(#8) AIDS: THE LAST GREAT PLAGUE by Sananda, Hatonn, Ashtar, Tesla & Russell $10.00...150 pp ISBN: 0-922356-04-1

The deceptive origins of this manproduced disease are revealed, including the link with cattle and sheep viruses. The sobering introduction of AIDS as a means for population reduction by the World Health Organization through the Smallpox Vaccination program is exposed, as well as involvement by the Public Health Service through a Hepatitis B study on homosexual men in New York, Los Angeles, and San Francisco. Learn of the unique mutating ability of this virus and why there is no such thing as "safe sex". Viruses are crystalline structures, and therefore, may be destroyed through the use of electromagnetic sound and light frequencies. The cutting-edge research of Strecker, Rife, Priore, Russell, Crane, Cathie, and Tesla are all explored in this profound and troubling work. Become informed by the story behind the story you are being told.

Russ Power Breakthrough?

WASHINGTON - Have the Russians learned how to transmit electric power without the use of wires?

For months, mysterious Russian radio signals have been disrupting worldwide communications, and a number of Canadians who have been monitoring the signals are speculating that the Russians may have accomplished that feat.

Although they have no proof that these signals involve transmission of electrical energy, the Canadians con-tend that the Russians may be experimenting with a long-disused process developed by Nikola Tesla, the Yugoslav inventor who died in 1943.

In what he considered his most important discovery, Tesla in 1900 proved that the earth could be used as a conductor of electricity and would be as responsive as a tuning fork to electrical vibrations of a certain pitch. His experiments succeeded in lighting 200 electric lamps from a distance of 25 miles without wires. Some use was made of his process for many years in Canada.

Tesla gave a number of possible uses for his equipment, including power transmission, geological exploration, national defense and weather modification.

But much of Tesla's work was never completed, and his ideas remain in his notebooks which are on file in the Tesla Museum in Belgrade.

Fueling the Canadians' speculation is the report that a Soviet scientist so far unidentified - spent several months in Quebec occasionally interviewing Tesla's last known living assistant, Arthur H. Matthews. In a recent telephone interview.

Matthews said he had had "a lot of questions from a lot of people," some of whom had "Russian-sounding names." He added, "I've been reluctant to tell them anything that would be

But he added that he had heard the Russian radio signals, he had gotten phone calls from government officials in Ottawa asking about them and had, in fact, "received letters from all over the world on this same subject.'

Questions concerning the possibilities of the Russian experiments were brought to the Canadian Department of Communications last winter by Andrew Michrowski, who had been working with a Canadian senator on the question of resurrecting Tesla's experiments as a means of helping alleviate some electric energy problems in eastern Canada.

W W. Scott, director of operations at the department, said that after Michrowski's request for help, all nine of the agency's listening posts were asked to analyze the Russian signals. By this time, however, the Russians, in response to a barrage of complaints primarily from other European governments, had begun to limit the duration of the transmissions that were causing the interference.

Scott said it was determined that, although the signals originated several thousand miles east of Canada, the monitoring stations noticed that the same signals were heard coming around in the opposite direction from the west - with greater intensity a haif hour later.

The signals were heard in the high frequency bands - anywhere from 3 to 30 megahertz (one megahertz is one million cycles per second). Tesla's experiments were on very low frequencies - ranging from about 6 to 100,000 cycles per second. Scott said it was theorized then that the Russian transmissions may have been harmonics multiples - of very low frequency transmissions.

Because the Russian signals were of such short duration, however, Scott said, the transmissions stopped before monitoring personnel were able to listen on very low-frequency wave lengths.

Scott said that on at least one occasion Canadian technicians observed the signals coming from two different locations - both of them apparently close to one another - at the same time.

U.S. scientists working with the Canadian group seem to give credence to the view of what the Russians may have achieved. One of them is Dr. Andrija Puharich of Ossining, N.Y., a one-time physician who gave up medical practice some years ago and has devoted the past 25 years to a study of Tesla's work and electronics experimentation.

Puharich said the Canadians listed for him the frequencies on which they were hearing the Russian transmissions. "I took the actual frequencies the Canadians sent me and just worked backwards and came out with the Tesla frequencies," he said.

Puharich - who says most of his research "is in far-out fields: Senso-Rehabilitation (trying to get ry Rehadilitation (trying to so-deaf people to hear better), the materialization of matter and dematerialization of matter; teletransportation of physical systems (moving objects without using rockets)" - insists, however, that there is no proof yet that the Russians have perfected what Testa began.

He termed "a most important lead" word of the Russian scientist's visits to Matthews. "Very few people have ever heard of Mr. Matthews," Puharich said. "You really have to be a super-esoteric in the field to know of his existence. So the fact that a Russian sought him out I felt of great interest."

