Marcos' Hidden Stashes Of Philippine Gold U.S. & Vatican Ties To Plot

9/1/98 #1 HATONN

It may be with a great deal of interest that we begin a new month while here in the Philippines but understanding will come as you allow what I write to sink-in a bit before any negative responses are forthcoming. We go where the road leads, chelas, and in that way we can achieve our goal destination. I am NOT going to give credits or kudos at this time—to anyone for I want you to find parties who are willing to dig up the original information offered for anything I write. People who KNOW even some of the facts can gather in the remainder of the incredible tale which I shall tell from the ending and inclusive of what

"was". Without reference we can move more quickly and get you into security.

As to wealth, Marcos, gold and hunters of the treasures now under constant search and rescue—let us consider the ending saga of Marcos' reign of terror. Yes indeed, this was a truly Evil man in intentions and practices. Let it be realized that Imelda too was a spending addict who wasted billions of the people's money. We are not here to judge any persons, however—only get some return of funds to these sinking islands called Philippines.

RUNAWAY BALLOON DRIFTS INTO RUSSIA FROM NORWAY

From the INTERNET, <para-discuss@tje.net>, 8/31/98: [quoting]

A rogue weather balloon from Canada drifted into Russian air space from Norway on Monday in spite of efforts by planes from three countries to shoot it down, Norwegian aviation authorities said.

The balloon, as tall as a 25-story building and regarded as a hazard to air traffic, entered Russian air space about 7 a.m. (0500 GMT) over the Barents Sea just north of the Arctic island of Spitzbergen.

"The balloon entered Norwegian air space at around 10 p.m. (2000 GMT) last night passing south of Bear Island and moved into Russian air space at seven o'clock this morning," Stein Erik Finnevolden, supervisor at the Bodoe air traffic control center, told Reuters.

"It is moving in a constant northeasterly direction at between 27,000 and 37,000 feet (8,230 to 11,280 meters)," he said. The balloon would cover an area equivalent to five soccer pitches if deflated.

The unmanned, 300-foot (100-meter) high balloon has traveled cross the North Atlantic over Iceland and Norway. It went out of control after being launched on August 24 in the western Canadian province of Saskatchewan to measure ozone levels.

Commercial air traffic over the North Atlantic had to be rerouted to avoid the helium-filled balloon, which has defied attempts by jet fighters from Canada, Britain and the United States to shoot it down.

The Norwegian Air Force made no attempt to shoot down the balloon.

Finnevolden said Russian aviation authorities and airline companies had been told of its position. [End quoting]

I've seen a report by an ex-Navy man that it is almost impossible to shoot these things down with gunfire. Then wouldn't it make sense that, since the U.S. military can't get a spy satellite over Russia and they can certainly shoot down our spy planes, this balloon is another attempt to accomplish the other failed balloon missions—that Korton told us about—to get spy equipment over Russia so we can pull off a first-strike nuclear war?

WHO BENEFITS?

From THE SPOTLIGHT, 8/24/98: [quoting]

An axiom in Roman law was, Cui Bono? In English: Who benefits? When investigating any crime, who benefits is the first question to consider. We would do well to ask this question in relation to terrorism in general and the most recent embassy bombings in particular.

The mainstream media, hearing the bell of the Israel lobby, salivated accusations against and hatred for Arabs in true Pavlovian fashion. Talking heads appeared instantly on televisions across the land with speculation about "which Arab group" was responsible. Think about it: "which Arab group", not "which group" or even "which Mideast group".

This without a shred of evidence. If you recall, "Arab terrorists" were mentioned as a possibility in the bombing of the federal building in Oklahoma City. There's nothing like terrorist activities in which Americans are killed to drum up a good dose of "MORAL OUTRAGE" on the part of the American people.

But that outrage must be given a target quickly, lest Americans begin to think for themselves.

Here at The SPOTLIGHT, we like to look behind the scenes and examine the evidence. We are notoriously recalcitrant when it comes to knee-jerk responses to popular propaganda. When the bombs went off, so did our investigative reporters—to various Mideast experts; ones not preconditioned to respond "correctly" to questions of terrorism.

We asked, "Cui Bono?" The responses were enlightening. Insiders know that the Clinton administration is in the process of engineering a REAPPROCHEMENT with Iran and, at the same time, various Mideast states are coming up with nuclear missile technology. According to politically-correct propaganda, only Israel is allowed to have nuclear missiles—and the news media is not supposed to talk about it, either.

Almost before the dust settled in Nairobi and Dar-es-Salam, the Netanyahu government in Tel Aviv and Israeli mouthpieces such as George Will let the American people know that the Arabs were all guilty and only Israel can be trusted.

Israel, in other words, is the only country to benefit from the embassy bombings. So the next time someone comments about the terror bombings at U.S. embassies, ask "WHO BENEFITS?" [End quoting]

Go back and reread Korton's messages in recent issues of CONTACT.

WARNINGS

Monday night, Aug. 31, 1998, Art Bell interviewed Ed Dames—a remote viewer who has had a number of accurate forecasts of the future—who said:

- Bees are being blinded by the Sun and can't find their food—as a result they are dying off.
- The federal government will soon default on paying interest on government bonds and later will not honor them at all—but will denounce them as worthless.
- Clinton will not finish his term of office.
- There will be a world-wide financial crash soon.
- There are now X-rays coming from the Sun that are burning us similar to what a microwave oven does—not like the normal sunburn. They are cooking us from the inside. Indications of the Photon Belt??
- Food crops are being burnt in the fields—not normal drying-up.
- Many layoffs will soon be happening in U.S.
- Fungi are devastating the crops—far more than normal.

- Diseases will spread like wildfire very soon.

Richard Hoagland—a well-connected scientist—said he was given information from a reputable ex-government employee that the missiles that North Korea sent over Japan were actually nuclear missiles, but both of them went into the ocean and missed their targets in Japan. Did someone from "above" knock them off course??

Art Bell has had a message from someone who keeps close track of the output of his solar panels report to him that the power output has gone up by a big percentage lately.

It's time to be sure you're prepared mentally, spiritually and physically. And fear absolutely must be controlled. The dark forces feed off of it and we don't need that.

THE CITIES

From THE FINAL CALL, 8/18/98: [quoting]

(A round-up of news shorts from the cities across the country)

BOULDER, CO—Detective Steve Thomas, one of the original investigators of the Jon Benet Ramsey case, has resigned "in protest" of the district attorney's handling of the case. "I believe the district attorney's office is thoroughly compromised" and "continues to mishandle the Ramsey case", Mr. Thomas wrote in his eight-page resignation letter. Mr. Thomas, 36, accuses the district attorney's office of ignoring evidence collected by investigators, blocking police efforts to subpoena the parents' telephone and credit card records, and improperly sharing details of the case with Ramsey lawyers. A spokeswoman for district attorney Alex Hunter said Mr. Thomas' letter "is outrageous and is substantially false and misleading". The case is 20 months old.

OPELOUSAS, LA—The city police department recently began fining teens who wear baggy pants so low that most of their underwear is exposed. At least three people had been cited at press time for indecent exposure, a charge that carries a maximum six-months jail sentence or $500 fine. "The decent people have gotten fed up with the guys who are doing this for no other reason than to be sexually explicit," said Police Chief Larry Caillier. A popular trend with teens is to sag pants to show the top of the underwear.

RIVERSIDE, CA—So-called "killer bees" are migrating toward more densely populated areas in Southern California and Nevada. A wet spring and an abundance of pollen sources to expand their range has been cited as the cause of the expansion. In the past four months, the bees have doubled their range in California and have colonized at least 12,810 square miles. In addition to the danger to people, farmers fear that the bees will disrupt the vital pollination activity of domestic bees.

SAN FRANCISCO, CA—Eight of the nation's giant oil companies have been negligent in their use of a gasoline additive that has contaminated more than 10,000 groundwater sites in California, according to Communities For A Better Environment. The environmental group said in a July 6 lawsuit that the companies knew of the dangers of MTBE (methyl tertiary butyl ether), a chemical developed in the 1970s to allow fuel to burn cleanly. The group is asking that the chemical be banned and require the businesses to pay for clean up of the state's drinking water. Exxon Corp., Chevron Corp., Mobil Corp., Atlantic Richfield Co., Texaco Inc., Shell Oil Co., Unocal Corp. and Tosco Corp. are cited in the lawsuit. [End quoting]

IN SYNC WITH STARR

From THE XTRA/UPDATES newsletter, 9/98: [quoting]

Investigative reporter Dan Moldea is one of the few journalists to have gone on the record about his dealings with the office of Independent Counsel Kenneth Starr. Writing a book about Vincent Foster's death for the rightwing publisher Regnery, Moldea was apparently mistaken for a conservative by Hickman Ewing, Starr's chief deputy. Ewing laid out the ground rules for getting leaks from Starr's office: "He told me, yes, they do give information that is not on the public record on an off-the-record basis to selected reporters who are approved by Ken Starr in advance," Moldea told the on-line journal Salon (5/28/98). "He told me Starr also approves specific leaks as long as the reporter's views are in sync with the office of the independent counsel's position." [End quoting]

There is no doubt Ken Starr's ethics are very questionable or he wouldn't have his job—would the elite appoint into such a key slot someone they can't blackmail??

