, as the El Nino throttles up for an explosive display. The ocean waters, particularly in the Pacific, are up to 30 degrees warmer than has ever been seen in recent times past! You have tropical fish appearing in the waters off Northern California and British Columbia. In San Francisco, the waters are at least 25 degrees above the "normal" range, and this is but a sampling of what is occurring all up and down the seacoast of the Americas. Even your weather forecasters are warning you ones to "batten down the hatches", so to speak, as the rainfall (and possibly snowfall) amounts are expected to be three times what would typically be expected for the upcoming Winter months.

If you could view your planet down at the very core, you would see that there are many fluctuations taking place there, causing the magnetic field of your planet to fluctuate as well. Since the systems of all living creatures upon your planet are attuned to the natural magnetic pulses and frequencies of the planet itself, all living creatures are also experiencing the same "roller-coaster ride".

These fluctuations of biological frequencies are causing all sorts of odd behavior, discomforting aches and pains (especially in areas of the back, base of the skull, and shoulders, where there are denser complexes of nerve-muscle function), mental confusion and simple inability to focus mentally, plus a myriad of other odd maladies. So, do not despair in thinking you are "falling apart". Rather, these are "only" your physical body's reactions to Mother Earth's tremendous "growing pains" of sorts.

These magnetic fluctuations will eventually cause a reversal of the magnetic poles of planet Earth. THIS IS NOT THE SAME AS A PHYSICAL POLE SHIFT (of the Earth's rotational axis, which is in its own condition of instability at present). This simply means that the planet's magnetic forces will switch order of flow. Yes, this will have an effect upon compasses and all other magnetic instruments. But that, believe it or not, is the very least of your worries at present!

What you DO need to be focusing upon at present are the effects upon your third-dimensional existence resulting from the fluctuations in these subtle, basic life-force energies. You ARE being affected, only some are more sensitive to the changes than others. Those who are naturally sensitive are experiencing even more difficulty than they have in the past, and it is important for these ones to have understanding of what is occurring to them.

It is important that you not "fight" these changes, but learn to switch your own frequency to match that of your planet. You ones are often quite resistant to change, and this, my dear friends, is a MOST MAJOR change you are going to have to deal with. You have the option of refusing to accept and go with the changes, but you will only be hurting yourself, for the planet is not going to sit back and wait until you are ready. Many are fighting the changes, and therein are actually choosing to depart the planet. This pattern will continue and will but increase in the coming days.

However, there are also many who are going to choose to leave of their own accord—not because they refuse to accept the changes, but because they have effected the changes they came here to accomplish and their work is finished. These ones are so "tuned-in" to the progression of the planetary transmutation that they KNOW exactly what is occurring and are choosing to cross over to be of greater assistance from the non-physical realm. They will simply pick up "newbodies" on the other side to continue their service.

How will you know who these ones are? Most likely you will not. And if the truth is to be known, it is really none of your business! YOUR business is to concern yourself with YOUR own challenges of living—and that will keep all of you more than busy. Believe me!

The distractions are many these days for all of you, and besides having to deal with the planetary changes, you are being bombarded by the news of one Earth-shaking event after another. It is well that you attempt to be informed, but be careful as to just how much of the drama and emotion you get suckered into. That is how the adversary will keep you from focusing your energies in the proper direction. And, oh yes, the adversary is working powerfully, and is in "overdrive" right now, for the time of darkness is very shortened, and there is a great push underway by the forces of darkness as they work to keep both the Light and the Lightworkers at bay. They know their demise is imminent, and are wishing to prolong their reign of terror as long as possible.

Be very careful these days with whom you associate, for the dark powers have set their sights upon the workers of Light. They will come to you presenting as "angels of the light". But it is your responsibility to test each and every one, for they can be very seductive and very desirable to your lower energies. Take great caution, and do not be taken-in by every one who comes your way, seemingly as a "friend", in the coming days.

Many of you are finding yourselves in trying and changing personal situations, and you are the ones being severely tested by the dark forces. Shield yourselves well, and do not allow yourselves to be overwhelmed in self-doubt and fear as you move forward on the new paths your lives are taking.

You created the changes because you were following the guidance of the Lighted Ones. Thus, many of you removed yourselves from dangerous situations and places. Many more of you are, at present, making these changes. Stand firm in the strength of your convictions in the days ahead. Be certain you are making your OWN decisions, based upon careful evaluation of your inner knowledge, and not on doubt or fear. Be certain that you are NOT basing your decisions upon the expectations of, or assumed obligations to, another. You and ONLY you can know the truth that lies within self.

You may find that previous friends, family, and acquaintances will be no more. Fret not, for each one is changing, and that which was may be no more a necessity. Each one of you must look within and make decisions based upon your own chosen path, and that path may be separating from ones you have had associations with in the past. This is all part of the changes taking place.

Appreciate when any separation is for the benefit of all involved, and is but part of the larger transitional period you are experiencing. Paths may, at some point in the future, cross again; but you may not know that at present.

Walk forward upon YOUR Lighted path, placing one foot surely and firmly in front of the other, and take one step at a time. You may sometimes find yourself running, but you'll still be placing one foot in front of the other. Only the pace will have quickened!

Be diligent in the coming hours and days, but do not allow yourselves to be overwhelmed with all the changes taking place. As I stated earlier, all is occurring in its proper sequence of events, and all things really are in their proper season, even though, from your perspective, everything seems out of control and out of balance. Well, chelas, the balance has been missing for such a great long time, that you ones are confusing the process of re-balancing with chaos.

Take it as it comes, for there is order in this time of change. Lift your frequency to that of your planet and you will find yourselves less at the mercy of the changes. We have, in past lessons, given you many practical suggestions for achieving this raising of frequency. For now, let us simply suggest that you monitor that which gives you a feeling of positive upliftment—such as comes with the cultivation of humor and joy and purpose—and make such a part of your daily spiritual "diet", in conjunction with calling upon we of God's Hosts for guidance and protection.

We are with you—know that always. You are not alone and you are being watched over and guided continually—only most of you are not aware of the Guides who stand ready to take your hand and assist you.

I am Violinio St. Germain, of the Seventh, the Violet, Ray of Transmutation. I stand with all the other Masters of transition and Hosts of God of Light, at the ready station to serve in these days of your Great Transition. I say to you: shall it be a time of transmutation and growth into Radiance for you, or shall it be a time of tribulation, pain, and chaos? Mother Earth knows her destiny, and so shall you be master of yours—one way or the other!

Salu.

TELEPHONE HOTLINE

805-822-0202

This is a service for our dedicated readers. Today's Watch telephone hotline carries the latest news and comments from Commander Hatonn's most recent writings. This is our way of keeping you informed about fast-breaking news and events.

The message machine will answer after 2 rings if there are any new messages for that day, and after 4 rings if not. Thus daily callers can hang up after 2 rings and save toll charges if no new message has been recorded. If the hotline does not answer your call then that means that there is currently no hotline message.