Puharich would not rule out the possibility that the Russians may be using Tesla's theories for weather modification. "I think they have a lot of reason to do it," Puharich said, pointing out that the Russians would like to push their cold, Arctic air mass elsewhere — perhaps toward America — and increase their own agricultural growing seasons.

According to persons knowledgeable about Tesla's theories, weather modification would be accomplished by regulating the movement of electrically charged particles in the upper atmosphere resulting in changes in the jet stream.

Support for the Canadians' theory on electric power transmission also came from Marcel Vogel, a senior scientist at International Business Machines Corp. in San Jose, Calif., who said he holds the basic patent for the "disc memory," the brain of many computers.

Vogel's interest in the Canadian venture, he said, "is setting up careful experiments so that we do not injure one another with low frequency sounds—the protection of the project so it can be done with no injury to man or nature." A second interest, he said, is "the release of electrical vibrations which will aid in the growth of plant forms."

Vogel said that when Tesla was experimenting with pulsating electrical fields, he tuned an oscillator to the frequency of the small building in which he was working. He found the resonant vibration of the building and the whole building started to shake and almost fell down," Vogel said. The vibrations were felt in nearby buildings, police were called, and by the time they arrived, Tesla "was smashing the device with a sledgehammer" to stop the oscillations.

Vogel said it was highly possible—but pure assumption—that the Russians may be experimenting on Tesla's theories. Support for duplicating Tesla's experiments in Canada has come from Canadian Sen. Ches Carter of Newfoundland, who met last Wednesday with Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau in an effort to convince him to set up a task force and duplicate the Tesla experiments. The cost, he said, would be $1.5 to $2 million.

Carter's constituency has clear economic motives in such a system succeeding. La brador, the mainland portion of Newfoundland, has huge sources of hydroelectric power, principally on the Churchill River. In order to sell surplus power to the other Maritime Provinces, the electricity would have to be sent via transmission lines through Quebec.

Carter pointed out that Quebec will not permit exportation of electric power unless it is sold to the province. Thus, at present, power from Labrador is sold at 3 mills (three-tenths of a cent) per kilowatt hour to Quebec which resells it to Consolidated Edison Co. in New York for 35 mills, Carter said.

Perfecting Tesla's methods would enable power generated in Labrador to be sold directly to the other Maritimes and avoid the Quebecois middlemen.

Ottawa man cites wireless electricity tests

Wacky weather patterns blamed on Soviets By Adams

An almost daily series of strange and immensely powerful Soviet radio signals has Canadian authorities baffled, and prompted some science buffs to speculate that the U.S.S.R. may have launched a global experiment to transmit electricity without wires.

The signals were first detected in Canada last July. They subsided in November when authorities protested to the Soviets that the high-frequency pulses were causing wide-spread disturbances here.

Now, an Ottawa man intrigued by the whole thing is suggesting that the Soviet experiments are fouling up North America's weather pattern.

Andrew Michrowski, who with Senator Chesley Carter of Newfoundland is pressing the Ottawa government to look into wireless electricity, has produced weather maps which suggest the intense signals from Riga in the Soviet Union are messing with wind patterns.

"The westerly wind patterns this year are completely out of whack," he said in an interview yesterday. "They have suffered a shock."

He has taken his case to the department of communications in Ottawa, but authorities seem unconvinced.

One near-legendary name keeps cropping up in this growing debate as it broadens into areas of cold-war tactics and science fiction. The name is Nikola Tesla.

Tesla was a Yugoslav inventor who died in 1943, after a lavish international career that included several years of working with Thomas Edison.

Tesla demonstrated in 1899 that the earth itself could be used as a conductor of electricity, that it was as responsive as a tuning fork to electrical vibrations of a certain pitch.

He showed this in Colorado Springs. Col., by lighting 200 electric lamps from a distance of 25 miles without wires.

In his later years, he devoted much of his time to experiments in Quebec, transmitting electrical signals from a generator at Tadoussac to a receiver near Lac Edouard. about 150 miles away.

His last known living assistant is 84-year-old Arthur Matthews, now living in semi-retirement in Quebec City, Contacted by The Montreal Stan yesterday, Mr. Matthews said of Tesia: "He invented the 20th century."

Mr. Matthews. who wrote a biography of Tesla in 1971 called Wall of Light, said that the man's work was the basis of most of this century's great inventions — radio and TV. rocketry, the modern computer and automobile ignition systems.

"There are 1,200 inventions of this century that relied on his discoveries."