SEX EDUCATION BILL PASSED IN CALIFORNIA

From THE DAILY NEWS, Los Angeles, 9/29/98: [quoting]

Governor Wilson signed a bill requiring public schools to notify parents in writing before giving instruction to their children about sex education or sexually-transmitted diseases. [End quoting]

This is the result of parental pressures. So now it's up to individual parents to give notice in return if they don't want their children involved. And we'd better make our voices heard or they'll continue on in their ignoring of our wishes. The bill—if as stated above—doesn't say they can't teach them—it states they have to notify us.

THEM, NOT US

From THE XTRA/UPDATES newsletter, 9/98: [quoting]

On June 1, an Associated Press article about unemployment in Japan noted that the official rate is 4.1 percent, but immediately offered this caveat: "The jobless rate would be higher by Western standards, but Japan counts anyone who works at least one hour in a month as fully employed." There's only one problem: The U.S. unemployment rate is undercounted in exactly the same way. [End quoting]

With such creative bookkeeping it is easy to understand how we can have an "employment boom" during record bankruptcies!

THEM, NOT US II

From THE XTRA/UPDATES newsletter, 9/98: [quoting]

"Democracy's development here is stunted when the media are the tools of a tycoon's trade rather than venues for debate and examination of public interests." —Los Angeles Times (6/3/98), writing about Russia, not the United States. [End quoting]

If anybody should know, it is certainly the guilty parties.

GLOBAL SMOKESCREEN

Excerpted from THE XTRA/UPDATES newsletter, 9/98: [quoting]

As evidence continues to emerge that global warming is already occurring (Nature, 4/23/98), the oil industry is gearing up to try to convince the public that science is still uncertain. Representatives from the American Petroleum Institute, Exxon, Chevron and from corporate-backed think tanks got together to produce a "Global Climate Science Communications Action Plan", a copy of which was obtained by the New York Times (4/26/98).

Part of the plan includes the creation of a $5 million think tank set up specifically to spread the word that we just don't know whether global warming is happening or not, or what could possibly be done to stop it. Another aspect of the plan calls for spending $600,000 to try to sway the media to the industry point of view that "scientific uncertainties" about global warming make it reckless to try to curtail the burning of fossil fuels.

Here's one point from the plan: "Produce, distribute via syndicate and directly to newspapers nationwide a steady stream of op-ed columns and letters to the editor authored by scientists"—scientists, that is, who take the industry line on global warming. Don't look for any of these op-ed or letters to the editor to mention that they were arranged by the oil industry. [End quoting]

They aren't going to tell you about HAARP heating of the atmosphere or radiation from their nuclear activities, their many ways of destroying our atmosphere and planet—just propaganda so they can continue their destruction with our permission because we are too lazy to educate ourselves with the truth so we can force the elite to use non-polluting "free energy" methods for power and production. IT'S ALL AVAILABLE—NOW!!

And what about the ULTRA-liberal Al Gore beating the bushes to stop this global warming by cutting back on burning fossil fuels? The elite can't have it both ways! It'll be interesting to see who wins, big oil or Gore!

POTATO GUNS

From MEDIA BYPASS, 5/98: [quoting]

An aging man lived alone in Ireland. His only son was in Long Kesh Prison, and he didn't know anyone who would spade up his potato garden.

The old man wrote to his son about it, and received this reply: "For HEAVENS SAKE, don't dig up that garden! That's where I buried the GUNS!"

At 4 a.m. the next day, a dozen British soldiers showed up and dug up the entire garden, but didn't find any guns. Confused, the man wrote to his son telling him what happened and asking him what to do next.

"Just plant the potatoes," the son replied. [End quoting]

This is a good example of being smart enough to get the corrupt system of Big Brother to work for you!

U.S. INFLUENCE

From MILITARY magazine, 9/98: [quoting]

While the U.S. can still influence world events a great deal, many countries no longer feel they can count on us and our prestige is on the decline. Witness our inability to hold the Gulf alliance together, get NATO allies to support our demands for sanctions and India setting off a new nuclear race. [End quoting]

Why should anyone be stupid enough to trust us when we'll steal and kill anyone for a buck and/or a little more pseudo-power. Around the world the U.S. is known as "the great Satan".

WHO'S WHO?

From UNKNOWN, letter to the editor: [quoting]

You're asking people to believe what you say, over what all other media are telling them every day. If people were aware of who the controlling factor is, they may react differently toward what they see.

You might be able to compile a list for your readers explaining in detail who owns and controls what; cable TV stations, newspapers, magazines, etc. I think if you were to break it down, people would be shocked. —Clint Edmonson Jefferson City, Missouri

(Maybe so, but control of the media depends on control of the major advertising agencies because these agencies control the profits for all the newspapers, radio and television stations. The Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith [ADL] controls all big ad agencies and advertising is funnelled only to compliant media outlets.) [End quoting]

This says it all about who controls the media!

COMING METEOR STORMS

From DISPATCHES, 8/98: [quoting]

The world's communication, navigation and military satellites will be imperiled this November by meteor storms.

How bad is it going to be? No one seems to know for sure. There has not been a meteor storm like this since the onset of the space age. Nobody planned for it—or even knew how to try.

This particular storm is expected to shower the upper atmosphere with cosmic particles the size of .22-caliber bullets. The particles could punch holes in satellite solar panels, pit lenses, blast reflective coatings off mirrors, short out electronics with a burst of electromagnetic energy, even reprogram computers.

If the satellites escape damage this year, they'll face another assault from the same meteor cluster in November 1999. [End quoting]

It seems many things are or will be affecting all electronics—meteors, severe Sun storms and radiation, the Photon Belt, Russian Cosmospheres, HAARP, etc.

TRAINING THE RED BERETS?

From DISPATCHES, 8/98: [quoting]

The Pentagon's elite Special Forces soldiers will train the Chinese People's Liberation Army troops under a plan now being considered in Washington.

The Special Forces include the Green Berets and Navy SEALs. [End quoting]

Does this get the message home that our leaders are TRAITORS?

CHINA AND THE PANAMA CANAL

From DISPATCHES, 8/98: [quoting]

A Hong Kong firm, Hutchison Whampoa, was given the contract to operate the Atlantic and Pacific ports of the Panama Canal. The Panamanian government awarded the contract to Hutchison in January 1997. China took over Hong Kong in July of that year.

What that means is China has effectively taken over control of both ends of the Panama Canal. With the U.S. set to turn over control of the canal to Panama next year, talks aimed at keeping a U.S. military presence in the area have broken down. [End quoting]

Don't you think the elite are laughing their heads off at our foolishness for allowing them to surround and infiltrate us like we were kindergartners??

NEW FAKE FAT IS GOOD FOR YOU

From THE ORLANDO SENTINEL, 8/25/98: [quoting]

Scientists and a commercial baker said Monday they have developed a fat substitute that will make cookies, cakes and ice cream healthy as well as tasty.

The group told a national meeting of the American Chemical Society in Boston that Nu-Trim "nutritional technological research involving metabolism" can cut cholesterol by up to 10 percent and could be on store shelves in about a year.

The fat substitute is designed to meet Food and Drug Administration requirements for food products that can be advertised as good for the heart.

Made from oats, Nu-Trim contains high concentrations of beta-glucans, soluble fibers that reduce cholesterol, a factor in heart disease.

"We're talking about 3 grams of soluble fiber a day to cut cholesterol—that's four cookies," said group member David Busken, a commercial baker.

Nu-Trim "is something that is absorbed by the body. It's a soluble fiber that's important in the health of the heart," said George Inglett, a researcher for the Department of Agriculture based in Peoria, Ill.

The scientists applied for a patent for Nu-Trim two weeks ago and all royalties will go to the federal government, Inglett said. [End quoting]

I might be paranoid, but when the government authorizes something that is actually "good for us" while they do their best to make us sick so they can get our money through medical expenses and then purposely kill us off if we can't pay the bills and just because they don't want us around, then I think it's best to let them experiment on someone else besides me.

Also the elite have a habit of taking something nutritious and making it into poison to fool us because it comes from what we know as a nutritious food. So, beware! Check things out thoroughly before using.

GULF'S 'DEAD ZONE' GROWS DEEP IN TEXAS, LOUISIANA

From THE ORLANDO SENTINEL, 8/23/98: [quoting]

The annual summer "dead zone" of oxygen-deprived water in the Gulf of Mexico off the Louisiana and Texas coasts appears smaller but deeper this year, researchers say. Nancy Rabalais, a scientist researcher with the Louisiana Universities Marine Consortium, said the seasonal dead zone, where marine life cannot survive, now measures 4,800 square miles. From 1993 to 1997, the zone covered up to 7,000 square miles of the Gulf bottom from the Mississippi River to the upper Texas coast. This year's zone is concentrated on the eastern and central Louisiana coast. [End quoting]

More signs of our planet's destruction.

AUTHORITIES UPROOT BIG POT FARM

From THE DAILY NEWS, Los Angeles, 8/29/98: [quoting]

SANTA CLARA, Calif.—A National Guard helicopter on a training exercise spotted what authorities are calling the largest marijuana farm in state history, sheriffs officials said Friday.

It took deputies more than a day to remove the 21,000 plants, which they estimated were worth about $84 million on the street.

"Nothing's ever come close to 21,000," said Santa Clara County sheriff's Sgt. Jim Arata, who added that most marijuana busts average 10,000 to 12,000 plants.

The marijuana was discovered Wednesday in a remote canyon in a rural area of the county owned by the San Francisco Water Department. Also found were three base camps, as well as several pistols.

The plantation was vacant when deputies arrived, and no arrests had been made as of late Friday. [End quoting]

I don't know about you, but this sounds awful fishy to me! Wouldn't it be logical to stake-out this place—at least for a while before going in—to see who goes in to tend this crop? Or is it that they didn't want to catch the owners?

Again, I might be paranoid, but the police usually know who the big operators of the dope trade are in their bailiwicks. They're not doing their jobs if they don't, and there is too much money involved for them to be goofing.

It'd be very interesting to know what happens to all of that "grass"—I highly doubt all of it'll be destroyed. And then there's that National Guard helicopter on a "training exercise".

YOU SHOULDN'T HAVE BOUGHT IT

From PACIFIC LEGAL FOUNDATION, 6/26/98: [quoting]

Another insidious way government attempts to confiscate private property is by claiming an interest in the property goes to the government every time title passes hands! According to the Virginia Supreme Court, an owner has no right to sue the government when an offending regulation blocks all use of the property if the regulation was in place at any time title to the property was transferred. In effect, this ruling says government obtains the development rights to the property just because a regulation limited the use of the property when title transferred. If government can regulate to obtain property without cost, there will be no limits to regulation. That is why PLF is representing the property owners in their request for U.S. Supreme Court review (City of Virginia Beach v. Bell). [End quoting]

They cover all bases for their thefts of our properties. When will we take control of government instead of the other way around?

UN WAR CRIMES

From MILITARY magazine, 9/98: [quoting]

The UN wants a wider legal definition of war crimes. If approved by Clinton, U.S. troops on a peacekeeping operation that put out anti-personnel mines in defense could be charged under international law. Or troops on R&R could be charged with sexual violence or rape by angry "ladies of the night", and not have their day in a U.S. court. [End quoting]

That would be an excellent idea if they would get all the big-wigs who gave the orders from the top and not the ones carrying out the orders or being court-martialed—little likelihood of that, however.

MIDEAST, WAR, 1999

From MILITARY magazine, 9/98: [quoting]

Yasser Arafat has said he will unilaterally declare a Palestinian state in May 1999. Syria's Army is moving to a war footing and an Israeli assessment of Egypt sees their conversion to a modern military force as complete by next year. Israel's Netanyahu faces problems with his own people if he concedes the West Bank, and an Arab war if he does not. [End quoting]

One way or the other the puppets are in place to guarantee a Middle East holocaust.

NO MORE MILITARY SECRETS

From DISPATCHES, 9/98: [quoting]

In June, Vice President Al Gore announced the declassification and release of secret and restricted Navy data about the world's oceans. In addition, the administration has ordered the Pentagon to produce computer-based nautical charts to replace the paper charts used by civilian mariners for centuries.

So, what's the big deal? Well, it took the U.S. Navy a long time to become the greatest military force on the high seas. One of the great advantages, for instance, of the U.S. nuclear submarine fleet has been the data it has gathered over the years about ocean depths and their ability to hide under thermoclines, or layers of water of varying temperatures. Some data, like the latter, change frequently and requires constant updating to maintain advantage. What permits the U.S. Navy to do that is better technology.

What Al Gore has announced to the world is that the U.S. Navy has no more such secrets. They are as open to the Chinese, Russians and Iranians as they are to commercial interests, environmentalists and scientists. Don't you feel safer now?

Why is the administration compromising national security once again? You guessed it. It has discovered that there is important commercial value to this information the Navy has collected for the purpose of protecting our sea lanes and borders. Commercial value. Sound familiar? Sounds like the Commerce Department has been calling the shots again.

Gore, too, is excited about what this treasure trove of data could mean toward detecting evidence of global warming. All I know is things are going to get pretty hot if we lose every single technological military advantage we have over our potential enemies.

What's at stake? The Navy is in the process of declassifying secret data from its Sound Surveillance System, an array of underwater listening devices used to hunt submarines. "The acoustical data can also be used to track whale migrations, predict natural catastrophes and support climate change research," according to the White House. [End quoting]

The Clinton bunch probably has taken out a loan on the White House!! There isn't a thing they won't sell!!

NETWORKS FIGHT CABLE PROGRAMMING

Excerpted from the INTERNET, by David Bowermaster, 8/28/98: [quoting]

Will networks fade to black on satellite television?

CBS, Fox and other networks could disappear from many satellite TV viewers' screens in wake of recent court rulings.

MSNBC:

Skyrocketing cable rates make voters unhappy, and unhappy voters make politicians nervous—especially in an election year. So with cable prices rising at four times the rate of inflation, it is no surprise that members of Congress are trying to increase the appeal of satellite TV as an alternative to cable. But a series of recent court cases aimed at curtailing satellite services' ability to deliver network TV signals could diminish satellite as a competitive threat.

The crowning blow came in July, when a Miami judge, responding to a lawsuit filed by CBS, Fox and their affiliates, issued a temporary injunction that requires satellite service PrimeTime 24 to stop transmitting the two networks to hundreds of thousands of satellite viewers nationwide. The order, which takes effect on October 8, has prompted a torrent of complaints from consumers who fear they will lose access to shows like Chicago Hope and The X-Files.

Because PrimeTime 24 beams ABC, CBS, NBC and Fox signals from a handful of cities to its customers nationwide, the networks fear that satellite viewers will watch these distant stations instead of their local affiliates. Such defections could inhibit local affiliates' ability to attract advertisers. (NBC is a partner in the joint venture that operates MSNBC.)

Satellite viewers received a temporary reprieve on Friday when CBS and Fox agreed to voluntarily extend the cutoff date until January 1, 1999, to give consumers time to find other ways to view the networks.

"Experience has shown that viewers whose service is terminated frequently become angry at their local network station and threaten never to watch the station again," the networks explained in a court filing on Thursday.

The temporary injunction only applies to satellite subscribers who signed up for PrimeTime 24 service after March 11, 1997, but the judge could issue a permanent injunction that would apply to a much larger pool of satellite viewers... [End quoting]

The sharks are beginning to devour their own kind.

SUCH A DEAL

From THE SPOTLIGHT, 8/31/98: [quoting] The August 21, 1998 issue of Forward, America's most influential Jewish newspaper, says leading Jewish supporters of Bill Clinton have turned their back on him and only a U.S. military attack on Iraq will save him. Forward cited Jess Hordes of the Anti-Defamation League (ADL) who said Clinton must strike Iraq. Turns out it was longtime national ADL board member Sam Dash, "ethics advisor" to Independent Counsel Ken Starr Who—"over bagels" (according to the Washington Post)—hammered out the immunity deal for Monica Lewinsky to testify against Clinton. [End quoting]

Sounds like a very good possibility.

LIBERTARIAN IMPERATIVE

From THE SPOTLIGHT, 8/31/98: [quoting] Libertarian Party members approved a resolution at their national convention asking the U.S. House of Representatives to begin Articles of Impeachment against President Bill Clinton and Vice President Al Gore. The pronouncement pertains to Clinton's blatant violations of the U.S. Constitution by signing the Brady Bill, expanding the federal government's power over states and violating citizens' rights through various executive orders and 5 decrees. [End quoting]

Sorry to say, this is highly unlikely to help "we the people".

DRUG PUSHERS?

From THE SPOTLIGHT, 8/31/98: [quoting]

Gen. Barry McCaffrey, who is the top administration advisor on drug policy, has charged that "There is a carefully camouflaged, exorbitantly funded, well-heeled elitist group whose ultimate goal is to legalize drug use in the United States." McCaffrey's charges came on the heels of the release of an open letter to the United Nations signed by a host of prominent figures, including billionaire speculator George Soros. The letter says they wish to foster "open discussion" of the drug issue. For years Soros has been pushing drug legalization. McCaffrey says that those following Soros "perpetuate a fraud on the American people so devious that even some of the nation's most respectable newspapers and sophisticated media are capable of echoing their falsehoods." [End quoting]

Typical elite way to take over countries—get us all to be druggies and we won't care until they withhold our drugs or kill us off—after the takeover!!

DENIED CIVIL RIGHTS

From THE SPOTLIGHT, 8/31/98: [quoting] A federal judge upheld a ruling that a school in Wichita, Kansas, did not violate a 13-year-old's civil rights when he was suspended for drawing a Confederate flag in class. According to the school's Racial Harassment and Intimidation Policy initiated in 1995, students face disciplinary action if they are caught with material that is considered "racially divisive or creates ill will or hatred". [End quoting]

The only thing worse than a child asserting "civil rights" was the law used to overturn the assertion!

YOUR TURN

From THE SPOTLIGHT, 8/31/98: [quoting] A nonprofit organization, Center for Responsive Politics (CRP), has put together an Internet site allowing people to check their elected officials' finances. At <www.crp.org>, people can find individual contributors to candidates, PACs or party committees. CRP keeps track of everything from "White House coffees to Congressional travel to tobacco money". [End quoting]

Maybe some truth will help us discharge some of the crooks from their high offices.