(The Encyclopedia Brittanica, by the way, gives Tesla half a column, but does not mention his experiments in wireless electricity. It does mention his important work in alternating current.)

Mr. Matthews said his association with Tesla has generated a great deal of interest throughout the world including queries from scientists with Russian-sounding names."

The Russians are very in-

"The Russians are very interested. They name towns and ships after him. But we in Canada seem to have forgotten."

He described Tesla's technique as "duplicating a lightning flash" with tremendous voltages of close to 160 million volts. "In Colorado, he burned out a powerhouse 21 miles away." Mr. Matthews said.

"One of his ideas was to send Niagara Falls power to the entire world."

While much of this may sound dubious, with mad-scientist connotations, there is no doubt that something unusual is emanating from the Soviet Union, and nobody is discounting the possibility that the Russians may be trying to duplicate Tesla's experiments.

Late last July, several countries including Canada began noticing "fantastic" interferences in such things as marine communications. Both the U.S. and Great Britain sent protests to Soviet authorities.

After complaints from ham radio operators, the Canadian government had three monitoring stations — in Ontario, P.E.I. and British Columbia — attempt to get a "fix" on the transmissions.

"They pinpointed it to Riga in the USSR, and we eventually sent a telegram in November. About a month later, the Russians admitted they were conducting experiments in the high-frequency radio bands, but they were taking action to rectify the interferences they were causing."

interferences they were causing."

The "blanker" transmissions from Riga stopped in mid-November, but they were replaced by short bursts of 20 to 30 seconds a day. "They were pulse emissions of a very, very high power," Mr. Smith said.

These emissions are still being regularly detected in Canada.

On Dec. 24, at 10 a.m. Montreal time, a strange third phase occurred. The P.E.I. station picked up a powerful signal originating several thousand miles to the east. Then, about an hour later, the same signal at a higher intensity was detected... but from the opposite direction.

"This is where the Tesla people got excited," Mr. Smith said. "They said this is exactly what would happen if someone were carrying out the Tesla experiment."

He added that what is really baffling the listening stations across North America is that they all seem to receive the same signals, of the same strength, simultaneously.

"The Russians seem to be pumping out (their signals) over the whole continent."

Just in the last month, the signals were detected at Canadian monitoring stations on more than half a dozen days.

Mr. Michrowski, meanwhile, is convinced the phenomenon should prompt us all to take a good hard look at Testa's theories, which never got much serious international attention during his lifetime.

He said that wireless electrical, transmission has profound applications for such things as weather control, the export of electrical power, the reduction of minerals and undersea mining.

Tesla's experiments were on very low-frequency bands — ranging from about 6 to 100,000 cycles per second. Scott said the theory, then, is that the Russian transmissions may have been harmonics (multiples) of very low-frequency transmissions.

Because the Russian signals were of such short duration, Scott said, the transmissions stopped before monitoring personnel were able to listen on very low-frequency wave lengths.

Scott said that on at least one occasion Canadian technicians detected the signals coming from two locations - both apparently close to one another — at the same time.

U.S. scientists working with the Canadiai. group seem to give credence to the view of what the Russians may have achieved. One of them is Dr. Andrija Puharich of Ossining, N.Y., a physician who gave up medical practice years ago and has devoted 25 years to a study of Tesla's work and electronics experimentation.

Puharich said the Canadians listed the frequencies on which they were hearing the Russian transmissions. "I took the actual frequencies the Canadians sent me and just worked backwards and came out with the Tesia frequencies," he said.

Puharich insisted, however, that there is no-proof yet that the Russians have perfected what Tesla began.

Puharich would not rule out the possibility that the Russians may be using Tesla's theories for weather modification. "I think they have a lot of reason to do Puharich said, pointing out that the Russians would like to push their cold, arctic air mass elsewhere — perhaps toward America — and increase their agricultural growing seasons.

According to people knowledgeable about Tesla's theories, weather modification would be accomplished by regulating the movement of electrically charged particles in the upper atmosphere, resulting in changes in the jet

Support for the Canadians' theory on electric power transmission also came from Marcel Vogel, senior scientist at International Business Machines Corp. in San Jose, Calif., who said he holds the basic patent for the disc memory, the brain of many computers.

Vogel said that when Tesla was experimenting with pulsating electrical fields, he tuned an oscillator to the frequency of the small building in which he was working. "He found the resonant vibration of the building, and the whole building started to shake and almost fell down," Vogel said. The vibrations were felt in nearby buildings, police were called, and by the time they arrived, Tesia "was smashing the device with a sledge hammer" to stop the oscillations.

Support for duplicating Tesla's experiments in Canada has come from Canadian Sen. Ches Carter of Newfoundland, who met re-cently with Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau in an effort to convince him to set up a task force and duplicate the Tesla experiments. The cost, he said, would be $1.5 million to $2 million.