ONE FOR THE CITIZENS

From THE SPOTLIGHT, 8/31/98: [quoting] An organization called Forfeiture Endangers American Rights (FEAR) has been documenting the Department of Justice's unlawful use of "administrative forfeitures", using a practice known as "sewer servicing" defendants—obtaining forfeitures with constitutionally inadequate service of process. According to FEAR, the agencies apparently win in district

OPEN ELECTION

From THE SPOTLIGHT, 8/31/98: [quoting]

Florida's new voting law, passed in response to Miami's fraud-riddled 1997 mayoral election, cannot take effect because federal civil rights experts can't decide whether the law is biased against "minorities". Florida Secretary of State Sandra Mortham warned: "The next dead man who votes in Miami votes courtesy of the United States Justice Department." [End quoting]

JUST SAY "NO"

From THE SPOTLIGHT, 8/31/98: [quoting]

The Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) is asking Congress for $171 million budget increase to pay for reorganization expected to reduce a huge backlog of immigrants applying for U.S. citizenship. FEDERAL EMPLOYEES' LIES

From the INTERNET, 8/18/98: [quoting]

Here is my opinion:

If one time in USA history, one agent/employee/officer/enlisted of the USA FEDERAL GOVERNMENT has ever told one LIE, especially for purposes of NATIONAL SECURITY, anyone who EVER TRUSTS THE USA FEDERAL GOVERNMENT AGAIN or tries to persuade anyone else to trust said government or claims either sincerely or insincerely that it was done for a good cause should be sterilized to keep his/her genes out of the future gene pool of the Human Race! OUR DEEPEST FEAR

From the INTERNET, <para-discuss@tje.net>, 8/28/98: [quoting]

"Our deepest fear is not that we are inadequate. Our deepest fear is that we are powerful beyond measure. It is our light, not our darkness, that most frightens us. We ask ourselves, Who am I to be brilliant, gorgeous, talented, fabulous? Actually, who are you not to be? You are a child of God. Your playing small doesn't serve the world. There's nothing enlightened about shrinking so that other people won't feel insecure around you. You are born to make manifest the glory of God that is within you. It's not just in some of us, it's in everyone. And as we let our own light shine, we unconsciously give other people permission to do the same.

As we're liberated from our own fear, our presence automatically liberates others."

TINY ROBOTS, TINY MUSCLES

From POPULAR MECHANICS magazine, Sep. 1998: [quoting]

It's no exaggeration to call Boris a wiry little critter. Power to move his insectlike legs comes from applying an electric current through Muscle Wires.

Made of a nickel-titanium alloy called Nitinol, Muscle Wires extend at room temperature. When heated they quickly contract. In pairs, they function like muscles and tendons in the human body. Stretched less than 5% of their length, Muscle Wires can flex more than a million times.

It's not just fun and games. A spokesman for Mondo-Tronics of San Rafael, Calif., says Muscle Wires could eventually squeeze out small motors and solenoids in tiny devices where weight and energy consumption are critical design considerations. [End quoting]

MORE THAN A PAINTING

From GUIDEPOSTS, July 1998, P.O. Box 1479, Carmel, NY 10512: [quoting]

During the longest summer of my life—the summer of '92—there was a painting of my house hanging in the gallery across Main Street from our bookshop. Friends kept stopping by, asking, "Have you seen the painting? It's beautiful."

My wife, Kris, returned from the gallery impressed. "I wish your mom could see it," she said. "You know how she loves the house."

Mom, sadly, was too ill to leave her home, and I was busy helping take care of her. But one afternoon in early August I went to the gallery to take a look. The walls were drenched with color, filled with beautiful depictions of our town—Main Street, walkways, gardens, older homes.

Then I saw the painting. Though many people had photographed, sketched or painted our turn-of-the-century house, no one had captured its whimsical character the way that artist, Ann Vasilik, had. She had shown it from what might be considered its ugly side, where the stack pipes and rambling renovations were visible. But in Ann's soft warm colors, our house looked just as I fancied it—a dowager in genteel poverty, her fortunes down but her pride undiminished.

As I studied the picture, I felt for the first time in weeks an interest in something other than my own troubles. But one glance at the price told me the painting was beyond the means of a small-town bookseller.

The summer had begun on a high note. I had finally decided to make a major commitment to my faith and join the Catholic Church. Just a week later, however, I got some terrible news: My mother was dying of cancer. Ever since, I had lived in a haze, as if the world's sights and sounds came through gauze.

I left the art gallery without giving the painting further thought in the midst of making Mom's last days comfortable; I didn't even notice when the exhibit closed.

After Mom's death in early September, I settled into a routine that helped me get through each day. Prayer brought me some comfort, but my grief went deeper than I imagined possible. Without Mom—the soul, the center of our family—I felt overwhelmed by the dark forces that accompany grief: loneliness, emptiness, despair and isolation.

In November our good friends Henry and Julie Nathan invited us to supper at their house. Kris and I were surprised at the large buffet spread out in the dining room. Julie explained that she had invited a few other friends to join us. We chatted in the living room, greeting others as they entered.

As more and more guests arrived, anxiety gripped me. This wasn't a small party. The room was filling with people. Although they were all friends of ours, I couldn't make the connection between some of them and the Nathans. Why were they there?

Never before had I felt such an extraordinary tension in the air, a sense of an impending event. Finally, Julie came into the room with a large object wrapped in a blanket. "Attention, everyone!" she called. Then she turned to Kris and me: "We all chipped in to get it for you."

Julie whisked away the cloth. There was a watercolor, like a bright jewel, all sunlight and shimmering warmth. I was so overwhelmed it took me several seconds to realize it was the painting of our house.

The rest of that evening remains vague in my memory. Our friends applauded. I got to my feet and stammered a few remarks of gratitude. My wife cried. I scarcely remember eating supper or visiting afterward.

What I vividly recall, however, was an amazing sense of blessing, of knowing God's grace was at work. For weeks I had thought I was alone, cut off from others yet here was proof of the love and friendship that filled my life. Today the watercolor hangs above the mantel in our living room. Guests often ask about it, and then I gladly tell them how it came to me. I never tire of the story. Because each time I tell it, I look at the painting and see not simply a picture of my house. I see instead the faces of my friends.—by Jeffrey Minick, Waynesville, North Carolina [End quoting]

Marcos' Hidden Stashes Of Philippine Gold

After all the battles and court hassles it has to be recognized that Gerald Spence ONLY WON THE CASE IN WHICH HE ACTED AS TRIAL LAWYER FOR IMELDA because of technical default and a criminal mind structuring corporate and Foundational regulations in the most shrewd manipulations yet seen by man—until, of course, Bush, Baker, Bentsen, et al. Could Gerry possibly have been so “fooled” by this lady? Well, I suppose but I fail to be impressed with his perceptions as he projects them, especially to his legal students of the legal game. So be it.

These named gentlemen (Bush, et al.) were to their ears in the Marcos dictatorship of the Philippines while under Martial Law. This is where we should actually integrate the Russell contracts into the whole of the story. See if you don't find a lot of familiar numbers, names and subterfuge. I am going to ask you to copy some material which will remain unnamed for the moment but can be proven by the news articles which will be gotten later this morning. You will then see who are your contacts and WHY they must be brought into this loop. Whether or not there is funding left from the raiders of the lost treasure, is questionable, but it matters not for there IS THE VALID CONTRACT LEFT BY HERMAN RUSSELL. Will anyone recognize the gift? Who knows?!? Imelda and family will when presented correctly—but whether or not she dares do anything is quite another question.

[QUOTING:] [H: I shall not use much quoting here so never mind listing references yet for I want the resource both protected and non-recognized. I do not want the source revealed to anyone here or there until I say so, please. This is urgently important, so don't share anything at random with ANYONE.]

There were very few men Marcos didn't mess with. Enrique Zobel was one. Scion of the Roxas-Ayala-Zobel clan, his ancestor, Domingo Roxas, founded the family's first trading company in the Philippines in 1834. It grew into a billion-dollar empire. By the time Marcos came to power, Zobel was one of the richest men in the Philippines. He wasn't a crony and he had not made his fortune by pillaging the country. To the contrary, he was a man of enormous vision whose success came from hard work and astute business decisions.

Short, stocky, and competitive, Zobel's first love was polo. One of his polo-playing friends was the Sultan of Brunei, the tiny oil-rich nation to the south. He had rich and powerful friends all over the world. Marcos left him alone.

Zobel could have played the role of landed gentry but that wasn't his style. Chairman of the board, president, and director of dozens of corporations, his financial and managerial prowess could especially be seen in the Bank of the Philippine Islands, which he took over in the mid-seventies and built into one of the nation's largest financial institutions. He also built Ayala Corporation into a billion-dollar real estate and industrial conglomerate.

By the early eighties Marcos and his cronies had effectively destroyed the economy. Zobel agonized over what was happening to the country. He helped organize the Makati Business Club as a forum to critique and comment on government economic policies but soon he realized nobody was listening. In 1985 he told the New York Times, “If you had money to invest in Southeast Asia, the Philippines is the last place I would tell you to put it now.” He was one of the few that could say something like that and not risk the ire of Marcos.

Upset at Marcos' heavy-handed tactics, Zobel resigned from both Ayala Corporation and the bank and began concentrating his efforts on businesses outside the Philippines through another of his companies, Ayala International. Through all this, he maintained a grudging respect for Marcos, hoping he would come to his senses and turn the country around. He supported Marcos in the 1986 snap election but even powerful friends couldn't help that time.

In October 1988, Marcos asked Doctor

Lourdes Pascual, a family friend, to prepare a promissory note and deliver it to Zobel in Manila. The note was prepared but its delivery was delayed by more pressing matters.

On October 21 the Grand Jury in New York handed down an indictment against Marcos, Imelda, Adnan Khashoggi, and eight others. It set off a flurry of legal histrionics that took up most of Marcos' time. It also prevented him from leaving the U.S. He couldn't return to the Philippines for Baltazar Aquino's testimony.

Marcos and Imelda were ordered to report to the FBI in Honolulu on November 18 for fingerprinting, palm printing, and to produce a sample of their handwriting and a recording of their voices. They had been subpoenaed the previous May but they appealed, claiming they were entitled to their Philippine constitutional rights. This motion was denied and they were ordered to comply by August 8. They then claimed head-of-state immunity. This motion was also denied and they were ordered to comply by August 18. An appeal was filed. The Court of Appeals denied the claim on October 19. The Court also held that the Grand Jury had the authority to order the Marcoses to sign consent directives, authorizing the foreign banks to turn over their financial records. The case was elevated to the Supreme Court. They lost and were ordered to report to the FBI.

Pascual finally fled into Manila in late November and met with Zobel. She asked if he could loan Marcos $250 million, and showed him the note. It had been antedated to October 17, by Marcos. It stated: “In consideration of this loan I promise to deliver three-million ounces of gold within three years after I return to the Philippines.” That was more than 85 metric tons, worth about $1.3 billion, not a bad return. Zobel checked his calendar and told Pascual he would meet Marcos in December.

Marcos encountered more setbacks before Zobel arrived. On November 29 the court-appointed doctor announced Marcos was well enough to travel to New York for his arraignment. On December 1 the Court of Appeals upheld the decision to freeze his assets worldwide. A few days later his own doctors issued a report that described him as chronically ill with multiple abnormalities of the kidney and heart.

On December 8, Zobel met Marcos for dinner. Marcos hardly ate and looked very tired and weak. He asked for the promissory note that Pasqual had delivered. Zobel had to go back to his residence, ten minutes away, and retrieve it.

On returning, he told Marcos he didn't have $250 million available, but he asked how the loan would be repaid if he could arrange it. Marcos asked his nurse, Teresita Gallego, to fetch a folder. Zobel leafed through it. It was about an inch and a half thick and full of deposit certificates for gold stored in various banks all over the world—Switzerland, Monaco, the Vatican, the Bahamas, and other places. He mentally calculated that, at $400 an ounce, the price of gold at the time, the value was approximately $35 billion.

Some of the certificates were dated in the forties after World War II. Marcos explained that he began accumulating gold toward the end of the war. He found some treasure and also bought gold bars from soldiers who found them in the debris of Yamashita's retreating convoy. He reminted the bars in Hong Kong in 1946 and accumulated more through various treasure hunts. The reason he kept it secret until now, Marcos said, was other countries might have a legal claim to it, until 1985, because of the statute of limitations.

To most people that knew Marcos, this story sounded a bit odd. He came from a poor family and he made his first million as a first-term congressman in 1949 and 1950, selling import licenses. He bought a Cadillac to celebrate his new status. Before then, there was no outward indication of any wealth. When he courted Imelda in 1954, he brought her to a bank vault and showed her stacks of hundred-dollar bills, but no gold bars. He didn't even open his first bank account abroad until 1967.

Over dinner, Marcos told Zobel he wanted to help the Filipino people. Zobel suggested he set up a foundation. Marcos agreed and asked him to head it. Zobel demurred and suggested instead that the Vatican or its representative head it. [H: Please pay CAREFUL ATTENTION—HERE IS WHERE YOU GET THE INFORMATION YOU NEED.]

Marcos had voiced his dislike of the Church many times, accusing priests and nuns of being communist, but now he readily agreed with Zobel. He said the Roman Catholic church would receive 10 percent of the gold for use in its foreign missions; 10 percent would be retained by his family; 79 percent would go to the foundation set up for the benefit of the Filipino people; 1 percent would go to pay his debts, and the balance would go to his loyal staff and his doctors and nurses.

According to Zobel, Marcos rattled off the percentages without hesitation, as if he had planned the whole thing in advance. He may have. Zobel was the godfather of Greg Araneta, who married Marcos' daughter, Irene, in June 1983. Since the early eighties, when the economy went into a tailspin, he had pressured Araneta to convince Marcos to return the treasure and help the country. Zobel knew Marcos had been flying gold out of the country since 1972. As a pilot in the air force reserve, qualified in fixed wing and rotary, he had a lot of friends that flew. Some of the Ilocano (Marcos preferred to trust military from his own province of Ilocos Norte) pilots had talked about flying C-130 aircraft loaded with gold to Zurich.

Marcos said that in future communications he would use the code name Gandhi, and asked that they meet again after he had discussed the plan with his lawyers. He suggested December 23 or 24, but Zobel said he couldn't make it until after Christmas.

Zobel left around eleven-thirty that evening. A few hours later Marcos was taken to St. Francis Hospital complaining of chest pains. On December 18 he was allowed to leave and spend Christmas at home. On the twenty-eighth he was rushed back to the hospital with a high fever. The December meeting was called off. He went home again on January 4, 1989.

From Honolulu, Zobel went to San Francisco and then Europe. He returned to Manila on January 3, in time to celebrate his birthday on the seventh. On January 12, he invited Pedro Conjuangco, President Aquino's brother, and Mrs. Dely Castillejo, Conjuangco's sister-in-law, to his residence. He told them about Marcos' desire to set up a foundation and asked that Conjuangco tell President Aquino.

Marcos was taken back to the hospital on January 15. He fell into a coma four days later. From then on he would only have brief moments of consciousness. On January 16 in Manila, Zobel had breakfast with Vice President Laurel at Laurel's residence and told him about the proposed agreement. To try and convince Aquino that Marcos was only coming home to die, they devised a plan to send two doctors to Hawaii to independently verify his state of health. Laurel and he would ask Aquino to approve it. Later that evening he called Zobel to say it was okay.

Zobel flew into Hawaii on January 18. The next day he heard that one of Marcos' lungs collapsed but doctors were able to inflate it. Around midnight, Laurel called and said the two doctors had been stopped at the Manila airport and prevented from departing by Aquino's secretary of health.

Marcos was too sick to see Zobel. On January 22 he met with Imelda instead and told her about Marcos' wishes for a foundation. The next day he met with Pascual, his lawyer, and one of Marcos' assistants to discuss how the trust agreement should be drawn up. They decided the Papal Nuncio in Manila, Bruno Torpigliani, would serve as principal trustee. The other trustees would be Father Rogelio Alarcon, Rector of Letran College, Pascual, and Zobel. Zobel agreed to serve on the condition that no compensation would be paid to the trustees for their work.

Before leaving, Zobel contacted John Fulks, head of the FBI in Hawaii. He wanted it known that all his dealings with Marcos and the Philippine government were above-board, and asked that the FBI make sure no one saw him and Marcos together when they met. A few days before, a television reporter had come to his house and asked if he were in town to negotiate a deal with Marcos. He denied it, but worried that the plan might be jeopardized if it were made public. Fulks said he would take care of it.

Zobel then called a friend, Frank Yturria, in Washington and asked him to brief SECRETARY OF STATE JAMES BAKER on the situation.

A lot of very important people knew what Zobel was doing. [H: Yes indeed, like Bush, Bentsen, Baker, North and Greenspan.] They were not surprised. Long before meeting with Marcos, he had taken an interest in finding a way to pay off the foreign debt of the Philippines and had discussed the matter with friends in high places. Being a banker himself with worldwide connections, he occasionally met with some of the country's creditors. When the talk came around to that subject, Zobel would ask, "How much discount would you give if I could pay off all the debt?" They replied that they would accept FORTY-EIGHT cents on the dollar. [H: This is a very important number!] That meant the government only had to repay about $13 billion instead of more than $27 billion.

Zobel flew to San Francisco on January 27 and met with Danding Cojuangco, Aquino's first cousin, Eduardo Romualdez, and uncle of Imelda, Greg Araneta, and two of Imelda's lawyers, John Bartko of San Francisco and Richard Hibey of New York. After the plan was explained to them, Conjuangco, Romualdez, and Araneta expressed their own desires to serve as trustees. Zobel said the final decision would have to come from Marcos.

He returned to Honolulu on the twenty-ninth and went to the hospital at noon but was still unable to see Marcos. That evening he met with Imelda and Bong Bong at the hospital, and showed them a draft of the trust agreement. Bong Bong remarked, "See, mother, father never told us these things."

Zobel didn't know what Bong Bong meant by that statement. It could have meant he was unaware of Marcos' gold hoard, which was unlikely, or that he was unaware of the foundation that Marcos wanted to set up. That Imelda had known for a week and not told her son was just another curiosity in a family known for its intrigues.

The next afternoon Zobel went back to the hospital. Marcos opened his eyes once and seemed to smile at him, but he went back to sleep. No documents were signed.

The next day Zobel gave Imelda and Bong Bong four copies of the trust agreement. Bong Bong agreed to get his father to sign them when he was able. Zobel departed Honolulu on February 1. When he arrived in Manila he heard that Marcos had undergone a tracheotomy. On February 3 he met with the Papal Nuncio and Alarcon and gave them a copy of the trust agreement.

Marcos' medical condition was rapidly deteriorating. In April the court-appointed doctor reversed his decision and announced that Marcos was medically unfit for travel to New York. In June the doctors removed the kidney that had been transplanted in 1984. From there it was all downhill. Marcos turned seventy-two on September 11. He died seventeen days later shortly after midnight. The trust agreement was never signed.

[H: Note please, that this is about the same time that the stuff was hitting the fan about the Russell Gold Certificate! Perhaps there might not be so much wonderment as to why that document would be so very important in the lay of golden geese.]