Carter's constituency has economic motives in such a system succeeding. Labrador, the mainland portion of Newfoundland, has huge sources of hydroelectric power, principally on the Churchill River. In order to sell surplus power to the other maritime provinces, the electricity would have to be sent via transmission lines through Quebec.

Carter pointed out that Quebec will not permit exportation of electric power unless it is sold to the province. Thus, at present, power from Labrador is sold at 3 mills (three-tenths of a cent) per kilowatt hour to Quebec, which resells it to Consolidated Edison Co. in New York for 35 mills, Carter said.

Perfecting Tesla's methods would enable power generated in Labrador to be sold directly to the other maritime province and avoid the Quebec middlemen. This nation was not founded solely on the principle of citizen rights. Equally important-though too often not discussed - is the citizen's responsibility. For our privileges can be no greater than our obligations. The protection of our rights can endure no longer than the performance of our responsibilities. Each can be neglected NOW? only at the peril of the other. -John F. Kennedy

I share one more piece of material sent from yet another beloved friend. It is a copy of a portion of a book called THE ETERNAL QUEST by one James Whitfield. I do not wish to discuss the book in point but the portion shared is most valuable. This is quite old in writing, having been published in 1933 (more than half a century past). To begin with the fundamentals, Hebrew, Israel, Judah, and recognized as being superior; original religion of One God and Old English words are of the Jew are definitely not synonymous terms. I have already dealt briefly with the term "Hebrew", I will write regarding the Twelve Tribes of Israel and who they are later. For now, the connection between the words "Israel" and "Judah" need clarifying.

Israel: Israel was formerly known as Jacob, the twin brother of Esau, and the last brother born. He received the blessing from his father in place of Esau. His name means "the supplanter". Jacob's name was changed to "Israel" after an encounter with an angel (according to Biblical accounts). From Israel's sons descended the Twelve Tribes of Israel, which were united under the Kings Saul, David and Solomon, and then split up again. Ten Tribes located near Phoenicia set up a separate Temple and returned to Ashtoreth and Baal Worship (including the golden calf and sun worship). The remaining Tribes of Judah and Benjamin maintained the Temple at Jerusalem, but they soon also incorporated astrology in their worship. The Ten Tribes of Israel (located in Galilee and Samaria) fell in 722 B.C. to Tiglath-pileser. Jerusalem fell to Nebuahadnezer in 586 B.C. and the people taken to Babylon, the Temple destroyed. There was no further mention of a Kingdom of Israel after 722 B.C., or a Kingdom of Judah after 586 B.C. There continued a land of Judah or Judea as it came to be called, and the people were returned to Jerusalem

PARENTS OVERRULED

Is it not far more important that, despite, petitions signed by 400 parents, the school board in Westfield, Massachusetts rejected a proposal that would have required that teachers for grades 1 and 2 be "thoroughly proficient in the English language." This is, after all, an English speaking nation? Well, there were warnings heeded that such a provision would violate civil rights laws. It was perfectly legal, however, to ignore liberty. You must realize that the concerns of parents worried over the quality of the children's education. Our New Look

Regular readers of THE PHOENIX LIBERATOR have probably noticed various changes in appearance and presentation of the paper over the past several weeks. These changes will continue for awhile and are one visible result of Commander Hatonn's restructuring of THE LIBERATOR'S management and operations.

Another change is our official business name, now THE PHOENIX LIBERATOR, INC. Our new address is:

THE PHOENIX LIBERATOR 2810 W. Charleston Blvd. Suite G6723 Las Vegas, NV 89102.

This address is for mail processing only for subscriptions, comments general communications.

Our new phone number is 1-800-800-5565.

This restructuring has been gradually implemented to relieve America West Publishers (already overworked with book and JOURNAL publishing activities, plus speaking engagements) from a growing burden they graciously carried from the time of THE LIBERATOR'S inception and evolvement from the smaller newsletter called the PHOENIX JOURNAL EX-PRESS. The EXPRESS, in turn, evolved from THE PHOENIX JOURNALS as a mode for more rapid delivery of communications than the JOURNALS could provide.

Again, please note our new mailing address is for MAIL PROCESSING ONLY and not for "stopping by". Please know that your warm notes of support and other sharings are appreciated and treasured beyond our ability to adequately express, or often, even acknowledge under the work load of our production schedule. We thank you for being there at just the right times and at just the right places, else we certainly would have stumbled and fallen along And, as Comthe way. mander Hatonn put it, above all, the sharing and the caring are really what this is all --The Editors about.