In deference to Marcos' death, Zobel did not bother the family in mourning. He heard from Pascual that Bong Bong retrieved the folder containing the gold deposit certificates from Marcos' nurse. Later Imelda showed some gold certificates of the same description—yellowed with age and dated 1946 to 1948—to journalists on two separate occasions.

Zobel believed the certificates were real and quietly pursued the business Marcos never finished. He hoped Imelda and Bong Bong would follow through with Marcos' plans and set up the foundation.

In November 1989 he attended the Volvo Golf Tournament in Spain with Rainer E. Gut, chairman of the board of Credit Suisse. He asked Gut if the Swiss banks would release the gold if the foundation presented two letters of authority—one signed by President Aquino and one signed by the Marcos heirs. Gut replied it could be done. This heartened Zobel. He was a busy man with a vast business and financial empire to oversee. Still, he took the time and did everything he could to see this project through to its fruition. He could not know of the terrible tragedy he would soon face.

As the PCGG went about the task of attempting to locate and recover the hidden wealth of Marcos, they waded through mountains of documents and interviewed hundreds of people. Marcos was suspected of having gold deposited in banks in the U.S., Hong Kong, Singapore, Switzerland, and several other European countries, but nothing could be traced to him because the accounts were set up differently.

There was mention of an organization known as Umbrella, which he had set up along the line of communist cells. Each gold account was controlled by a group of trustees, usually three. Each group was unknown to the other. To access an account required approval of all trustees to that account.

Marcos and Bong Bong were the only two people who knew the entire Umbrella structure. After Marcos died, Bong Bong told Imelda. They decided to dismantle the organization but there was a problem. Some people in these groups were loyal to Marcos, not Imelda or Bong Bong, and were out to protect their own interests. The PCGG was aware of this. Imelda had told them as much. They knew that, even when they had the account number, the vault number, and the serial numbers of the bars, the bank would deny the gold's existence to protect its clients.

Marcos had set it up well. His brilliant legal mind combined with the financial skills of the Swiss could make any gold in his possession seemingly disappear.

He wasn't so lucky in other areas. Before he died, an old nemesis returned to haunt him.

One of the first to get a close look at the 2,068 pages impounded by the Bureau of Customs in Honolulu in February 1986 was Bonnifacio "Boni" Gillego. In 1982, he was the first to write about and expose the Marcos war medals as fake. A furious Marcos ordered his arrest but he managed to escape to the U.S.

In the States he worked as a hotel clerk to support his family. He kept up the fight by joining the Movement for Free Philippines (M.F.P.), a U.S. group devoted to peaceful lobbying against the corruption and human rights abuses of the Marcos regime. Marcos' agents in the States were aware of the group and continued to hound him and other members.

After Marcos was overthrown, Gillego returned to the Philippines. Aquino asked him to serve as executive director of the PCGG to investigate Marcos' illegal accumulation of wealth. Later he would be elected to congress, but it was while working in the PCGG that he made his discovery.

It seemed only fitting that someone persecuted by Marcos would be the one to find proof that the murders of Gene Viernes and Silme Domingo could be traced all the way to the palace and expose Marcos' regime as cold-blooded killers. He also found something else—THE U.S. GOVERNMENT WAS A WILLING ACCOMPLICE.

[END OF QUOTING]

This is sufficient for our needs today for after we get into the entanglement with the U.S. it will lead directly to the ones trying to kill Herman to get at the contract we now hold in full. Is it not wondrous the way God serves His people, if they but pay attention? He will also always give you confirmation with backup which can prove your case if you allow the unfolding and the patience.

Salu and good afternoon.

Thank You, God

*Thank you, God, for little things
That often come our way—
The things we take for granted
But don't mention when we pray—
The unexpected courtesy,
The thoughtful, kindly deed—
A hand reached out to help us
In the time of sudden need—
Oh make us more aware, dear God,
Of little daily graces
That come to us with sweet surprise
From never-dreamed-of places.*

Public Notice

GLOBAL ALLIANCE INVESTMENT ASSOCIATION MEMORANDUM OF DIRECTIVE

The following points and authorities are offered hereby to eliminate any misunderstandings between negotiating parties as relative to the PERUVIAN BONUS CERTIFICATE # 3392-181, originated in 1875 and accepted as United States of America Treasury debt in 1906.

Since this debt was assumed prior to any other agreements involving monetary departments, divisions, or branches of government, this is a bonafide outstanding debt of the United States of America, the U.S. Treasury, the Federal Reserve System, the International Monetary Fund and the central World Bank and/or branches thereof.

The applicable restrictions and limitations in this transaction will apply to all participants. Due to NATIONAL SECURITY considerations no input to change or remand the validity of the debt created by BONUS 3392 will be accepted from the COUNCIL ON FOREIGN RELATIONS, the UNITED NATIONS, or any other entity, foreign or domestic.

As of November, 1997, all records formerly kept (and available for inspection) at the Peruvian Consulate in Los Angeles have been moved to Peru to prevent their possible destruction. Only individuals having appropriate authorization and credentials will be allowed to view them there.

All relevant documents, including the lawful chain-of-title of Bonus 3392, were legally recorded on August 10, 1998 at 8:35 A.M. and may be found at the office of Judith A. Vandever, Clark County Recorder, 500 South Grand Central Parkway, Las Vegas, Nevada 891-55-1510, Book 980810, Instrument 00323.

Because the amount of debt created by BONUS 3392 is so large that the global economy could be brought to collapse through its misuse, agreements have been finalized to allow the hypothecation of portions of the debt (through the use of contracts or deeds of assignment or leasing agreements) pursuant to the following rules and restrictions:

While prior use of the contract/certificate is noted, the parties using it will not be named in this document. Should such parties refuse their cooperation in the future, they may be named.

The contract has been utilized by the U.S. and hypothecated as COLLATERAL for use of the IMF and WB for the support of United Nations activities.

It has been agreed that the United States Federal Government may continue to use these contracts as collateral up to fifty percent (50%) of the accrued value.

The Holder of the contracts will be allowed to utilize the other fifty percent (50%), PROVIDING:

The Holder and its funding parties restrict themselves to single contracts not exceeding fifty billion dollars. (This does NOT preclude the offering of more than one such contract to any one entity.)

To avoid exposure of too large an asset it will be permissible to utilize corporations of common ownership to hold such additional contracts.

Under extraordinary circumstances warranting the issuance of one larger contract, for instance, the purchase of a single property, larger contracts may be issued if care is taken not to exceed the 50% use limitation.

It is anticipated that the Holder will purchase gold equal to the value of its portion of the contract to be pledged as collateral for a line-of-credit. Any "lease" arrangement must be structured to accommodate this requirement. The payment for leased collateral will be applied only to the funds available to the funder (not those of the Holder) and will be one percent (1%) per month for 120 months or two percent (2%) for 60 months.

As a consideration of National Security (as well as Global Security), transactions WITHIN these guidelines will not be interfered with or blocked by the U.S. or its assigns. The consideration for such noninterference is that none of these contracts will be lodged for collection until such time as there is an additional agreement as to the lodging and honoring, through payoff, of the contracts.

Generally, it will be the practice of the Holder to expect the funder to provide loan capabilities and to purchase the gold as needed wherever there is security and it is NOT required to be housed within the U.S.

The Holder will not directly do business with any national group under sanction by either the U.S. or U.N. There is to be no restriction, however, on other parties or nations conducting business in their normal way. The Holder will conduct itself in the strictest accordance with all applicable laws.

The Holder has agreed to use its portion of funds for humanitarian purposes. No portion of its funds or assets will be used for purposes of ARMS ACQUISITION, WAR MAKING, OR THE OVERTHROW OR SUBVERSION OF ANY NATIONAL GOVERNMENT. However, the Holder has no way to police the use of funds by any other participating party.

Any abuse of these contracts or this DIRECTIVE will be considered by the U.S. as TREASON.

We must repeat that which is already obvious: THIS ONE ENTITY HAS VALUE ENOUGH TO DESTROY THE ENTIRE WORLD ECONOMY AND THIS WILL NOT BE ALLOWED THROUGH MISUSE THEREOF. If the participants abide by the agreements and restrict ourselves to good business procedures all can have a very productive and lucrative association.

To this DIRECTIVE we affix the authorized signatures and corporate seal to validate same.

Germain: The Time Is NOW For Making A Difference!

9/2/98 VIOLINIO ST. GERMAIN

Good day, and thank you for sitting to write for me. It is I, Germain, come in and with the White Light of the One God.

There is much that we could speak on today, as the pace of your world races at an ever-increasing speed. For those who are experiencing in that third-dimensional play which is so heavily focused upon the material, many things are causing great concern. However, it is the condition of your souls with which I am concerned at this time!

With each passing day, you are seeing your world's condition becoming more troublesome. Some have reached the point of saying they hope they do not live through the days ahead, and many are choosing to leave through the process of physical death at this time because the "stress" in their lives completely overwhelms them. Others are numbing themselves with alcohol and drugs, and still others have chosen to bury their heads in the sand, so to speak. These are the ones whose very foundations are being shaken.

BUT, DEAR ONES, YOU HAVE SEEN NOTHING YET! IN THE COMING DAYS, YOU ARE GOING TO BE WITNESS TO THE MOST TROUBLESOME TIMES ANY OF YOU HAVE EVER EXPERIENCED. FEAR IS GRIPPING AT THE VERY HEARTS OF PEOPLE, AND IN THIS FEAR LIES THE DESTRUCTIVE POWER PROVIDED THROUGH (AND UTILIZED BY) THE ADVERSARIAL FORCES.

Those who succumb to the temptation to opt-out of experiencing these times, will only live to repeat the lessons at another time, in another body. It is none of my business who chooses not to continue, but it IS my business to tell you why it is happening and to expose the author of the lie.

The lie is that through death you are free from that which troubled you in life. That is only true until you reincarnate into your next life, and then you will find yourself right back where you left off.

And, if you went out with fear, that fear will follow you. If you are going to choose to opt-out of the physical experience, then first get past those fears and focus on GOD. The funny thing is, once you get focused on GOD and

THE TRUTH, you will see that life is a great gift, and death is not the solution that honors the One Who created you.

However, the lie has worked very well, and for the weak-of-heart, the lie feels very comforting. Life may not be the easiest path to take, but you'll get a lot farther and learn a lot more than through dying and trying to escape.

Many thought Esu "Jesus" Sananda very cold when he told the young man, who wanted to follow him but first wanted to attend the burial of his father: "Let the dead bury the dead." Esu's teachings were for the living, as are these messages! There are plenty in your world focused on death and dying. They are the weak-of-heart, who have not purged the fear of living from their being.

Now, understand that fear is a natural part of your third-dimensional existence. Everyone is going to suffer from (and need to confront) fears from time to time.

The ones who I am addressing here are those who are so gripped by fear that they won't allow themselves to live and experience!

And that brings us to THE biggest preoccupation of you ones—MONEY. How many of you are so concerned about saving money for your old age that you don't live now? Those who are squirreling away all that financial "security" are in for one tough time when the realization of what's really important hits you!

Many of you lay awake at night worrying about your money. If you have so much that it is a worry, then get rid of it! You'd be better off giving it away to the widows and orphans. Is it not better to store up your treasures in the kingdom of heaven? That doesn't mean only after you die, you know!

For those of you who fear the loss of financial "security", I am sorry to break the news, but YOU ARE IN FOR A VERY RUDE AWAKENING! Though your stock market has regained some of its losses the past few days of your counting, KNOW that the gain is going to be very short-lived.

There has been intervention by those who have the most to lose in the game, and that is the only reason all the markets world-wide have not collapsed into a heap of dust! Had the situation been left alone, you would be seeing massive sellouts and a catastrophic drop!

The artificial propping-up of the markets can not go on forever, however, and those who are doing the propping-up are about to run out of options. YOU HAVE SEEN THE SITUATION IN RUSSIA—WELL, IT IS BUT THE PRECURSOR OF DAYS COMING WORLD-WIDE. So, if you are among the numbers of people whose "security" is based upon financial standing, you will have to change the tune to which you are dancing, for the band is about to stop playing FOR GOOD!

When all the counting is done, it won't matter one iota whether you had a million dollars in the bank or three pennies in your pocket. IT WILL MATTER, HOWEVER, WHAT YOU HAVE DONE WITH WHAT YOU HAVE!

I cannot tell you how to spend your money. That is something you will have to determine for yourselves.

Now, understand that fear is a natural part of your third-dimensional existence. Everyone is going to suffer from (and need to confront) fears from time to time.

The ones who I am addressing here are those who are so gripped by fear that they won't allow themselves to live and experience!

It will also matter how you went about getting what you have. How many have you hurt as you pushed your way up the ladder to financial success? How many lies have you told to get there and stay there? How many have you trampled upon?

And, above all: what was and is YOUR INTENT? How many have you encouraged, or taken under your tutelage? How have you treated those in the lower ranks, or those who have been of service to you? How have you treated the waitress when you had your business lunches? And then the biggie: how much of your life is really honest? These are the things you will get to review, you know.

So, rather than sit and pass judgement on one another, you will do far greater good in the long run to sit in critical analysis of yourself. If you have even one thing in your life for which you are ashamed, then you have no right and no business pointing a finger at anyone else. Very, very few of you qualify. Remember that point the next time you point a finger at another or gossip behind someone's back.

Remember you each have an awful lot of forgiveness to ask for. And, if you are holding ANY unforgiveness toward anyone, including yourself, you are but choking off your own blessings—especially your ability to allow God to work through you!

The sand in the hourglass is rapidly running out. Time to get your houses in order is running out, as well. And there is no time like the present to get your spiritual life in order, because on that day of judgement, it will be too late.

If each of you spent half as much time judging your own lives as you have spent judging President Clinton's life, you would have accomplished a VERY GREAT DEAL, indeed. Though what the man has done may be considered perverted and immoral, be careful that you do not judge. For when you judge another, you are opening up to another judging you.

I have been over this subject with you ones many times before, and I will repeat myself here, because either you did not get it, or you are ignoring it. Either way, it bears repeating: YOU MAY DISCERN THE ACTIONS OF ANOTHER, BUT SEE TO IT THAT YOU DO NOT JUDGE THE PERSON! JUDGEMENT IS TO BE LEFT BETWEEN THAT PERSON AND CREATOR. SINCE YOU ARE NOT CREATOR, YOU HAVE BEEN GIVEN NO RIGHTS TO SIT IN JUDGEMENT OF ANOTHER MAN OR WOMAN! ONLY THAT WHICH IS PERFECT MAY JUDGE WHAT IS IMPERFECT.

For those of you who have not gotten yourselves right with GOD, I am here today to tell you that you are out of time. Do it now, or do not do it.

Events are shaping up such that there is no more time to be sitting on the fence waiting to see what happens tomorrow. Tomorrow has arrived!

As the old saying goes, "There is no time like the present." If you do not have YOUR OWN spiritual house in order, you may not have the strength of spirit to make it through the coming days. It is going to be difficult enough for those who have been "training" for these days. The adversarial attacks have increased, and many have already lost the battle. Meanwhile, the adversary promises to make everyone's lives as miserable as possible.

These are the days of testing your resolve and testing your spiritual determination. I cannot stress enough the importance of self-examination. If there is anything within your heart that you have not come to terms with, you better be coming to terms with it NOW.

Whatever your weakness is, that's the place where the adversary will attack. Your only defense is strengthening every fiber of your being—body, mind and spirit. And, if there is a weakness found, recognize it, deal with it openly, and go on. Do not take the time for wallowing in your fears or guilts, for these are weaknesses, and a perfect target for attack.

If you have been carefully watching, you are fully aware that your world is changing very rapidly, and events are accelerating at an unprecedented speed. Many of you complain that there seems to be less time in each day, though mostly you put it off to your ever-increasingly busy lives. And, to some degree, that is what is occurring.

However, time is speeding up, as you and your world are making a dimensional transition. Your perception of time is changing, and though your clocks still register 24 hours in a day and the Sun still appears to come up at the proper time, you are losing several hours of that perception.

Once the transition has been complete, and each one who is going to transition has transitioned, it will all balance itself out. You are in the time of the change now, and it is a time of turmoil all about. What once was a task of thirty minutes, now may take forty-five minutes to an hour, by the clock, to complete.

Remember: time is the invention of third-dimensional man. As you are changing into higher-dimensional beings, you are still living in a third-dimensional perception. You are becoming lighter (less dense), and time does not have the same meaning to you. Your bodies are in preparation for that which is coming shortly. Unless your physical being changes, you will not survive.

So, as you are complaining daily about not enough time to take care of things, remember it is happening for a very good reason. You still will not have any more time in a day, but you at least will know it is for a good reason. And this condition DOES cause one to better utilize (focus) what time one does have!

It is most important that you ones not become overwhelmed by daily events and news. The darkness that seems to have your world in its grips preys on those who become too involved in the daily concerns of the world.

Watch that which goes on about you; don't bury your heads in the sand; but keep things and events in proper perspective. Remember your years of training and remember that becoming weighed down by worldly affairs and events only lowers your frequency and may prevent you from maintaining your focus on the goal, which is serving GOD.

When the attacks of the adversary come, know that you are right on course, and the attacks are attempts to take you off course. Look upon these attacks as mere pesky distractions, and keep your eyes on the goal. Because, dear friends, when all is said and done, you will be most glad you were not dissuaded.

As the Earth shakes, and wars flare up, and winds and rains blow, and governments lie and cheat, and the adversary runs to and fro throughout your world—know that these are but the signals that the clock is running down. As the very elements themselves, of which your body and all physical matter is composed, seem to be heaving, understand that there IS a Grand Master Plan.

Hold this knowledge within your very beings, as your Source of Strength in these times of trial and tribulation. There is a great change that is rapidly upon you all, and all will experience it in one form or another.

How you fare through these times, however, is of your own making. Whether you persist and hold-on to the TRUTH and LIGHT, or whether you opt-out of the physical existence because of FEAR and DARKNESS, is totally up to each and every one of you, individually.

No one can make your decisions for you, but each of you who are going to experience that which is upon you will need to lean upon one another. Those who give unselfishly of yourselves are the ones who will make the greatest strides and the greatest difference.

The world IS going to be rebuilt—not by the bigwigs and not by the giant corporations, but by each of you "little people" out there, who are in actuality spiritual giants!

Thank you for your time this day. I am Violinio St. Germain, and I leave you with the Light of Holy God about you and yours.

Salu.

Soltec: Ignoring The Clues Won't Lessen The Lessons

9/6/98 SOLTEC

Good evening, my friend. It is I, Commander Ceres Anthonious "Toniose" Soltec, come in the Radiant One Light of Creator Source. Be at peace.

Many have taken notice of the recent tectonic plate movements around the Pacific "Ring of Fire". In the last week of your counting there have been in excess of 6 large quakes greater than 6.5 in magnitude around the boundaries of that Pacific Plate. (I say "in excess of" because of how your reporting philosophy devalues the actual earthquake intensities.)

This last Wednesday there were three such quakes of a greater than 6.5M in one day along the Pacific Rim. The one in the Philippine Islands was reported to you there in the United States as a 6.9M event, while it was locally reported in the Philippines as a 7.4M shaker—this is about 5X greater in intensity.

There are very good reasons why these numbers are so obscure to you who have ability to reason: You would be in full alert and, for some—IN FULL PANIC! There are but threads holding the fault lines at this time. You will soon see terra firma turning into "terror-fury" as your geological stability becomes more and more compromised with each passing day.

These earthquakes should be viewed as signals to you ones, especially those of you who are experiencing them first hand. These areas are the ones which will indeed be the most impacted in the coming days, weeks, and months.

For many this message will simply be discarded as another "fear mongering" attempt to frighten you ones. However, if one can see "around the corner" because of the advantage of their current viewpoint, and that one is able to "radio" down to those who are driving along and cannot see that the "bridge" is out up ahead, is that one doing so in order to frighten and harass those who are on a collision course with pending disaster? Or, is that one merely attempting to assist ones who are asking for assistance?

You see, from my vantage point, I can see that the "bridge" is crumbling beneath your very feet and that what is about to happen is a mere matter of material physics, thermodynamics, and fluid mechanics. This is not to even complicate the picture by mentioning all of the "etheric" precursors and indicators which have a very real and "solid" scientific "grounding" in fact—whether your current science acknowledges same or not.

I can do no more than respond to your inquiries in a manner that is of a logical and caring nature. If that brings discomfort to your weary heart, then you should do well to look within and look at what about this sort of message truly bothers you.

Is the discomfort, perhaps, the fact that you do not want to be reminded that you have continually ignored the clues and indicators all about you? Or maybe your uneasiness swells from procrastination about making the changes you already know you should have made?

Allow me to assure you that there WILL be a remnant, and those who are left WILL have their hands full with the necessities of survival.

There will be little time to worry about those who chose not to participate in the rebuilding of your world. This is to say that only YOU who do not intend to survive will "suffer" your reluctance to prepare. Your actions indicate your true intent. You can scream from mountain tops that you want to survive, but if you do little more than excessively vibrate your vocal cords, you will surely not be prepared for that which is coming.

It is God's promise to you ones that there would be those sent to assist you in your times of need. THESE ARE THOSE TIMES, and I, Ceres Anthonious Soltec, come with the many Hosts of God as a Messenger, Teacher, and Guide. We of the Hosts are entrusted with the task of giving forth the necessary guidance so that those of you who "have eyes to see" will see and those of you who "have ears to hear" will hear.

It is NOT our job to MAKE you see or MAKE you hear. We have offered—and will continue to offer—our assistance to any and all who wish to have it. We will always provide you with a unique and broader perspective from which to view any given situation. We will also always effort toward that which will enhance YOUR overall growth experience as an Infinite Creative Being.

You are each there in the physical because you have a strong desire to expand your awareness and knowledge about self and Creator Source. The physical experience is nothing more than a holographic type of role-playing game. There is nothing about this game to fear, and if a building crumbles and falls upon your physical head, then your body may cease to function, but YOU will go on!

I know that, for the majority of you, you wish to keep the body functioning as long as possible so that you can better optimize your growth potential! It is easy to see the "right" answers from a non-physical perspective, looking back. It is not so easy to perceive the "right" answers from where you ones are experiencing at this time, looking forward. This is the wondrous challenge that you ones desire greatly to master.

Many of my fellow Teachers have, in recent weeks in these pages, expanded upon the following point, which I likewise emphasize: It IS possible to connect to Higher Source in a deliberate and continuous manner WHILE REMAINING IN THE PHYSICAL. However, the desire and self discipline must be strong if you are to achieve such awareness. With desire and persistence on YOUR part, then WE will assist you with this connection—a most worthy goal or skill to develop at this time.

YOU DO NOT NEED WEATHER REPORTS, EARTHQUAKE REPORTS, OR ANY SUCH REPORTS IF YOU BUT LEARN TO LISTEN WITHIN! Many of you who are reading this continue to deny that YOU are CREATOR. Regardless, you each have within you a Divine Connection—a "Spark of Light" that IS CREATOR within you! You are all efforting continually to actualize this perceptual realization for self.

I tell you now that you need not struggle towards this realization; you only need to allow for it to BE! Most often, when you ones struggle over something, you are in actuality pushing it away.

Do NOT dwell upon that which you do not have, but rather be thankful for all that you do have. In the appreciation of that which you do have, you will find that you will have more and more for which to be thankful, and that your life is continually becoming fuller and fuller.

If you continue to dwell upon that which you don't have, you will become more and more miserable, and you will become more and more disconnected from the Inner Infinitely Abundant Energy that IS your God-given "Spark of Life".

When you feel "alive" and "on top of the world", you can KNOW that you are allowing this Creative Energy to flow. If you are feeling anything less, then you can know, with equal certainty, that YOU are disallowing this same flow.

I will always strive toward that which will assist you ones the most in your overall experience of growth, for as you each respond to these messages in your own way, we monitor the effectiveness and impact of the energy (the messages) that we send forth. This return flow helps us to see what is then the next best step to take to help you ones.

Many of you have agreed to participate in very daring and elaborate experiments along these lines. This is to say that some of the approaches that we will use to guide you toward your goals of growth would be considered a "long shot". But, as with any "long shot", what comes in the "pay-off" (reward) is usually quite large in terms of movement and growth.

You will see the physical world turned upside-down and inside-out, and you will have reactionary responses to many situations that are coming. You only need to remember that all is part of the "game" of life and living, and that there are perfectly good reasons for all that happens, and that none whose bodies perish are truly "gone", and that the result of these experiences will be a clarifying of the thoughts, priorities, and subsequent "realities" of many ones.

The net result will be for the betterment of all beings, everywhere, for all will grow either directly or indirectly from the experiences of any one. You in the physical are on the leading edge of creative thought, and contrasting experiences cause the greatest potential for new experiences and growth.

Out of pure chaos will be borne a pure desire for balance. As a pure balance is achieved, ones begin to develop a sense of mediocrity and boredom, and thus look for a "problem" to solve, a "challenge" to face, or a new "game" to play. Adventure is often a more desirable experience than is a tranquil and lazy afternoon. This is to say that the cycles of life are infinite and ever changing.

Just as an electromagnetic pulse-wave of energy cycles from a positive potential through a zero point of pure balance, and continues on into a negative potential, only to repeat the cycle again and again, so too are the infinite experiences of life.

So, for those of you who wish to remain stagnated where you are, you don't have to worry, for your next experience will surely pick-up right where you are at right now. For those of you who truly desire a new and evolving experience toward greater understanding of your true creative potential, you will heed these guiding messages and take full advantage of the insights offered herein. Yours will be "the adventure of a lifetime".

I am Ceres Anthonious Soltec; I come with the Hosts of God so that His Will be done.

It is from within this Light that we originate, and it is this same Light that we continue to seek out and understand. Know thyself and you will come to know your Creator. May your journey be that of excitement and growth, and never be without a good challenge! Salu. ~~☸~~

If you continue to dwell upon that which you don't have, you will become more and more miserable, and you will become more and more disconnected from the Inner Infinitely Abundant Energy that IS your God-given "Spark of Life".

When you feel "alive" and "on top of the world", you can KNOW that you are allowing this Creative Energy to flow. If you are feeling anything less, then you can know, with equal certainty, that YOU are disallowing this same flow.

Wisdom Of The Rays: The Masters Teach

ABOUT THE BOOK

This large collection (over 400 pages + 4 color photos) of popular spiritual writings from the CONTACT newspaper includes a detailed introduction to the 14 Higher Authors, plus several commentaries unique to the purpose of this volume.

The expansive yet compassionate nature of the messages delivered in WISDOM OF THE RAYS: The Masters Teach not only challenges those already firmly committed upon the spiritual path, but also provides a serious first step to help ones who are just awakening to (and inquiring about) the magnificent Spiritual Transformation now sensed by many to be in progress upon this planet.

FROM THE BACK COVER

"Our Elder Brothers from the Higher Realms of Creation are attempting to communicate with ALL of us at this time. Why? Take a look around you. The old ways of doing things aren't working. Our planet is entering a time of massive, turbulent change and renewal. To put it bluntly: we NEED help! And that's where this book comes into the picture. Yes, eventually 'the Phoenix will arise from the ashes' after this Great Cleansing process, but the ride could be quite a bumpy one, especially for those ill-prepared for what is to happen.

"Just how we choose to deal with such change is THE question each of us must confront. Yet confusion swirls everywhere upon Earth at this time. And restless searchers cry out for that which may help them cope with these truly challenging times ahead. Thus these messages courtesy of our most loving Elder Brothers from the Higher Realms of Creation who are but further along the same spiritual path we all must eventually walk."

TELEPHONE

HOTLINE

As an adjunct to CONTACT, the Telephone Hotline keeps you as informed as possible on current events and other important information that needs to get to our subscribers before our publishing date.

The message machine will answer after 2 rings if there are any new messages for that day, and after 4 rings if not. Thus daily callers can hang up after 2 rings and save toll charges if no new message has been recorded. If the Hotline does not answer your call, then that means there is currently no Hotline message.
